Greenmarkets Within CB4Q

Eating locally grown food is nothing new. A hundred years ago, over 95% of Americans lived on farms. City dwellers ate food brought by horse and cart from nearby farms. In the 1800s, Brooklyn was the top producing agricultural county in the US. In the 20th century, farms moved west and many local farms were paved over. By the 1970s, New Yorkers complained of brown lettuce and hard tomatoes while local farms went bankrupt. Greenmarket was a natural solution to a two-fold problem: by selling their homegrown crops in New York City, local farms could stay in business and bring fresh food to city neighborhoods. What began with twelve farmers in an empty lot in 1976 has grown into the largest network of its kind in the country, with rigorous "grow-your-own" standards.

CORONA GREENMARKET

This is the newest greenmarket in CB #4Q featuring fruits, vegetables, seafood, and baked goods.

Sponsor: Council on the Environment NYC
Location: Roosevelt Ave. between 103rd St. and 104th St.
Open: Until November 29
Times: Fridays, 8am to 5pm

NY Hall of Science Farmers' Market

This young market was founded in 2007 and features baked goods, fruit, herbs, vegetables, plants, and cut flowers.

Sponsor: Community Markets
Location: 111th St. and 48th Ave., off Corona Ave., Corona, NY
