

MARTELLUS IN CHARGE

○ Bennett has emerged as potent third option in Giants' passing attack
○ Outspoken tight end fills lead role for first time ○ 'This is all new to me'

While offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride thinks it will take a committee to fill the No. 3 receiver role, there's one guy who's gotten off to fast start this season — tight end Martellus Bennett.

The fifth-year player has shown the Giants' staff flashes of brilliance since coming over from the Cowboys this year, after serving as All-Pro Jason Witten's little-used understudy for the previous four seasons. Bennett has posted back-to-back solid games for the Giants, with a combined nine receptions, 112 yards and two scores.

"[Eli Manning and the coaches] have confidence in me and they know I can play and they know I can make plays. It's been good for me to be able to show the type of player I am," said Bennett. "I think people probably never really think much of me, but it's not the battle I'm fighting right now. As long as these guys in this locker room and this organization think a lot of me as a football player, that's all that really matters."

Bennett has made the tight end position matter for the Giants, which is a considerable achievement due to the upheaval at the position over the last two seasons. The Giants entered this season with a new starting tight end for the third straight season, following the 2011 defection of Kevin Boss and this summer's waiver-wire loss of Jake Ballard to the Patriots.

Bennett said it's still weird for him to hear his name as a part of opposing defense's game plan.

"I think this is the first time everyone's actually game planning for me," he said. "This is all new to me."

Injury updates

With a much shorter turnaround than usual, the Giants will likely be without a few injured players tomorrow.

RT David Diehl (knee) didn't practice at all yesterday. He's officially listed as questionable, but Coughlin wasn't encouraged: "It's highly unlikely [he'll play], but I would still hold out hope."

Coughlin was even more cryptic than usual about RB Ahmad Bradshaw, who injured his neck Sunday. He said he was "day-to-day" and twice responded "neck" when asked about the nature of the injury.

One player who did practice was CB Prince Amukamara (ankle), albeit in limited participation. He might be held out again, though. "We'll see," Coughlin said. "I'm not ready to say [he'll play] yet."

It's worry time if you own these guys

It is always dangerous to rush to conclusions based on a small sample size (as Browns RB Trent Richardson proved to those who wrote him off after Week 1). However, with two weeks of the season down, it is hard not to be a bit alarmed about the following players.

Chris Johnson (RB, Titans): Many will blame Johnson's O-line, but he has also looked hesitant hitting the hole. On the plus side, the Titans gave him too much money not to keep handing him the ball. Don't give up entirely, but lower your expectations dramatically.

Steven Jackson (RB, Rams): He has long suffered from a lack of talent around him, and now he has young RBs nipping at his heels. However, the Rams look better this year and I think he could bounce back once his minor injury heals.

Jamaal Charles (RB, Chiefs): After looking good in Week 1, nobody seems to know why he disappeared against the Bills.

However, it seems clear that Kansas City plans to get multiple RBs involved, and that will take opportunities away from Charles. If you own Charles, it is time to start feeling nervous.

Larry Fitzgerald (WR, Cardinals): Without proper weapons around him, teams have focused all of their energy on shutting him down. Then again, this has been true for years and it's never stopped him before.

Wes Welker (WR, Patriots): The emergence of RB Stevan Ridley and TE Aaron Hernandez has taken opportunities away from Welker. I expect his numbers to rise while Hernandez is injured, but if I could get decent value I would try trading him away in the next few weeks.

Fred Davis (TE, Redskins): While he is very talented, as long as QB Robert Griffin III seems to not know what a tight end is, you can't count on him.

SUNY Downstate to host discussion on healthcare act 'Broccoli, Medicaid and mandates'

The John Conley Division of Medical Ethics and Humanities at SUNY Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn will present a lecture on the United States Supreme Court decision upholding the constitutionality of the Affordable Care Act on Thursday, Sept. 20, at 4 p.m.

Guest speaker David Orentlicher, MD, JD, will talk on "Broccoli, Medicaid, and Mandates: Implications of the Affordable Care Act," a reference to the key objections raised by critics of the Act.

If the federal government can require people to buy insurance because it would be good for their health, then, it is said, the government can require people to buy all sorts of things that are good for their health — like broccoli.

Similarly, if the federal government can force states to spend billions of Medicaid dollars to address the health care needs of their residents, it can force states to spend billions of dollars on other social programs.

According to Dr. Orentlicher, the court's 5-4 vote was a strong counter to these arguments.

"Affordable Care Act critics greatly exaggerated the implications of the act for federal power," he says. "Allowing the act to largely go forward preserves the ability of Congress to regulate on behalf of the public welfare while presenting no new threats to individual liberty or state autonomy."

But what about the court's holding on the Medicaid expansion portion of the act? Didn't the justices recognize that Congress was trying to deny states their rightful authority over healthcare policy?

"Even though the Court ruled that the Medicaid expansion was optional, it will be surprising if any states actually refuse to participate," says Dr. Orentlicher. "Rather than putting 'a gun to the head' of the states, Congress made an offer that's too good to refuse."

As the presidential campaign moves into full swing, the Affordable Care Act, Medicaid, and healthcare law are certain to be center stage. Dr. Orentlicher's lecture promises a lively framing of the issues.

Dr. Orentlicher, a frequent commentator on health law for The New York Times, CNN and other media, is the Samuel

R. Rosen professor and co-director of the William S. and Christine S. Hall Center for Law and Health at the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law.

This event is co-sponsored by the Brooklyn Free Clinic and Physicians for a National Health Program at Downstate. The presentation will take place in Lecture Hall 1-A, Health Science Education Building, 395 Lenox Rd.

Brooklyn-made statue of Washington highlights museum

By John McVey
Associated Press

Construction of the "for the kids, by George" children's museum in Martinsburg, West Va., is progressing, and the arrival of exhibits continues.

Earlier this month, an eerily lifelike statue of George Washington at 19 years old — created by StudioEIS of Brooklyn, N.Y. — and an exact replica of a circa 1700s canoe were delivered to the museum in Martinsburg.

The image of Washington at 19 was selected because that is about how old he was when surveying this area, Lisa Dall'Olio said.

Washington was hired by Lord Thomas Fairfax of Cameron to survey Fairfax's land grant west of the Blue Ridge Mountain range. Called the Northern Neck Proprietary, it included the Eastern Panhandle of West Virginia and the northern Shenandoah Valley.

A member of the Martinsburg architectural firm of Grove and Dall'Olio, she designed the interactive museum and is supervising its development.

The children's museum is part of the George Washington Heritage Trail, a 136-mile course that loops through Berkeley, Jefferson and Morgan counties, tying together historic sites and tourist attractions. It is a state- and federal-designated scenic byway.

StudioEIS, which is located, appropriately, on Washington Street in DUMBO, originally produced the statue produced for Mt. Vernon as part of a progression of ages display showing Washington as he got older, Dall'Olio said.

According to published reports, a team of researchers studied a statue of Washington at age 53 by French sculptor Jean-Antoine Houdons. Houdons spent several weeks with Washington at Mount Vernon.

A life-size statue and bust of Washington by Houdons was scanned, and a computer program was written to manipulate the image to depict different ages of the man. It was from these digital images that StudioEIS created the sculptures of Washington at ages 19, 45 and 57.

The about 12-foot-long basswood canoe was built by Scott Barkdoll, of Skywoods Canoe Co. in Shoreham, Vt., Dall'Olio said. He is originally from Shepherdstown and was very interested in being part of the children's museum, she said.

Washington is kneeling in the canoe with paddle in hand looking earnestly up river.

The figures will be hoisted above the centerpiece of the entrance to the museum, which simulates the flowing Potomac River.

Work on rooms depicting different historic eras of the region also is under way. A crew from Explus Inc., of Dulles, Va., was working on the frontier exhibit, which portrays life in a log cabin.

Primary funding for the museum is through a National Scenic Byways grant program for $362,500, of which $72,500 is an in-kind matching grant. The city, which owns the Caperton Train Station, is the grant sponsor and fiscal agent for the grant.

Focus of the museum is on George Washington's adventures and other historic features of the area, such as the B&O Railroad and its roundhouse complex in Martinsburg.

The museum won a $50,000 grant from the North American Railway Foundation to install a Working on the Railroad exhibit. The museum has been awarded other grants to develop the museum, also.

Помощи не будет

Власти США остановили переговоры с Египтом о предоставлении очередной финансовой помощи из-за антиамериканских протестов, связанных с выходом фильма про пророка Мухаммеда, пишет Washington Post со ссылкой на анонимные источники в официальных ведомствах. Штаты собирались списать с долга Каира один миллиард долларов и выделить миллионы долларов на другие виды помощи.

Причиной отказа от продолжения переговоров стала недостаточно жесткая реакция Египта на массовые протесты и нападения на американских дипломатов. Предположительно, переговоры возобновятся только после президентских выборов. Ежегодная финансовая помощь Египту составляет 1,5 миллиарда евро.

Некоторые официальные лица отмечают, что приостановка обсуждения этих вопросов временная и не является предвестником крупных перемен в отношениях Египта и США. В данном случае многое зависит от того, как дальше будет развиваться ситуация с антиамериканскими протестами в Египте и кто победит на выборах.

Акции протеста в Каире начались после того, как по телевидению был показан отрывок из фильма «Невинность мусульман», снятого группой американцев. В нем представлена альтернативная история пророка Мухаммеда. Исламисты устроили атаки на посольства и дипмиссии США в разных городах. Многие из них требовали выслать из страны американского посла.

Ранее США грозили заморозить финансовую помощь в ответ на аресты аи-ников, которые работали в Египте. Впоследствии тех отпустили и им разрешили покинуть страну, однако их уголовные дела все еще рассматриваются следствием.

КОРОТКО

Митт Ромни назвал мирный процесс на Ближнем Востоке «нерешенной проблемой и, вероятнее всего, так и не достигнутой» по причине того, что палестинский народ «не заинтересован в установлении мира с Израилем», сообщает Washington Post. Это заявление было сделано Ромни еще в мае 2012 года на мероприятии, организованном для потенциальных спонсоров кампании Республиканской партии. Видео, где Ромни говорит о палестинцах, выложил журнал Mother Jones. Ромни считает, что «палестинская проблема не может быть решена», так как палестинцы «не имеют никакого интереса в установлении мира».

Агентство по международному развитию (USAID) прекращает работу в России, заявила представитель Госдепартамента Виктория Нуланд. «США недавно узнали от российского правительства о решении положить конец деятельности USAID в России. Мы гордимся тем, чего достигло USAID в России за последние два десятилетия, и мы продолжим работать с нашими партнерами, чтобы завершить программы или передать полномочия», сказала она. «Хотя присутствие USAID в России подошло к концу, мы по-прежнему привержены задаче поддержания демократии, прав человека и развития гражданского общества в России, и стремимся продолжать сотрудничество с российскими НПО», — отмечается в заявлении.

КСТАТИ

Информационное агентство Associated Press сообщает, что сотрудники посольства США в Ливане получили распоряжение начать ликвидацию секрет-предотвращения утечек информации.

Распоряжение поступило на фоне волнений в Ливане из-за антимусульманского фильма. Местные сотрудники посольства были отправлены по домам раньше времени.

Между тем в центре Бейрута проходит организованная шиитской террористической организацией «Хезболла» демонстрация протеста против фильма «Невинность мусульман». В демонстрации принял участие и лидер «Хезболлы» Хасан Насралла, редко покидающий свое убежище. По словам Насраллы, протест, спровоцированный фильмом в мусульманских странах, превратится в постоянное движение, которое защитит пророка Мухаммеда.

Доведут до инвалидности

Минздрав Украины решил продолжить лечение экс-премьера Юлии Тимошенко: немецкие и украинские врачи пришли к выводу, что заключенной нужен еще месяц предполагает, как правило, 14-21 день. Сегодня превышение достаточно серьезное. «Мы продолжаем стационарное лечение пятый месяц. Однако ситуация просто сама нестандартная, и пациентка улучшения», — оценила работу врачей Моисеенко. На данный момент лечение экс-премьера сводится к физкультуре под надзором медиков.

Врач из немецкой клиники «Шарите» Лутц Хармс уверен, что Юлия Тимошенко должна оставаться в больнице — в этом случае врачи могут помочь ей избежать инвалидности. «Я не могу сказать, что мы можем полностью исключить эту вероятность», — считает Хармс.

Но, хотя заключенной грозит инвалидность, ее состояние постепенно улучшается, что дает основание надеяться на лучшее, объясняет врач. «Но мы надеялись на больший прогресс. Я хотел бы подчеркнуть, что играет роль то обстоятельство, что пациентка постоянно оказывается в стрессовой ситуации... Естественно, она надеялась, что рекомендованные восемь недель покоя будут не настолько стрессовыми», — отметил доктор.

Тимошенко, по словам Хармса, усердно работает над тем, чтобы скорее встать на ноги. «Что касается медицинских аспектов, то по-прежнему пациентка высказывает жалобы на боли. Я хочу подчеркнуть, что эти боли значительно меньше и сейчас пациентка уже способна сделать несколько шагов самостоятельно», — утверждает врач.

АМЕРИКА

В книге вы говорите о возможности вступить в "новую эру глобального превосходства Запада" после распада СССР. Но этого не произошло. Эта неудача - следствие человеческой неадекватности или результат действия неких сил, неподалека от

Збигнев Бжезинский:

"Судьба Америки - в ее руках"

Збигнев Бжезинский относится к кругу самых блестящих американских экспертов по внешней политике. Бывший советник Белого дома по национальной безопасности при Джимми Картере написал один или в соавторстве восемнадцать книг, в том числе - последний труд "Стратегическое прозрение: Америка и кризис глобального порядка".

Западу и его лидерам?

Я думаю, имели место оба фактора. Запад устал, а Европа потеряла чувство глобальной ответственности и погрязла в провинциализме. Это, в частности, было связано с напругой усилиями построить Европейский Союз.

США самоодовольно почли на лаврах и действовали, будто, истории на самом деле пришел конец. Мы не предвидели появления новых условий и явлений в мире, которые тогда начинали зарождаться. Сейчас я яснее вижу картину и пытаюсь рассказать о ней в "Стратегическом прозрении".

В какой мере война в Ираке повлияла на положение дел?

Вы знаете мое мнение о войне

в Ираке. Я думаю, что это была катастрофа. Катастрофа в смысле подрыва американской легитимности во всем мире. Она подорвала доверие к Президенту и Белому дому, повлекла значительные потери для США, много жизней потеряно, много наших граждан покинчено. Экономические убытки тоже огромные.

Все это добавило нестабильности на Ближнем Востоке. Независимо от того, нравился нам Саддам Хусейн или нет (а он, конечно, был отвратителен), он сильно сдерживал иранские амбиции. Сегодня разделение и рыхлый Ирак очень восприимчив к дестабилизации.

Как вы думаете, сегодня мир был бы другим, если бы мы не вошли в Ирак?

С одной стороны, Ближний Восток был бы чуть стабильнее. Я не возражал против ввода наших войск в Афганистан, хотя и убеждал только войти и выбить Талибан, а по возможности уничтожить его, как и "Аль-Каиду", - а затем вывести войска, а не оставаться там 10 лет, амбициозно строя современное демократическое государство в средневековом и расколотом обществе. По крайней мере, мы имели бы только один конфликт. Вместо того у нас образовались сразу два очага - оба обходившиеся очень дорого и оба достаточно бесполезны.

Вы писали о смещении сил от Атлантики к Тихому океану. Вы также говорите, что Запад может удержать сильные позиции в новом мире. Но разве не возможно и то, что такой сдвиг может оставить позади и Запад, и Америку, независимо от наших усилий?

Конечно, возможно, но в том будет только наша вина. Это совсем не обязательно должно произойти. Я ничуть не отрицаю жизнеспособности Дальнего Востока и Азии, но прекрасно понимаю, что у крупных игроков в этом регионе - свои трудности в отношениях и потенциально очень опасные конфликты между собой.

Поэтому у нас есть много места для маневра. Еще важнее, что они долго еще не смогут превзойти нас по уровню финансового и социального благополучия или по уровню жизни. Конечно, если мы будем бесцельно бархатиться и загнивать, если мы погрязнем в кризисе, то они смогут опередить нас.

Я очень обеспокоен тем, что в США сложилась спекулятивная, а не производительная финансовая система, где главная мотивация игроков - алчность, вместо социального развития. Наши налоги благоприятствуют богатым, я считаю, до крайне несправедливой степени. Это экономически непродуктивно, поскольку способствует углублению социального неравенства в обществе. Такой разрыв в долгосрочной перспективе имеет тенденцию становиться разрушительным, может привести к уничтожению национального согласия и стимулировать классовые конфликты. Конгресс стал бессмысленным органом из относительно богатых и привилегированных людей - они принимают законы или меры, которые выгодны им как замкнутой группе. В результате нам становится все труднее решать разумно как внутренние, так и внешние проблемы.

Я с тревогой наблюдаю за этими президентскими выборами. Из всех выборов, которые мне удалось видеть, мне кажется, что эти - самые гадкие. Потому что на предыдущих выборах стояли большие, всеобъемлющие вопросы, решения по которым - к лучшему или худшему - были предсказуемы. Сейчас выборы представляют собой неразбериху лозунгов и полную путаницу вкупе с растущим беспокойством общества.

В книге вы говорите, что сегодняшние студенты университетов по всему миру, являясь эквивалентом марксистского пролетариата: "Беспокойные, обиженные, вчерашние крестьяне, а в начале эпохи - индустриальные рабочие - восприимчивые к идеологической агитации и революционной мобилизации". Вы предполагаете, что они - одна из основных дестабилизирующих сил в мире. Как вы думаете, этот фактор можно приручить или держать под контролем в ближайшие 20 лет?

Думаю, это во многом зависит от исторического контекста.

Нынешние движения во многих частях мира, в том числе и на Ближнем Востоке, - популистские. Они не прониклись демократическими ценностями или широким пониманием, что на самом деле конституционализм и правовая система влекут за собой.

Таким образом, современные движения вероятнее всего будут ведомы страстями и историческими мотивами - односторонними, потенциально нетерпимыми, возможно, фанатичными, иногда - религиозно нетерпимыми.

Я не уверен, что каждое восстание против диктатуры обязательно ведет к демократии. Оно может сопровождаться отказом от коррупции или произвола, но в дальнейшем может и опять скатиться в нетерпимость к инакомыслию.

Вы считаете, что Америке важно иметь в мире определенный имидж, который обеспечивает влияние на другие страны и народы. Как сильно это влияние и насколько его подрывала война в Ираке и другие события после "холодной войны"?

К сожалению, мы сами лишили себя легитимности, упростили задачу группам, инстинктивно враждебным к нам. Мы упустили момент и действовали, будто нам доверена необъяснимая особая миссия. Джордж Буш-младший даже сказал: "Наш народ избран Богом и призван историей быть моделью для всего мира".

Нынешний век, я думаю, уже довольно ясно, будет принципиально отличаться от предыдущего. Главная особенность XX века (в терминах глобальной силы) - борьба между крупными державами за господство и гегемонию. Три века определили прошлое столетие - Первая мировая, Вторая мировая и холодная война. Мы вышли из этой борьбы победителями, просто потому, я думаю, неумело распорядились победой.

Но в этом - не только наша вина. Мы, вероятно, не смогли бы служить, как надеялись, образцом для всего мира, потому что мир стал гораздо разнообразнее и сложнее. Общее политическое пробуждение добавляет нестабильности, и адреналин мы начинаем сталкиваться с новыми глобальными опасностями.

Как нация мы должны понять, что нужно действовать иначе. Мы должны восстановить наши коалиции. Вот почему я пишу об обновленном Западе с участием России и Турции, о вовлеченности Америки в дела на Дальнем Востоке и отстранении от всех войн на материке.

Необходимо балансировать между внешними силами, действуя, как Великобритания вела себя по отношению к Европе в XIX веке. Если мы все сделаем по-умному, то сможем остаться самой влиятельной силой в мире, но тут нужна осторожность. Нам нужны умные лидеры, которые понимают и чувствуют фундаментальные исторические перемены, отличающие этот век от предыдущего. Так же важно, чтобы наше общество имело хоть какие-то знания в области международных отношений. Меня серьезно беспокоит, что наши люди не понимают окружающий их мир. Их даже не информируют о реальном мире.

Большинство людей ничего не financially strapped and cannot afford to add to the policing staff.

The rape took place around 5 a.m.

"We encourage people to come to the park after 6 a.m. when the park opens and it's fully daylight," Wils said, "but the victim didn't deserve what happened to her."

Wils and Quinn both said that New York City's parks are generally safe. The Tribeca rape was the first to have occurred in Hudson River Park, which opened in stages after it was officially created as a New York State and City partnership in 1998.

p.m. on Sun., Oct. 7, at the Hudson River Recreation Center on 97th St. The hearing will also be held in Tribeca at a date yet to be announced.

Although C.A.E.'s programs focus on women, girls and the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender communities, the city-sponsored self-defense programs are open to everyone. To sign up or for more information, e-mail Events@council.nyc.gov or call (212) 788-6871.

Veterans receive final honors

BY BOB KAPPSTATTER

Military veterans spanning three wars, they died poor and alone.

But fellow vets from the Bronx and elsewhere helped send them to their final rest this week with military honors.

Carey Johnson, 58, who served in Vietnam; George Goodwin, 79, who served in Korea, and Lensey Roosevelt Carrington, 88, who served in World War II, received military funerals on Tuesday, Sept. 18, thanks to the efforts of City Islander Jim Mullarkey, head of the state chapter of the Catholic War Veterans of America.

Under leaden gray, damp skies, the sad echo of taps mixed with the crack of rifle volleys from an honor guard as Mullarkey and other chapter veterans snapped to attention at their graves in Calverton National Cemetery on Long Island for one final salute.

Their bodies had wound up in the city morgue, unclaimed. When their fingerprints showed all were veterans, the Medical Examiner's Office notified the Mayor's Office of Veterans Affairs.

Mullarkey, 74, who saw combat with the 82nd Airborne Division in Vietnam, said he contacted the office, hoping like other veteran's groups, to sponsor burials for indigent veterans.

"We felt no matter who you are, what religion, we want to honor you with a proper military burial," said Mullarkey.

While the government only provides $900 for military burials, a member of Mullarkey's veterans' group reached out to the Brooklyn Funeral Home in Brownsville, where owner Anthony Cassieri was glad to handle the arrangements, absorbing any extra costs.

With a motorcycle escort, a cortege of hearses and members of the Catholic War Veterans, brought Johnson, Goodwin and Carrington to their final home.

Next week, Mullarkey said his group and the Lucchese Funeral Home on Morris Park Avenue will hold a military funeral for another fallen veteran.

"We are more than glad to help," said funeral home director Joe Lucchese.

Steep fines send strong message to Pompeii

BY PATRICK ROCCHIO

An east Bronx bar that's raised hell - and neighbors' hackles - has been slapped with heavy fines. But the violations apparently were not enough for the Pompeii Bar and Lounge on E. Tremont Avenue to have its liquor license suspended or revoked.

An administrative law judge fined it $15,000 over State Liquor Authority violations from 2011. It was fined about $14,000 in January over eight 2010 charges - which were quickly paid. Senator Jeff Klein and Councilman Jimmy Vacca, both active in the fight against the bar, hailed the new fine.

"Hopefully, this steep fine sends a strong message to all nightclub owners that crime doesn't pay," said Klein.

The new fine - for a disorderly premise appears related to a brawl, and for overcrowding and lack of an assembly permit in a multi-agency raid on March 20, 2011.

But the ruling, issued Wednesday, September 12, will not yet cause the bar's liquor license to be suspended or revoked.

"Another day, another fine or shut down!," said Vacca, who last week worked to force Pompeii to cancel a planned rap talent show after learning it had no public assembly permit.

"I want to make this clear - Pompeii has not been a good neighbor, and our community will be vigilant at every turn when it comes to Pompeii's violations and their thinking they can do what they want, when they want."

Teams clean Astoria Park shoreline

BY RICH BOCKMANN

You never know what will find on the shores of Astoria Park.

"We've found bullets, pots. One time we found a whole refrigerator,"

Antonio Meloni, who several years has organized volunteers to tidy up park on International Coastal Clean-up Day.

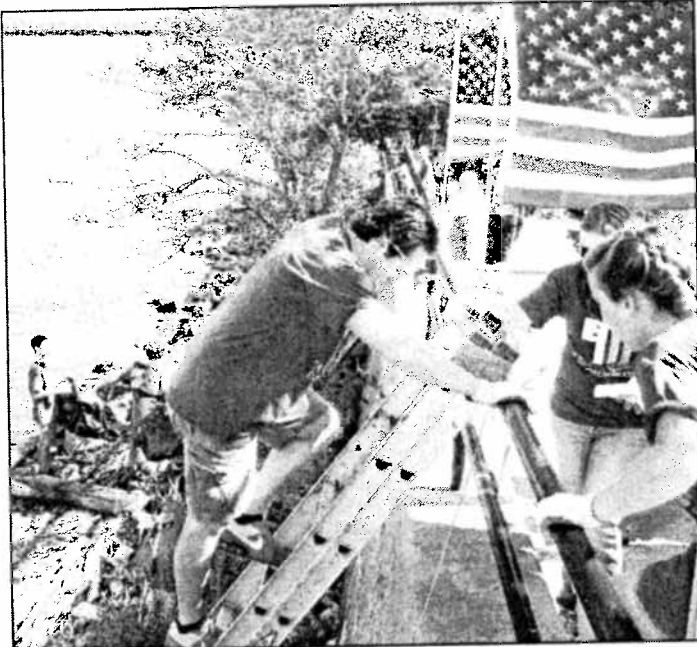

Saturday marked the 11th annual clean up of the East River shoreline in a team effort by Greenpeace NYC, the Astoria Park Alliance and the Anti-Crime Agency.

"The great thing about is you get these groups with diverse interests that really work together well for a cleaner, safer area," said Meloni, director of the Anti-Crime Agency.

In past years, the volunteers have filled more than 100 trash bags, which the City Parks Department takes by and picks up. For larger items, such as the abandoned refrigerator or car bumper found one year, a recycling company called in to make the deal.

There was a strong wind sweeping along the shore Saturday morning, so the group played it safe and did not venture too close to the water, that did not mean the volunteers did not get a full experience.

"There's plenty to do, so don't feel as though you're being cheated," Katy Ellman told the group of so intrepid volunteers they carefully climbed ladder down the seawall the rocky shore, where they found — among the cans and bottles — a huge piece of Styrofoam that stood taller than some park stewards.

David Ragonetti, a 26-year-old member of Fordham University's environmental law advocates group, found a perfectly good, unused coconut among the rubbish.

"It's borderline the most unexpected things down here," he opined.

Meloni, who also organizes cleanups of Newtown Creek and Bowery Bay, said Astoria Park is unique in that it is one of the few places with access to the shore. He said the annual event was started when parkgoers noticed just how dirty the shore was, pointing out that over the years recycling has had a positive impact on the environment.

"There used to be tons of glass bottles. You don't see anywhere near the amount you used to see," he said.

Before they headed down to the shoreline to perform their community service, the volunteers laid a wreath at the park's Veterans' Memorial to honor those who died on 9/11.

"A lot of the people who were killed were performing service," said Meloni. "It's a little something we can do to show kids who may not realize what 9/11 means."

Volunteer ambulance service seeks new members

The Glen Oaks Volunteer Ambulance Corps is looking for members of the Glen Oaks, Floral Park, Bellerose, Oakland Gardens, New de Park, L.I.; and North Shore Towers communities to join its volunteer team.

It will provide the necessary training and participants will have access to opportunities for further training and participation.

If you are over 14 and want to help your community, please call 718-347-1637 or visit the corps headquarters at 257-02 Union Tpk. in Floral Park, across from the Glen Oaks Shopping Center.

Members are available after 7 p.m. Sunday to Friday and 9 a.m. to 12 a.m. on Saturday for inquiries and to provide membership applications.

Haiti's Lamothe sues U.S. newspaper

Jennifer Kay
MIAMI (AP) - Haiti's prime minister has sued a Haitian-American week-newspaper for defamation over its reporting on the sale of a telecommunications company acquired by the Haitian government.

In the lawsuit filed Monday in Miami
federal court, Prime Minister Laurent Lamothe and South Florida businessman Patrice Baker said Haiti-Observa-teur's reporting on the sale of Haitel was 'outrageous, scandalous and reminiscent of a tabloid publication.'

The Haitian telecom shut down earlier this year because it couldn't pay its debts. It was then acquired by the Haitian government.

Messages left Wednesday for Leo Joseph, a Haiti-Observateur reporter named in the lawsuit along with the Brooklyn, N.Y.-based newspaper, were not immediately returned.

In an article written in French for Haiti-Observateur's Sept. 12 edition, Joseph said Lamothe has not answered questions about the sale, though the prime minister has "cried 'defamation' accusing Leo Joseph and the weekly of spreading lies against him."

The newspaper has been publishing since 1971 and serves Haiti's large diaspora communities in New York,
Florida, Montreal and the Caribbean.
On its website, the paper says it has a

Prime Minister Laurent Lamothe.

weekly circulation of 75,000.

According to the lawsuit, most of the paper's online readership comes from Florida, which is home to the largest Haitian-American population in the U.S.

"The newspaper spread false information about the prime minister and we are taking legal measures to request that they be retracted or appropriate remedy is given," said Salim Succar, special adviser to Lamothe.

Haiti-Observateur published articles in August and early September that "began to spread false and defamatory statements" about Lamothe's and Baker's roles in Haitel's sale, the lawsuit said.

The lawsuit said that the newspaper falsely and maliciously reported that Lamothe and Baker orchestrated Haitel's sale, and that Lamothe fixed Haitel's $25 million sale price and stands to receive the "lion's share" of the proceeds.

Haiti-Observateur repeated the false and defamatory statements after Lamothe and Baker requested a retrac-tion, according to the lawsuit.

The Haiti-Observateur articles implicate Lamothe and Baker in illegal business practices, racketeering, corruption and conspiracy, which has damaged their reputations in their political and business communities, the lawsuit said.

Lamothe, a former telecommunications executive, took office in May, filling a nearly three-month vacancy after President Michel Martelly's first prime minister resigned after just four months on the job.

Lamothe's lawsuit is not the first time that Martelly's government has accused the Haitian-American media of defamatory reporting.

In January, a Miami law firm representing Martelly sent letters to Orlando-based website Defend Haiti complaining about "false assertions" in its articles about funding for the Haitian government's education initiatives. The letters asked for retractions and threatened legal action if "this smear campaign" continues.

Need for fresh ideas and approaches

opportunity to exchange views on how the Caribbean is navigating the current global economic crisis.

"Downside risks continue to be high, reflecting delayed or insufficient policy action, including in the eurozone and the United States. In addition, growth prospects in emerging market countries have weakened and commodity exporters are vulnerable to declining prices," said Zhu, a former deputy governor of the People's Bank of China.

CDB president Dr. Warren Smith said the Caribbean needs fresh ideas and novel approaches to its future socio-economic development.

"We need private sector and donor agencies at the table. We need to find appropriate solutions. During the talks over the next few days, we will embrace the broader international spectrum," he said.

Newly appointed Trinidad and Tobago Finance Minister Larry Howai argued that the only way out of the financial challenges is for regional governments to "tighten their belts"
and instill fiscal discipline.

Jamaica, which is now seeking to enter into a new Standby Agreement (SBA) with the Washington-based financial institution, said the IMF should recognise the need for flexibility in its adjustment programmes.

An IMF negotiating mission is due in Jamaica on Sept. 25, and Finance Minister Dr. Peter Phillips, who is hoping to conclude the new SBA accord by year end, said overall, Caribbean countries appreciated the effort being made to look at specific effects of the global crisis on small states and to define a particular understanding of the structure of these economies and the implications for adjustment programmes.

"I think this represents an advance in the thinking of the Fund; they have already had a discussion in the Asia-Pacific region where there is another significant aggregation of small states and now on the Caribbean," he said.

"They are proposing to develop a specific policy fund to this from the Fund's point of view and this represents an important development among the international financial institutions. We welcome that," he said, noting that the Caribbean must also play its part to deal with the situation.

"These include our reliance on tourism, the fact that we are in a particular climatic zone and subject to regular climate-related disasters which will have an impact on adjustment, the fact that there are socio-economic conditions, the distribution of wealth and income," he added.

During the closed-door "strictly confidential" meeting, delegates were given firsthand accounts of the economic situation in Latvia and Ireland, with the IMF indicating that both countries "have success stories to tell about economic growth and lowering foreign debt that could be beneficial to the Caribbean region".

At the end of the meeting here, the IMF said that the Caribbean region has important strengths on which it can build, noting that "political stability, strong investor protections, and observance of the rule of law have made it an attractive destination for investment".

A communiqué issued at the end of the meeting said that the regional countries "are working to strengthen their economies" as they gradually recover "after a deep recession".

"Commodity-exporters are benefitting from still-favourable global conditions, but tourism- and services-dependent economies remain adversely affected by the tepid recovery in advanced economies."

Massage ... or something more?

Neighbors fear men pay prostitutes for sex inside Bay Ridge spa

BY WILL BREDDERMAN

A Bay Ridge massage parlor is rubbing neighbors — and its clients — the wrong way, say angry Ridgites who claim the business is actually a house of ill repute.

Residents living on Bay Ridge Avenue between Narrows Avenue and Owls Head Court claim that the masseuses at Blue Ocean Spa practice the dark arts of massage — claiming that the facility's clouded windows, late hours, and all-male clientele is all the proof they need.

"It's odd for a spa," said neighbor Victor Pachwo, who says he watches people coming in and out of Blue Ocean from his window late at night. "It's all men and no women. Isn't it supposed to be the other way around?"

This paper saw several men entering and leaving the spa last week, yet Blue Ocean workers vehemently denied that anything sexual was going on.

"It's all lies," said spa manager Nicole Ree. "We just do massage and acupuncture, nothing sexual."

Pachwo said the spa is usually open until 11 pm, and that its frosted glass storefronts aroused his suspicion shortly after he moved into the area three years ago.

But he's not alone in his assessment: several other residents in his condo building brought up similar concerns at one of their board meetings, he claimed, although they were unsure what to do about it.

Pachwo has a simple solution: shut it down.

"I don't think it's a positive presence on this block," Pachwo. "I'd really rather it wasn't here. We have a lot of kids around here."

His neighbors agreed, claiming that once they saw the spa's facade, they knew the place was up to no good.

"As a retired police officer, I knew right away what's going on there. Experience has taught me," said Daniel Levins, a former Miami cop. "Their clients come down the street, looking this way and that way like they're trying to find something, acting all innocent, then — bam! — they're inside."

The ex-cop also claimed that the girls who work at Blue Ocean are living inside the spa, since he never sees any employees entering or leaving the building.

"At night, they bring the shutters down, and no one comes out," Levins said. "I'm up at 5, I come out, I have my coffee, the shutters go up, and they open the door. And no one goes in or out."

Levin said it's extremely difficult to close a prostitution parlor, so instead of reporting his concerns to the 68th Precinct, he's been complaining to Blue Ocean's landlady Alexandra Lazides.

"Shame on her," Levins said. "I have a hard time believing she doesn't know what's going on here."

Community Board 10 district manager Josephine Beckmann said she has received complaints about the parlor, and had passed them along to the police. The 68th Precinct did not respond to calls for comment.

precisely how the political world and the media will analyze it and this will form the basis as to how the new Democratic party of Brooklyn will form their alliances and loyalty. This election turnout will guide the 2013 citywide candidates in their quest for Williamsburg support."

Neither Lopez nor Olechowski could be reached by press time.

Restler, who had painted himself as a "reformer"

bent on taking down the party boss, has been seen as a harbinger of Lopez's downfall ever since the Assemblyman agreed to step down as party boss.

Olechowski, in turn, has tried to distance himself from Lopez, calling the Assemblyman's alleged actions "reprehensible."

Early in the election season, Restler racked up a number of endorsements, including Rep. Nydia Velazquez (D-Williamsburg), Borough President Markowitz, and state Sen. Daniel Squadron (D-Brooklyn Heights).

Both candidates positioned themselves as agents of change in North Brooklyn, with Restler touting his accomplishments in helping secure parkland and community gardens in the neighborhood. Olechowski positioned himself as a warrior fighting against the forces of gentrification.

Lopez was censured and lost a key Albany committee seat as a result of the sexual harassment allegations, which are currently being investigated by Staten Island District Attorney Dan Donovan.

The absentee ballots won't be tallied before Sept. 19, when Brooklyn's Democratic district leaders vote for a new chairperson, but the Williamsburg Democratic district leader will be there anyway, since his term in office doesn't end until December.

Candidates to succeed Lopez include Canarsie district leader Frank Seddio, a longtime member of the old guard Thomas Jefferson Democratic Club, Brooklyn Heights district leader Jo Anne Simon, and Assemblyman Karim Camara (D-Crown Heights).

community is in the best hands possible," Jeffries said.

Gracefully accepting defeat, Alabi said she enjoyed running for Assembly.

"I am extremely proud of the race we ran, but more importantly, the opportunity to meet so many wonderful people along the way," she said.

Guerrier didn't return calls for comment.

All three raised small sums of money compared to most Assembly campaigns, but said they were more interested in courting district residents rather than special interest groups.

As of the most recent filing, Mosley had raised $47,460 and Alabi had raised $45,285. Guerrier collected just $7,750, but said she did so on purpose.

"My base can't afford to give $100 right off the bat," Guerrier told us in an earlier interview. "I started to feel like I was a bill collector. I can see why some candidates go after the organizations and the special interests."

16 homeowners receive 345G in MAP loans

The funds help families make their mortgage payments and thus avoid foreclosure.

STATEN ISLAND NEWS

Sixteen Staten Island homeowners have received more than $45,000 in loans from the city to prevent foreclosure.

The loans were made available through the mayor's Mortgage Assistance Program, which gives qualified applicants up to $45,000 toward their mortgage payments.

So far, more than $4.5 million in MAP loans have assisted 16 families around the city, including 16 on the Island.

"MAP is indispensable for the Staten Island homeowners," said Joseph Sant of Staten Island Legal Services. "Each time MAP funding is approved for an SLS client, it makes the difference between a family losing their home and saving it."

To be eligible for a MAP loan, the homeowner's household income cannot exceed 45 percent of the Area Median Income — approximately $30,000 per year for a family of four.

The home must also be the primary residence.

To learn more about eligibility for a MAP loan, visit www.cnyem.org/map or call 646-766-0888.

Andy Linton, communications and media coordinator at Borough President Molinaro's office, is the cinematographer, narrator, director and producer of the "The Fresh Kills Story."

Free screening tomorrow of 'Fresh Kills Story'

The 1-hour documentary will be shown at the St. George Theatre with a Q&A session to follow.

By DEBORAH YOUNG

Just the name of the place makes Staten Islanders bristle, and still prompts less-than-pleasant odors to waft in the wind.

Before it was closed more than a decade ago, the world's largest landfill used to waft unpleasant odors into the wind.

In 1985, the Mott City area was saved by a devastating winter storm that killed at least 5,500 people.

The film "The Fresh Kills

Story" to be screened Thursday night at the St. George Theatre, at 7 p.m. tells the story of the 1,000-acre swath of land, detailing the fight to close the former landfill and its transformation into a world-class park.

The newly appointed Commissioner of the city Department of Parks and Recreation, Veronica M. White, will make her first public appearance at the debut of the one-hour documentary produced by the office of Borough President James P. Molinaro.

"It is quite fitting, since this film chronicles the transformation of the landfill into the city's largest park in the Borough of Parks."

"I would like to thank the Commissioners for joining us in this important film," Molinaro said.

More on the web

For a look at "The Fresh Kills Story," go to nyslive.com/video.

The screening is free and open to the public. Doors open at 6:30 p.m.

The film includes historic footage from when Fresh Kills was operational, chronicles the efforts of Staten Island residents and government leaders to shut it down, and showcases the future of a park almost three times the size of Central Park, with active and passive recreation opportunities, wind and solar energy facilities, and roadways open to the public.

"Freshkills Park will be one of New York City's most impressive achievements in ecological restoration and environmental sustainability," said Parks Commissioner White. "Thanks to the hard work and determination of Staten Island's elected officials, when future generations visit the park they will find it hard to imagine it was ever a landfill."

A question-and-answer session with a panel comprised of those who were instrumental in the landfill's closure, in addition to those who are currently responsible for transforming Fresh Kills into a park, will be held after the documentary screening.

Included on the panel are Borough President Molinaro and members of his staff, City Councilmembers James Oddo (R-Mid Island/Brooklyn) and Vincent Ignitto (R-South Shore), Freshkills Park Administrator Eloise Hirsch, Staten Island Advance Editor Bryan Lalin, and John Schumko, host of the NY1 News program "The Call."

Dedicated physician to be honored at hospital golf outing

STATEN ISLAND ADVANCE

Staten Island University Hospital will honor family doctor Louis Gianetto at its Golf and Tennis Classic Monday, Sept. 24, at the Richmond County Country Club, Dongan Hills. A limited number of openings are still available.

Board certified in family practice and geriatrics, Dr. Gianetto has treated generations of families around the borough — from his West Brighton office on Castleton Avenue to the old Staten Island Hospital, later Staten Island University Hospital, and University Physicians Group on Forest Avenue in West Brighton. He retired in July of this year at age 85.

The golf outing will begin with morning registration at 6 a.m. for a 9 a.m. shotgun start. Afternoon golf and tennis will begin with a 1 p.m. registration, followed by a luncheon and a 1:30 p.m. shotgun start for golf and a 3 p.m. tennis tournament.

A reception at 4 p.m. will be followed by dinner. Cost of play and dinner for each golfer is $450; tennis is $250. Dinner only is $50.

Golf foursome packages inclusive of sponsor signage, special recognition at the dinner program and a tee sign is $2,500. Journal and sponsorship opportunities range from $500 to $25,000. Email journal messages to: SIUHCClassic@SIUH.edu, or phone 718-482-6933.

Co-chairs for golf are: Dr. Theodore Strange and his wife Valerie, and Ed Mandrik, founder and CEO of the Herve-A-Heart Foundation; and tennis chair is Dr. Paul Albano.

But the state Supreme Court put one of these components in jeopardy with an August ruling that the payroll tax — which brings in 34 cents for every $100 worth of payroll from businesses in the 12 counties the MTA serves, to the tune of $1.5 billion annually — is unconstitutional. The MTA vowed to appeal.

If the ruling stands, it has been reported that a mix of service cuts and fare hikes would be needed to cover the loss. Public hearings will be held in November before the MTA board of directors votes on the package of increases in December.

Cappelli has started in the past that he's keeping an open mind but that rules out support for any proposal to increase the Verizon-Narrows Bridge toll.

The MTA says it's being bled white by ballooning pension and health care costs, the expensive-to-audit Metrolink, and the MTA's "fragile stability" as relying on "four key components."
