Description: Pre-mix beverage dispensers or bubblers. Each unit is one or more clear plastic bowls mounted to a base. The base houses the refrigeration and electrical components. There is a formed dome in the top of the base that is in contact with the product, a beverage, through a hole in the bowl. This beverage, generally a powder and water, is mixed before being placed into the bowl or bowls. In operation, the beverage is circulated by a magnetically-coupled impeller either by spray or agitation. Dispensing of the product is by gravity, directly into a cup, as the handle is pressed. A whipper unit adds a high-speed blending chamber through which the product passes as the unit dispenses. Its actuation is automatically controlled by the dispense handle.
