United States® Census 2020

THE 2020 CENSUS IS AROUND THE CORNER — AND IT WILL SHAPE NEW YORK CITY'S FUTURE FOR YEARS TO COME.

WHAT'S AT STAKE?

Billions in federal funds for public education and housing, roads and bridges, and more.

The number of seats New York City has in Congress.

Your community. Your voice.

Once every ten years, the United States Census takes a count of every person in the United States. The taking of the census is mandated by the United States Constitution and has occurred every 10 years since 1790.

But the census is so much more than just a count. Census information is used to determine New York City's fair share of $650 billion in federal funds for public education, public housing, infrastructure, and more — as well as the number of seats we have in Congress.

Because so much is at stake, it's critical that New Yorkers stand up and be counted in the 2020 Census.

In the 2010 Census, the city's self-response rate was less than 62%, compared to the national average of 76%.

We need every New Yorker to get involved to ensure that their community is counted next year.

Lost and Found Pets: How can you make it easier to find your lost pet?

Make sure your pets are wearing a valid license at all times (dogs only) and identification or a microchip.

All dogs in New York City must be licensed

- If your dog is not currently licensed, see how you can license your dog.
- If you already have a licensed dog, make sure your contact information is up to date.

If You Find a Lost Pet

If an animal is acting in a threatening or dangerous manner, protect yourself and call 911 immediately. Do not try to handle or physically restrain an aggressive or fearful dog or cat. If an animal appears sick or injured, call 311. Do not try to make physical contact.

If you find a dog that has a New York City dog license tag, use the NYC Dog eLocator to help reunite them with the owner. Enter the 7-digit number on the dog license tag, your name, email or telephone number.

An email will be sent to the dog's registered owner asking them to contact you. An email is also sent to the NYC Department of Health, which will try to contact the owner by telephone or mail.

If the animal has identification, you can also contact the owner directly. Identification comes in many forms, so please check the animal thoroughly for a tag or-tattoo. You can bring an animal to most shelters and veterinary hospitals to scan the animal for a microchip.

If you find a pet (with or without identification), you also can file a report online or bring the animal to a shelter.

If You Lost Your Pet

Your pet may have been brought to an Animal Care & Control (ACC) shelter. You can file a lost pet report, and you should check ACC's website daily for new lost and stray arrivals. If you see an animal that fits the description of your lost pet, you must visit the identified shelter to reclaim your pet.

You may not recognize your pet from the pictures and descriptions posted online. Consider visiting a few shelters to see for yourself if your pet is there. Find out shelter hours and locations.

- Look for your pet right away. Check everywhere, especially places that your pet has been before (for example, parks and neighbors' yards/bushes). Search your neighborhood during the day AND at night.
- Put signs around your neighborhood, in local stores (especially pet stores and grocery stores), and in veterinarians' offices (where allowed) for a 3-mile radius. Your signs should be large enough to be read from 10 feet away.
- Tell your neighbors (including all neighborhood children), your postal carrier and sanitation workers that your pet is missing.
- Visit Petfinder.com to check listings of local shelters and rescue groups in your area. The website will post ads for your lost pet.
- Keep searching for at least a few months. People sometimes find a pet and keep it for a while before taking it to a shelter or abandoning it on the street where they found it. Lost pets have been reunited with their families after long periods of time – don't give up.

Other Tips

Make sure:

- Your dog has a current license tag attached to its collar or halter.
- Your pet always wears their collar or halter and that identification tags are securely attached.
- Identification tags have current information.
- If your pet has a microchip, keep your personal information up to date with the company that services the microchip.

NYC Transit Stations to Receive $5.5 Billion in Accessibility Improvements Under Proposed 2020-2024 Capital Plan
First 48 Stations Identified with Community Input; Remaining 22 Stations to be Announced Prior to Approval Vote by Capital Program Review Board

Work at Four Stations to be accelerated into Current Capital Plan

Proposal Delivers on NYC Transit's Accessibility Goals of Putting Customers No More than 2 Stations from an Accessible Station

The Metropolitan Transportation Authority (MTA) today announced the first 48 New York City Transit stations that will be made fully ADA accessible under the proposed 2020-2024 Capital Plan that will significantly expand accessibility across the subway system and provide access to all customers. Recommendations for the additional 22 stations that will also receive accessibility improvements under the next capital plan will be subject to objective criteria, including which stations can be modified in the most efficient manner on the shortest timeline with minimal disruption to service, and public engagement with local stakeholders.

"These 48 stations are a terrific first step and help get us closer than ever to achieving systemwide accessibility that all New Yorkers deserve," said MTA NYC Transit President Andy Byford. "We look forward to hearing from our customers and the community as we work to identify the additional 22 stations."

"We are committed to expanding accessibility and the proposed investment in the next capital plan is a massive boost to our efforts," said Alex Elegudin, NYC Transit's Senior Advisor for Systemwide Accessibility. "We worked collaboratively with communities across the city to identify these stations where our resources can be put to use to benefit the largest number of customers."

Accelerating accessibility is one of NYC Transit's top priorities, which established the goal of making 50 subway stations fully accessible so that customers would be no farther than two stops from an accessible station by end of the next capital plan. That standard set the parameter in prioritizing the initial 48 stations identified under the 2020-2024 Capital Plan.

Other factors that were taken into consideration included major transfer stations and station complexes, ridership, demographics, and technical and geographic issues that would affect costs and constructability. The selection process was driven by extensive community input, including public engagement events, outreach to advocates and community groups, as well as feedback from thousands of elected officials, advocates and customers with disabilities. Similar outreach will be conducted to identify the next 22 stations, which will be announced prior to the MTA Capital Program Review Board vote on the entire Capital Plan proposal.

New York City subway stations, many of which were built nearly a century ago and predate the Americans with Disabilities Act, were built in densely populated areas that have since been further developed. Technical and geographic issues included evaluations of the area immediately surrounding each station under consideration, such as any need to move utilities, access provided by third parties, acquisition or real estate needs, sidewalk clearances, sidewalk curb depths, clearance within each station on platforms and for machinery or equipment required for the accessibility.

Four of the 48 stations will be fast-tracked for completion by being accelerated into the current 2015-2019 Capital Plan so that project development and construction can begin as soon as possible. The asterisk* denotes stations that are being accelerated into the 2015-2019 Capital Plan.

DEPARTMENT OF SANITATION

Adopt-a-Basket Program

The NYC Department of Sanitation keeps New York City healthy, safe and clean – and New Yorkers, businesses and organizations can partner with DSNY by adopting a litter basket! Volunteers in our Adopt-a-Basket Program help protect our health and quality of life by keeping many of the City's 23,000+ litter baskets from overflowing.

Why Volunteer?

Litter Baskets in busy commercial corridors are sometimes filled quickly. Unfortunately, overflowing garbage can make its way to our streets, waterways and shores. Clean sidewalks are also better for our neighborhoods – and businesses.

Participants can highlight that they're doing their share for their community! The Department presents all participants with a Certificate of Appreciation, which can be put on display.

How Do I Help?

Sanitation provides a regular supply of free plastic liners, a collection schedule, work gloves, a dust bin and broom.

To help, monitor your litter baskets; when they're three-quarters full, remove the used plastic liners, tie them, leave them next to the basket and insert a new liner. If you run out of plastic liners before your next delivery, just call 311 to request more.

Sponsor a Basket, Too!

To reduce litter and improve our streetscape, sponsors purchase deluxe, heavier-duty litter baskets – which Sanitation teams regularly empty.

In the Sponsor-a-Basket Program, businesses, organizations and New Yorkers supply pre-approved baskets to replace the City's standard design. These higher-end baskets include a logo or name to highlight the sponsor's commitment to maintaining the community's quality of life. (Of course, you can sponsor and adopt a basket, too!)

GARDEN EVENTS

Select NYRP gardens are available for your next event.

New York Restoration Project's community gardens are more than pretty green oases: they are community hubs. Each gardening season (April through October) community members and NYRP hold hundreds of events in our community gardens and you can too! Host public events, such as community celebrations, educational workshops, or other public programs. There is no cost to use the space, for community members and non-commercial entities, but gardens must remain open and accessible to the public at all times.

Garden events are driven by the community. Community members can celebrate milestones in many of our gardens, by completing the Community Events form.

Or they can work with us to organize events and activities. Through the Community Grant Program, New York Restoration Project and community gardeners, neighbors and partners can work together to bring programming into the gardens. Through the Grant Program, the community can:

Equipment loan, where NYRP will loan you event equipment for a limited time.

Request funding to bring a program or activity to a garden.

Grants are of up to $500 per event/ project. (Maximum of $1,000 per group)
