

The Future of Tillary Street and the Brooklyn Bridge Gateway

Tillary Street plays a key role in the transportation network of Downtown Brooklyn, providing linkages for pedestrians, motorists, and cyclists alike, and its intersection with Adams Street is the gateway to the Brooklyn Bridge. Tillary Street and portions of Adams Street are scheduled for total reconstruction in 2012. This provides an opportunity to reconceptualize how this roadway works for all of its users. It is not too early to plan for how this street can look and function in the future.

Following up on a successful public workshop held in January, New York City Department of Transportation (NYCDOT) will hold another forum in order to present conceptual designs for the corridor that were developed with input that was received.

Public Meeting # 2

Tuesday, June 23, 2009 from 6:30 - 8:00 PM
at Brooklyn Borough Hall
209 Joralemon Street

The meeting will include:

Review of Issues and Suggestions from January Workshop
Presentation of Conceptual Designs by NYCDOT Staff
Opportunities for Additional Input

Please RSVP by June 17th to balexander@dot.nyc.gov or 718-222-7259

Subway Directions

Take the 2, 3, 4, 5 or R line to Court Street/Borough Hall

For more information please visit the NYCDOT Website at: www.nyc.gov/dot

