Created in 1979 by mayoral executive order and established as a charter agency in 1988, OATH is the City's independent administrative law court and is authorized to conduct adjudicatory hearings for all agencies of the City. The Mayor appoints the Chief Administrative Law Judge. OATH has three divisions responsible for adjudicating City matters: OATH Trials Division, OATH Hearings Division and OATH Special Education Hearings Division. The Trials Division adjudicates a wide range of issues that can be referred by any City agency, board, or commission. Its caseload includes employee discipline hearings for civil servants, Conflicts of Interest Board cases, proceedings related to the retention of seized vehicles by the police, City-issued license revocation cases, real estate, zoning and loft law violations, City contract disputes, cases involving violations of paid sick day and fair workweek laws and the City Human Rights Law. Trials are conducted by Administrative Law Judges who are appointed to five-year terms. Hearings at the Hearings Division are conducted by Judicial Hearing Officers on summonses issued by 25 different City enforcement agencies for alleged violations of law or City rules. The Special Education Hearings Division adjudicates disputes about special education services provided to New York City children. OATH also houses the Center for Creative Conflict Resolution, which provides mediation and restorative justice support to City government agencies and the Administrative Judicial Institute, a resource center that provides training, continuing education and support services for the City's Administrative Law Judges and Hearing Officers.

The Department of City Planning (DCP) plans for the strategic growth and development of the City through ground-up planning with communities, the development of land use policies and zoning regulations. To help promote a more equitable New York City, DCP uses zoning tools to encourage housing production and affordability, support resilient and sustainable communities, foster economic development and, through contributions to the preparation of the City's 10-year Capital Strategy, helps coordinates investments in infrastructure and services.

In addition, DCP supports the City Planning Commission in its annual review of approximately 450 land use applications for a variety of discretionary approvals. DCP assists both government agencies and the public by advising on strategic and capital planning and providing policy analysis, technical assistance and data relating to housing, transportation, community facilities, demography, zoning, urban design, waterfront areas and public open space.

COMMUNITY BOARDS

Community Boards are local representative bodies. Each of the 59 Community Boards is comprised of up to 50 unsalaried members, appointed by the Borough President in consultation with the City Council Members who represent any part of the Board district. The Boards play an advisory role in zoning and other land-use issues, in community planning, in the city budget process, and in the coordination of municipal services. Any person with a residence, business, professional or other significant interest in a given area is eligible for appointment to the Community Board serving that area. Each Board hires a full time District Manager and other staff to run a district office that receives and works to resolve residents' service delivery problems.

The New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) protects public health and the environment by supplying clean drinking water, collecting and treating wastewater, and reducing air, noise, and hazardous substances pollution. DEP is an agency of nearly 6,000 employees that manage and conserve the City's water supply; distribute more than one billion gallons of clean drinking water each day to nine million New Yorkers and collect wastewater through a vast underground network of pipes, regulators, and pumping stations; and treat the 1.2 billion gallons of wastewater that New Yorkers produce each day in a way that protects the quality of New York Harbor. To achieve these mandates, DEP oversees one of the largest capital construction programs in the region. As the City agency responsible for New York City's environment, DEP also regulates air quality, hazardous waste, and critical quality of life issues, including noise.

Many City-owned lands west of Hudson are open to the public without a DEP Access Permit for fishing, hiking, hunting and trapping. These lands will be designated by "Public Access Area" signs. Lands east of Hudson and around reservoirs designated "entry by permit" signs require a free DEP Access Permit. An additional Boat Tag is required for fishing by boat on the reservoirs. All boats placed on City reservoirs must be steam cleaned by DEP or DEP-approved vendors. Information and Access Permit applications are available online, see above web site, by calling the DEP Access Permit office, or at DEP Offices throughout the watershed. Applications are also available at bait and tackle shops and town halls throughout the watershed and at DEP Offices in Queens and Manhattan.

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT PRACTICES COMMISSION (EEPC)

Fax (212) 676-2724

Created by the 1989 amendments to the New York City Charter, the Equal Employment Practices Commission (EEPC) is an independent, non-mayoral oversight entity tasked with auditing, reviewing, and monitoring the employment practices of New York City agencies, entities, and offices of elected officials at least once every four years. Chapter 36 of the New York City Charter authorizes the EEPC to make a determination that any City entity's plan, program, or procedure does not provide equal employment opportunity, require appropriate corrective action, and monitor the implementation of the corrective action it prescribes. Agencies and entities subject to the EEPC's audit, evaluation, and monitoring are those that are funded, in whole or in part, by the City treasury, those in which the majority of the board members are appointed by the mayor, and those in which the majority of the board members serve by virtue of being City officers.

In addition to its oversight of City EEO programs, Local Law 13 of 2019 requires the EEPC to analyze citywide racial and ethnic classification underutilization and annually publish a report of its findings and recommendations. The EEPC is also empowered to conduct hearings, establish advisory committees, and make legislative, policy, and budgetary recommendations to the Mayor, the City Council, the Department of Citywide Administrative Services, and any other City agency or entity to ensure equal employment opportunities for those who are employed by, or seek employment with, New York City government.

The New York City Charter assigns an EEPC Board of five per diem Commissioners, who serve in staggered four-year terms. The EEPC Board of Commissioners is comprised of two appointees each from the Mayor and City Council, and a Chairperson who is appointed jointly by the Mayor and Speaker of the Council. This arrangement facilitates the EEPC's exercise of jurisdiction over the employment practices of mayoral and non-mayoral agencies, as well as the offices of elected officials and political appointees.

The New York City Department of Investigation (DOI) is the City's Inspector General, with independent oversight of City government, including each mayoral agency, City vendors, and an array of boards and commissions. Our investigations may involve any agency, officer, elected official or employee of the City, as well as those who do business with or receive benefits from the City. We are one of the oldest law enforcement agencies in the country and an international leader in the effort to combat corruption in public institutions.

The agency is imbued with unique powers that support its independence and fact-finding mission, including the power to issue subpoenas and take testimony under oath. For more than 140 years, DOI has been the City's anti-corruption watchdog, protecting against corruption, fraud, waste, malfeasance and misconduct and bringing an in-depth understanding of City processes and operations to the investigations it conducts.

DOI's strategy attacks corruption comprehensively through systemic investigations that lead to high-impact arrests, preventive internal controls and operational reforms that improve the way the City runs. Visitors to this website can view our public reports and releases, read about our history, and better understand DOI's distinct role in City government.

The Department of Parks and Recreation, continued by Local Law No. 7 of 1976, is the successor agency to the Parks, Recreation and Cultural Affairs Administration (1968) and the city-wide Department of Parks (1934). Prior to the tenure of Commissioner Robert Moses (1934-60), the city's parks were under the jurisdiction of five borough park commissioners.

The agency's principal mission is to assure that the parks, beaches, playgrounds, stadia, marinas, recreation facilities, gardens, malls, squares and public spaces of the City of New York are clean, safe and attractive for the health and enjoyment of the people. As of August 31, 2020, there were approximately 30,000 acres of City parkland.

Parks is responsible for street trees, park flora and fauna, community gardens, historic houses, statues and monuments, open space, conservation and nature study. It develops management and restoration policy to protect and enhance the City's wetlands, woodlands and meadows. It conducts activities in athletics, physical fitness, environmental education, visual and performing arts and crafts. Special programs are provided for senior citizens, teenagers, pre-schoolers, the disabled and the homeless (Charter, sec. 533).

The Commissioner of Parks & Recreation is a member, in most cases ex-officio, of the Boards of Directors, Trustees or Managers of the following agencies or institutions: State: New York State Park, Recreation and Historic Preservation Commission for the City of New York, Hudson River Valley Greenway; State-Municipal: Hudson River Park Trust; Municipal: City Parks Foundation, Historic House Trust of New York City, NYC Soil and Water Conservation District; Bronx; NYZS/Wildlife Conservation Society (Bronx Zoo), New York Botanical Garden, Wave Hill, Friends of Van Cortlandt Park; Brooklyn: Brooklyn Botanic Garden, Prospect Park Alliance; Manhattan: American Museum of Natural History, Big Apple Circus, Bryant Park Restoration Corporation, Central Park Conservancy, Gracie Mansion Conservancy, Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, Metropolitan Museum of Art, Museum of the City of New York, Riverside Park Fund; Queens: Alley Pond Environmental Center, New York Hall of Science, Queens Botanical Garden, Queens County Farm Museum, Queens Museum of Art, Southern Queens Park Association; Staten Island: Alice Austen House, Greenbelt Conservancy, Snug Harbor Cultural Center, S.I. Botanical Garden, S.I. Children's Museum, S. I. Historical Society, S.I. Zoological Society.

The Department of Records and Information Services was made a Charter agency in 1977. Section 3003 of the Charter designates the Commissioner as the chief archivist of the City, and as the chief reference and research librarian and public records officer for the Mayor, Borough Presidents, and the Council. The Charter consolidated responsibility for the organization and retrieval of records, reports and archival documents produced by past and present City government offices. The Municipal Archives appraises, accessions, classifies, arranges and makes available for research irreplaceable historical records of New York City government. The Municipal Records Management Division ensures that records at all City agencies are retained for designated periods of time and disposed of properly.
DORIS develops uniform standards and procedures to assist City agencies in managing their records. The Municipal Library provides information drawn from its collections of government publications and is the depository for all official reports and studies published electronically by New York City departments, commissions and divisions.

Court

THE ADMINISTRATIVE BOARD OF THE COURTS

All courts in New York City are part of the state Unified Court System and function under the administrative supervision of the Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, who is also the Chief Judge of the State. The Chief Judge appoints a Chief Administrator of the Courts (who is called the Chief Administrative Judge of the Courts if the appointee is a judge) with the advice and consent of the Administrative Board of the Courts. The Chief Administrator, on behalf of the Chief Judge, supervises the administration and operation of the trial courts and directs the Office of Court Administration (OCA). The Chief Judge establishes statewide administrative standards and policies after consultation with the Administrative Board and promulgates them after approval by the Court of Appeals.
