

Hello, my name is Eric Ulrich, and this November I will be running for re-election to the New York City Council.

For me, nothing has given me greater pride than the chance to represent my community at City Hall. Together we have made tremendous strides. Each and every day I wake up thankful for knowing that this is the right job for me.

I have always believed that government is supposed to be about public service, not partisanship. After all, there is no Democratic or Republican way of cleaning the streets.

But now more than ever before, the people deserve an independent leader in the City Council. Someone who fights every day for their interests, not just the special interests.

Like all New Yorkers, the residents of my District are experiencing tough economic times. Small businesses are failing, homeowners are struggling to pay their mortgages, and families are finding it harder than ever to simply make ends meet.

To meet these challenges, our City needs an honest and independent fighter who will not be afraid to make the tough decisions that have to be made. When I am returned to office, you can count on me to fight for lower taxes because the last thing we need is to increase the burden on middle and working class families.

Whether it's fighting for better public transportation in our area, smaller class sizes in our schools, or cleaning up graffiti vandalism in our neighborhoods, I believe that every resident of my District deserves a good and decent quality-of-life.

Overall, I remain optimistic about our future because I believe that our best days are still to come.

With your vote, I will work hard to restore opportunity for every New Yorker. Together, I know we will pull through this and I know that our great City will emerge stronger than ever before.

Thank you for listening. God Bless.
