Letter from Council Member Laurie A. Cumbo

Salutations,

Many blessings to everyone reading this correspondence. I hope springtime has been treating everyone well! The trees have begun extending their branches and nature is taking its course with many flowers in full bloom. You know that only means one thing: summer is on the way! With that being said, I would like to introduce you to Pulse 35's Summer Youth Resource Guide.

The purpose of this guide, which encompasses District 35 and beyond, is to engage youth of all ages with positive and meaningful activities during the summer months. I feel positive youth development is an important facet in every child's life. They need activities to keep them busy and out of trouble. Our youth need enriching programs in their life that help stimulate their ambition. I'm grateful for every submission included in this guide, seasonal and ongoing. I'm proud to say that the endeavors and wide range of opportunities throughout New York City that are included in this guide are really just the tip of the iceberg. Do me a favor and share this guide to all your family and friends. One of the biggest components of One Brooklyn is assisting one another. Servant leadership is about serving others. I'm pleased to bring you our 2014 Summer Youth Resource Guide.

Yours in Partnership,

Laurie A. Cumbo

The Shadow Box Theatre

Opportunity: Summer 2014 Workshops and Storytelling at The Shadow Box Theatre

Description: Workshops: Children of every age acquire the skills and concepts of the art of storytelling through play-making, as well as creating and performing with puppets. These theatre techniques lead directly to understanding the elements of stories while building vocabulary, oral language, listening, speaking, problem solving and analysis skills in a way that resonates with students throughout their lives.

Storytellings: It's a special treat for everyone when we come to your site with interactive mini-performances in your school auditorium, library, or classroom. Our storyteller and musician demonstrate the art of storytelling through theatre, with puppets, music, movement, fun and laughter -- evoking a world of imagination, while reinforcing essential literacy skills!

Summer Leadership Institute (SLI)

Opportunity: Each summer over 100 teens get paid to work with Groundswell artists over a seven week period to create large-scale public art in their communities. Each project is led by two professional artists.

The artists guide the mural team, usually ten to fifteen youth, through the process of learning mural history, developing a design and painting a mural.

Who can join SLI? Teens & young adult ages 14-24 living in NYC. No artistic experience is necessary, but applicants should be interested in learning art skills & working as a team. Work activities include group discussions, art workshops and research. Much of the work is outdoors, physical, and messy! Students are expected to commit to entire seven week program. Students who have summer school or other commitments that prevent them from doing the required work hours are not eligible.

To apply: Call or email Jules at 718.254.9782 or jules@groundswellmural.org to set up a time to visit our studio for a short interview and to fill out the SYEP application.

Jewish Children's Museum

Opportunity: Exhibitions and Programs

Description: The Jewish Children's Museum provides exhibitions and programs for all children in an educational and entertaining format. Through contemporary technology and a hands-on approach to learning, visitors experience Jewish history, values and traditions in a manner that inspires an increased interest in Jewish culture. Primarily, the Museum serves elementary school-age children and their families, and is a resource and model, nationally and internationally, for interactive education on Jewish themes.

Funded in part by the JPMorgan Chase Foundation, the JCM's Public School Initiative program provides free museum admission to public school students with the goal to help them develop respect and understanding for other cultures and traditions.

Our newest program, "Cultural Connections," introduces students to a colorful array of customs and traditions in the Jewish culture. Experienced museum educators will guide students as they step back in time to explore the Jewish holiday cycle in a quaint, cobblestoned village. Students will shop in a kid-sized Kosher supermarket, press olive oil for the Hanukkah menorah, and crawl through the world's largest challah-bread.

Ifetayo Youth Ensemble (IYE)

Focus: Dance, Music, Theater

Description: Ifetayo Cultural Arts Academy's mission is to support the creative, educational and vocational development of youth of African descent in Flatbush, Brooklyn and surrounding communities. Ifetayo was founded in the spring of 1989 as a six-week series of free modern dance classes for 50 students living in the Flatbush community. It has since grown to encompass six integrated programs that serve over 2,000 students annually through our on-site academic and literacy training, personal skills development, community involvement, cultural heritage classes, and socially responsible artmaking, and an additional 5,000 youth and families throughout the Central Brooklyn community through our affiliated programming and public performances. The organization's name comes from the West African Yoruba word "ifetayo" which means "love is enough for joy" and captures Ifetayo's nurturing approach to empowering youth and redefining community development..

Museum of Chinese in America

Opportunity: MOCAFAMILY: Ink Experiments

Description: In conjunction with MOCA's latest exhibition, Oil & Water: Reinterpreting Ink, MOCA will hold two 1st Saturday workshops for families with children ages 5-13 to explore both the materials used in the pieces on view in MOCA's galleries and their own creative sides. While their work differs tremendously, artists Qiu Deshu, Wei Jia, and Zhang Hongtu all find inspiration from playing with materials, so we'll be taking our lead from them! All workshops allow participants to explore different media, practice basic skills, and create their own works of art. No previous art-making experience is necessary, and all materials are provided.

These workshops are part of MOCA's First Saturday Family Workshop series.

Fee: $10 per person. $8 for all MOCA Dual and Individual Level Members. Free for MOCA Family Level Members and above, children under 2, and Cool Culture families.

Framing the Phrase: Creative Writing in the Galleries

This course invites teens to explore modern and contemporary art and respond to works featured in the museum's permanent collection and special exhibition Italian Futurism, 1909-1944: Reconstructing the Universe through in-depth group conversations, sketching, and creative writing, facilitated by a professional writer and educator. The focus will be on poetry and prose responses, enhanced by reading assignments of writings inspired by art. The students will develop a portfolio of drawings, creative writing, and collage over the course of six sessions. Students will pick one or two of their writing entries to revise and "publish" in a chapbook. On the final day of the course, family and friends are invited to the Guggenheim Museum for a private gallery tour and a reading in our New Media Theater, featuring work written by the teens.

Educator Bio: Jackie Delamatre is a museum educator at the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, the Museum of Modern Art, and the Whitney Museum of American Art. She holds a MFA in Fiction Writing from New York University, where she taught fiction writing to undergraduates. Formerly, she was a high school teacher in the New York City public schools.

Dates: August 4, 5, 7, 11, 12, and 14, 1-4pm. Final presentations August 14, 5:30-7pm.
Optional gallery tour for families August 14, 4:30-5:30pm.

Fee: $200, ($175 members). Financial assistance is available upon request.

Who should apply: Teens who love to write, appreciate art, and are inspired by people, places, and ideas. This program promotes the combining of art forms and the development of critical thinking and writing skills in a relaxed environment. Open to students in grades 9-12.
