Safety as a top priority

Safety is a top priority for employers in the waste and recycling industry. We not only want to ensure that our workers are safe, but we also strive to protect the safety of the neighborhoods we serve.

We believe that safety is not proprietary; therefore, it's essential to share our keys to success in moving the needle on safety in the waste and recycling collection business.

Attendance is free for everyone

We invite haulers, suppliers, legislators, front-line workers, drivers, mechanics and others interested in making our industry safer, smarter and stronger, to take part in this free, half-day symposium. The symposium will be divided into two tracks: operators and strategists.

Each track will offer workshops on the following topics:

Operators:

Workshop 1: Managing Distractions: drivers, pedestrians and unexpected events.

Workshop 2: The 10 things drivers need to know to improve safety.

Strategists:

Workshop 1: Safety culture: everyone has one, but how do you make it an innovative and good one?

Workshop 2: Correcting safety behaviors: using technology, techniques and experiences to improve safety behaviors at all levels of industry operations
