LL84: Benchmarking

The first step to making a building more efficient and how its usage compares with that of similar buildings is to benchmark. The Green Buildings Plan (GGBP) requires owners of large buildings to benchmark their energy and water consumption in a process called benchmarking. Benchmarking standardizes this process and captures information that can be used to improve a building. The City's (EPA) free online benchmarking tool allows building owners and potential buyers a better understanding of a building's energy and water consumption, eventually shifting the market towards more performing buildings.

In summary, LL84's annual benchmarking process requires building owners to:

1. Determine if a building needs to be benchmarked.
2. Measure the building's energy and water usage.
3. Submit usage data online annually to the City.

Please review this section to learn more about benchmarking, the benchmarking process, how to benchmark, benchmarking scores and reports.

Template Instructions

The following instructions were provided by Local Law 84 (Benchmarking) (City of New York) for using NYC LL84 Benchmarking 2012 Compliance Report:

This custom reporting template must be used for compliance with New York City's benchmarking law, Local Law 84.

STEP 1: Enter all Energy and Water Data for Your Property(ies)

- Enter all data from January 1 - December 31, 2012 for each property covered by the law to ensure compliance. This includes the annual energy data and, if your building is eligible, the annual water consumption data.

STEP 2: Identify Your Property(ies) MANDATORY!

- Failure to accurately identify all of your buildings with their BBLs and BINs may result in the issuance of violations for non-compliance.

For each building being benchmarked, you must complete A and B below:

A) Enter the building's borough, block and lot number (BBL) in the "Notes" field, written in the following ten-digit format:

- The first digit is the borough number. Borough numbers are as follows:
Manhattan = 1; Bronx = 2; Brooklyn = 3; Queens = 4; Staten Island = 5
- The next five digits are the block number. If the block is less than five digits, enter zeros before the actual block number so there are five digits in total. (For example: block number 845 would be entered as 00845)
- The last four digits are the lot number. If the lot is less than four digits, enter zeros before the actual lot number so there are four digits in total. (For example: lot number 27 would be entered as 0027)

OK

Step 4 – Review Before Release

• After you click “ok,” you will see the 2012 report screen, but before you click ‘Release Data’, do the following checks for all properties:

1. “Notes” column has your correct
2. 10-digit Borough Block and Lot (BBL)
3. “Unique Building Identifier” has your correct 7-digit Building Identification Number(s) (BIN)
4. REVIEW all benchmarking input data for your building(s) and make sure it was entered accurately
5. If you find that you need to edit your data, simply click “My Portfolio” at the top left hand of the screen (under the “ENERGY STAR” logo)
