

NYC Workforce Profile

Congressional District 8 Representative Jerrold Nadler

As authorized by the Workforce Investment Act of 1998 (WIA), the New York City Workforce Investment Board (WIB) is the local federal oversight body for workforce development services for youth and adult populations in New York City. This profile provides a summary of these services in your congressional district for the calendar year 2009.

NYC Workforce System

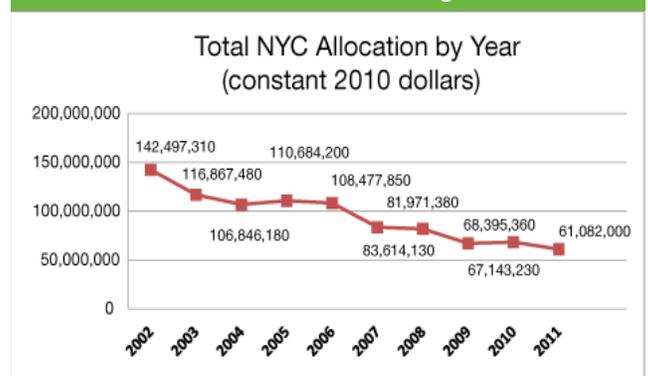

The mission of the WIB is to ensure that the City's workforce development system can deliver the skilled workers that local businesses need to grow, compete, and prosper.

- The WIB, the largest Local Workforce Investment Area (LWIA) in the country, with nearly four million workers across the five boroughs, oversees workforce development programs and policy as administered by the Department of Small Business Services (SBS) and the Department of Youth and Community Development (DYCD).
- The WIB is comprised of members appointed by Mayor Bloomberg including: representatives from local business, educational institutions, labor unions, Community-based organizations (CBOs), and other government agencies.
- Since 2002, WIA funding allocated to New York City has been dramatically reduced by 43% (for FY2011 approx. $61 million), a record low, while adult job placements during the same time have increased from 500 annually in 2004 to over 25,000 annually in 2009.
- The Board is committed to workforce development programming with a business-driven approach to education, training, and careers, which is essential to meet the demands of the local economy.
- Our vision is for New York City to have the nation's leading workforce development system, characterized by innovation, high standards, and a focus on measurable outcomes.

Jobseeker Success Stories

John O'Neill first came to the Upper Manhattan Workforce1 Career Center in the fall of 2009. He was collecting unemployment benefits and searching for employment. Mr. O'Neill, who had a bachelor's degree and established work history, was employed as Catholic school teacher for seven years, prior to being laid off in 2007. At the Career Center he took advantage of the resume workshop, recruitment events and the Advance at Work coaching opportunities. He continued to interview for open job orders through the Career Center and conducted his own job search using skills learned at the Career Center. In the fall of 2009, he secured a job as a cashier at Wal-Mart at a starting salary of $9.50/hour. In 2010, Wal-Mart promoted him to a Training Coordinator position and he now earns $10.40/hour, a 9.47 percent increase over his previous salary.

Jennifer Payano is a senior attending The Bronx, Law, Government and Justice High School. As a WIA participant, she has the opportunity to begin her first work experience at the non-profit organization Dress for Success, where she worked side by side with the Bronx Branch Manager. She has learned office managerial skills and gained leadership qualities, which she feels has made a positive impact on her life. Jennifer states "My favorite part of the job is helping the clients get fitted for suits. It's really hard going back into the workplace for certain people and it's even tougher when they cannot afford a suit." This year the organization honored her with the "Intern of the Year Award."
