

Adult Continuing Education is offering a NO COST CompTIA A+ & CISCO CCNA Training & Job Assistance

CUNY TechWorks and The Borough of Manhattan Community College Center for Continuing Education and Workforce Development, are now offering a No Cost computer training program in Computer Network Support, for qualified participants. As IT jobs continue to grow, the need for people to learn the latest technology and become certified as skilled professionals remain in high demand. To prepare for today's competitive workforce students will go through a series of Career Development workshops in soft skills training, resume preparation and mock interviews. You will meet industry leaders and graduates of our program that will share best practices on how to be successful in the IT field. Upon completion of the course, you will be referred to jobs & students can earn up to 4 college credits towards their Associate's degree.
