

Proposal for Temporary Installation – Gillie and Marc at Kimlau Square

Artist(s): Gillie and Marc
Sponsor: The Chinatown Partnership
Title: He Thought This was Going to be a Year of Good Fortune
Site: Kimlau Square, Manhattan
Dates: February 14, 2018 – January 2018
Material: Bronze
Dimensions: 71" H x 47" L x 61" W
Weight: 900 lbs

Summary of project:

The Chinatown Partnership has commissioned Gillie and Marc to create a Dogman sculpture in honor of The Year of the Dog. In Chinese tradition, when a dog enters a home it symbolizes the coming of good fortune. The Dogman will bring good fortune to all for the New Year!

The Dogman sculpture will be holding a beautiful red apple. Since 3 is a lucky number during the Year of the Dog, the apple will feature 3 leaves. In Chinese, the word for an apple is ping, the homonym of which is peace. Especially in today's day and age, the apple symbolizing peace holds particular significance, and will help spread the message of diversity and acceptance for all beings.

Proposed Sculpture

Proposed Site

Kimlau Square