

Hi - My name is Lynn Schulman and I am a Democrat running for City Council in the 29th District in Queens.

These are tough times and I know that many people doubt whether their elected officials can make a difference. I share that concern. I'm running for City Council because I am worried that the neighborhoods where my parents grew up and I was raised are disappearing and becoming unaffordable.

My parents were not wealthy, my mom was a substitute schoolteacher and my dad was a cab driver, but they worked hard to provide a better future for me, my sister and my brother. As a member of the Council, I will dedicate myself to making sure that other parents are able to do the same for their children.

I am running to improve education, increase access to healthcare, make housing more affordable, preserve the character of our neighborhoods and provide better services to our seniors.

I also want to deliver services to you in the best way possible. That is why I will create a 24 hour, 7 day a week hotline for constituent concerns, offer extended office hours to accommodate working families, create a dialogue with you via the internet and hold regular Town Hall meetings in every part of the district.

I am proud to have many endorsements in this race, including former Mayor Ed Koch, the Working Families Party, organized labor, the Stonewall Democratic Club and the New York League of Humane Voters, an organization devoted to the protection and humane treatment of animals.

It is my hope that after you've had the opportunity to look at my record, my stand on the issues most important to our community and my list of supporters, that I will be able to count on your vote on Primary Day, September 15th.

Remember this vote is for the future of our neighborhoods and our families.

Thank you.
