

Helping Inmates Prepare for 'Green' Future

As families looked on, 36 inmates received certificates for successfully completing the Working I.T. Out training course at a graduation ceremony on Sept. 22 at the EMTC Visit House.

Working I.T. Out, which is run in partnership with STRIVE International, helps inmates acquire skills for employment in the green-technology sector.

The graduates and guests were welcomed by Deputy Commissioner James Walsh. Leaders of STRIVE promised to provide support to help participants get jobs and stay out of jail.

In an emotional moment, an inmate thanked his mom and dad, who were sitting in the audience, "for not giving up on me after I made a bad mistake."
