from Edit Shkreli: Ah. I don't go often to Stew but I know they have been pretty good. Thanks Debby.

7:51 PM from Yahay Obeid: Is it price gouging if they are making 30% profit ? Had the 99 cent store tell me they are not price gouging if they are making 30% profit. They showed me the receipts from Debby K: They may have it 1 day... and not the next... but you will see it on social media from Debby K: Yahay... they can only do a 10% mark up from Chris Kirka: Everything is gouging if it passes 10%

7:55 PM from Diana Finch: Yes, Diana Finch frm Bronx Park East Assoc agreeing w J Menta's comment. We shut down for NY and the USA, so NY and the USA have to make this shutdown survivable for everyone. The government, especially the federal government, has the resources to support the people through this. They must give it to us and not to Amazon, Shake Shack, billionaire investors, etc.

8:08 PM from Edit Shkreli: Jeremy, would you please read out my question: Existing tests are not accurate. I am assuming that antibody tests will be inaccurate as well. Therefore, how safe can we really feel when the tests do become widely available?

8:09 PM from Edit Shkreli: One of my best friends lives in South Korea. They are not widely tested unlike what the media reports.

8:12 PM from Debby K: Being we wont hear from the reps... can the Reps post info in chat from Dr Vanessa Salcedo: HI Edit, current testing are PCR which pretty accurate but its not as quick and of course a limiting factor is how the sample is collected. Antibody test we are trying to interpret the result what does it mean. We dont know that yet
