FDNY is offering FREE CPR courses. www.nyc.gov/service The FDNY has partnered with NYC Service and New York Sports Clubs (NYSC) to launch FDNY CPR to Go, a program that offers free CPR classes at gym locations throughout the five boroughs. Participants in every class learn basic CPR skills from a member of the FDNY Emergency Medical Service. Volunteers for the class follow along using the CPR Anytime Personal Learning Kit, which features an instructional DVD and an inflatable mannequin. All participants are asked to take home the kit and pledge to show five of their family members and friends how to perform CPR. In addition, if your organization wants to sponsor a training, the FDNY will come to your site and do the training.

The New York City Department of City Planning is seeking public comments and suggestions for its mandatory update of the 1992 COMPREHENSIVE WATERFRONT PLAN that must be completed by year end. The agency has scheduled the first citywide public meeting on this topic for Thursday, April 8, 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., at Murry Bergtraum High School, at 411 Pearl Street in Lower Manhattan. The school, accessible from the Chambers Street stop of the J, M and Z trains, is on the triangle between Pearl and Madison streets and Robert F. Wagner Sr. Place.
