STATEMENT OF NEED

Patient safety has been at the forefront of healthcare discussion for over a decade. Efforts by healthcare organizations and governing bodies at local, state and national levels have focused on improving patient care and reducing medical errors. Physician leaders of the North Bronx Healthcare Network agree that patient safety is imperative at our hospitals. The Lorraine Tregde Conference was conceived as an important educational vehicle in the extensive efforts to embrace a culture in which safety is a priority. The conference has become an annual event which provides ongoing education to organization leaders and front-line staff in multiple disciplines on the importance of safe, high quality patient care.

INTENDED AUDIENCE

Attending physicians, physician leadership, nurses, nursing leadership, executive leadership, hospital safety officers, and quality management leadership.

GOALS

This CME activity is designed to teach that patient safety is essential in providing quality care. Tools and strategies for providing safe care and promoting a culture of safety within healthcare organizations will be discussed.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the end of the Patient Safety Leadership Conference you will be better able to:

1. Identify some “must-do” strategies for success in providing safe patient care in the hospitals of the future.
2. Describe best practices which support safer care.
3. Explain the value of good communication and coordination as imperatives for the safe transition of patients between levels of care.
4. Recognize the voice of the patient as well as that of the clinician in efforts to reduce HAIs and prevent adverse events.
5. List the five CMS clinical domains that are the focus of the NYS Partnership for Patients, and describe various initiatives within these domains to support hospital-sponsored safety improvements.

Lorraine Tregde - Honoring A Legacy

Ms. Tregde served for 15 years as a Senior Executive with the NYC Health & Hospitals Corporation, which included appointments as Executive Director for seven major public hospitals, Jacobi and NCBH among them. Following her tenure with the HHC, Ms. Tregde served as Founding Director of the Medical Gateways Program for Cathedral High School, NYC.

Ms. Tregde's professional influence extended far beyond the boundaries of New York City. As a member of the Executive Committee and later as Chair of the National Association of Public Hospitals, she participated in numerous public hearings to promote the concept of the "safety net" hospital as a platform on the subject of national health reform. She developed a sister-city exchange program between public hospitals in New York City and Paris, and another exchange program with three hospitals in Albania. She was a staunch advocate for the United Nation's Healthy Babies, Healthy Mothers program.

A firm believer in sharing expertise with others, Ms. Tregde created two executive development programs: a national Fellows Program with the NAPH, and a specialized program for HHC administrators with the NYU Wagner School of Public Service. She also served as an adjunct professor and Director of Wagner's Residency Program. Through these programs, Ms. Tregde selflessly shared her experience and expertise with hundreds of professionals who now serve with distinction in healthcare leadership positions around the country.
