Dear Provider Community:

Recognizing our Social Workers as Solution Seekers

Each March during National Social Work Month, we are proud to acknowledge the dedication, talent and tenacity of our social workers at ACS, our provider partners, and throughout the city.

As an agency with thousands of staff and provider partner staff in the social work profession, our work is embodied in this year's National Association of Social Work theme, "Forging Solutions out of Challenges." Every day social workers lift up the strengths of our children, families and communities, and forge solutions. They help New Yorkers reach their full potential and make our city a better, more equitable place to live.

The contributions social workers make are invaluable. Social workers work tirelessly to make sure that our children are safe and well, partner with parents to provide support in the community, make the connections so our youth can follow their own paths to success, and promote an understanding of the impact of trauma and other stresses on our communities. As creative solution seekers, social workers are leaders across our organizations in positions as diverse as finance, policy, administration and community partnerships.

As social workers help others reach their full potential, it is important that we invest in the professional development and well-being of our social work professionals. I am very pleased that we have launched the ACS Workforce Institute in partnership with CUNY's School of Professional Studies to provide staff with state-of-the-art continuing education opportunities to support career advancement and professionalism in social work. I encourage you to learn more about the Institute and look out for more information on training opportunities.

Please know that while we focus on the contributions of social workers during this month, you always have my support, and my gratitude.

Gladys Carrión, Esq.,
Commissioner

Getting to Permanency: The Practices of High-Performing Child Welfare Agencies

2 p.m. – 3 p.m. EST, June 23

For more than two decades, the Annie E. Casey Foundation has worked with child welfare agencies to test and implement effective child welfare practices and improve outcomes for children and families. How do the most effective agencies make family relationships and permanence the focus of casework? The webinar will feature a close-up look at practices that improve and build family relationships for all children who come to your agency's attention. Stay tuned for registration information. ### NYC to hire 95 LMSWs as part of Mental Health Service Corps

The NYC Mental Health Service Corps (MHSC) is part of ThriveNYC, the mayor's Mental Health Roadmap. The MHSC will vastly increase the number of diverse, qualified mental health clinicians providing evidence-based practices in NYC communities, across various clinical settings. The MHSC comprises mental health professionals (MD/psychiatrist, clinical psychology PhD/PsyD, Master in Social Work) willing to commit to work in high-need communities with limited access to mental health care and seeking to gain clinical experience which, in some cases may support their licensure.

Community-based Social Workers will be oriented, trained, encouraged, and properly supervised to deliver evidence-based practices appropriate to their practice setting. Upon completion of this prestigious period of service, they will have made an important contribution to the mental health of New Yorkers and, depending on the profession, earned the clinical practice and supervision hours necessary to obtain clinical licensure. Clinicians will serve in the MHSC for one to three years, depending upon their discipline and the hours of clinical experience accumulated in one of three service settings.
