The Mayor's Office of Equity builds on the successful work of the Taskforce on Racial Inclusion and Equity, which broke down silos across city agencies to drive resources and prioritize the communities hardest-hit by the pandemic. The office will bring city agencies together around a shared vision of equity and build lasting change through the following domains: Structural reforms, programs and initiatives, culture and practice, external engagement, and public policy. The Office of Equity has an intersectional focus and is comprised of the Commission on Gender Equity, Young Men's Initiative, Unity Project, Racial Justice Commission, Taskforce on Racial Inclusion Equity, and Pay Equity Cabinet.

Created in 1979 by mayoral executive order and established as a charter agency in 1988, OATH is the City's independent administrative law court and is authorized to conduct adjudicatory hearings for all agencies of the City. The Mayor appoints the Chief Administrative Law Judge. Administrative Law Judges are appointed by the Chief Administrative Law Judge to five-year terms. Administrative Law Judges (ALJ) preside over the proceedings at OATH's Trials Division. The OATH Trials Division conducts trials on complex administrative matters, such as civil servant disciplinary cases, contract disputes, zoning issues, car seizures by the police, and human rights and discrimination cases.

City enforcement agencies that issue summonses or notices for alleged violations of the City's rules and regulations file their summonses at the OATH Hearings Division. OATH Hearing Officers preside over OATH hearings.

OATH also offers mediation services to all City employees to help resolve workplace disputes in a safe, confidential, and efficient manner at its Center for Creative Conflict Resolution (CCCR) and OATH provides resources, support and training for all City and State hearing officers and ALJ's through its Administrative Judicial Institute.

The Administration for Children's Services (ACS) is the City agency responsible for child welfare, early care and education, and juvenile justice services. ACS strives to protect, support, and promote the safety and well-being of the children, youth, and families of New York City. ACS investigates approximately 55,000 allegations of child abuse and maltreatment annually; it offers preventive services to families allowing them to remain safely together, when possible; and, it provides a loving, safe, and supportive environment to children who come into foster care. ACS also administers the largest publicly-funded early care and education system in the country, serving over 100,000 children; to ensure that the City's youngest residents receive lessons and skills to prepare them for success in school and beyond. In addition, ACS oversees an array of services and programs for youth at every stage of the juvenile justice process. The agency works to promote services that strengthen family connections, keep youth engaged in their communities, and ensure that the young people continue to make educational and other developmental progress while in the juvenile justice system.

The Department of City Planning (DCP) plans for the strategic growth and development of the City through ground-up planning with communities, the development of land use policies and zoning regulations. To help promote a more equitable New York City, DCP uses zoning tools to encourage housing production and affordability, support resilient and sustainable communities, foster economic development and, through contributions to the preparation of the City's 10-year Capital Strategy, helps coordinate investments in infrastructure and services.

In addition, DCP supports the City Planning Commission in its annual review of approximately 450 land use applications for a variety of discretionary approvals. DCP assists both government agencies and the public by advising on strategic and capital planning and providing policy analysis, technical assistance and data relating to housing, transportation, community facilities, demography, zoning, urban design, waterfront areas and public open space.

Community Boards are local representative bodies. Each of the 59 Community Boards is comprised of up to 50 unsalaried members, appointed by the Borough President in consultation with the City Council Members who represent any part of the Board district. The Boards play an advisory role in zoning and other land-use issues, in community planning, in the city budget process, and in the coordination of municipal services. Any person with a residence, business, professional or other significant interest in a given area is eligible for appointment to the Community Board serving that area. Each Board hires a full time District Manager and other staff to run a district office that receives and works to resolve residents' service delivery problems.

New York City Economic Development Corporation's mission is to encourage economic growth throughout the five boroughs of New York City by strengthening the City's competitive position and facilitating investments that build capacity, create jobs, generate economic opportunity and improve quality of life.

New York City Economic Development Corporation (NYCEDC) is the City's primary vehicle for promoting economic growth, stimulating investment and broadening the revenue and employment base through development of real estate, administration of financing tools, oversight of transportation and infrastructure projects, management of the City's rail freight lines, food markets, and planning, development and management of waterfront properties. NYCEDC promotes the City's central business districts, conducts planning and feasibility studies, performs financial analyses, guides projects through necessary public approvals and packages City programs and incentives. When appropriate NYCEDC sells and leases vacant City-owned property throughout the five boroughs. NYCEDC also administers the New York City Industrial Development Agency (NYCIDA) and Capital Resource Corporation (CRC), which authorize tax exempt financing for industrial companies and not for profit organizations that are expanding or improving services in New York City.

The New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) protects public health and the environment by supplying clean drinking water, collecting and treating wastewater, and reducing air, noise, and hazardous substances pollution. DEP is an agency of nearly 6,000 employees that manage and conserve the City's water supply; distribute more than one billion gallons of clean drinking water each day to nine million New Yorkers and collect wastewater through a vast underground network of pipes, regulators, and pumping stations; and treat the 1.2 billion gallons of wastewater that New Yorkers produce each day in a way that protects the quality of New York Harbor. To achieve these mandates, DEP oversees one of the largest capital construction programs in the region. As the City agency responsible for New York City's environment, DEP also regulates air quality, hazardous waste, and critical quality of life issues, including noise.

Many City-owned lands west of Hudson are open to the public without a DEP Access Permit for fishing, hiking, hunting and trapping. These lands will be designated by "Public Access Area" signs. Lands east of Hudson and around reservoirs designated "entry by permit" signs require a free DEP Access Permit. An additional Boat Tag is required for fishing by boat on the reservoirs. All boats placed on City reservoirs must be steam cleaned by DEP or DEP-approved vendors. Information and Access Permit applications are available online, see above web site, by calling the DEP Access Permit office, or at DEP Offices throughout the watershed. Applications are also available at bait and tackle shops and town halls throughout the watershed and at DEP Offices in Queens and Manhattan.

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT PRACTICES COMMISSION (EEPC)

253 Broadway, Suite 602, New York, NY 10007

(212) 615-8939

Fax (212) 676-2724

nyc.gov/eepc

Created by the 1989 amendment to the New York City Charter, the Equal Employment Practices Commission (EEPC) is an independent, non-mayoral entity empowered to audit, evaluate, and monitor the City of New York's employment programs, practices, policies, and procedures to ensure that municipal entities, and the City as an employer, maintain a properly structured and efficiently administered affirmative employment program of equal opportunity for minority group members and women employed by, or seeking employment with, City government. Agencies and entities within the EEPC's jurisdiction are those that are funded in whole or in part by the City treasury, those in which the majority of the board members are appointed by the Mayor, and those in which the majority of the board members serve by virtue of being City officers.

Chapter 36 of the New York City Charter authorizes the EEPC to ensure compliance with city, state and federal anti-discrimination laws, and affirmative programs adopted by the City of New York to promote effective equal opportunity in City employment. The EEPC has a duty to review the standards, procedures, and programs established by the Department of Citywide Administrative Services to ensure fair and effective equal employment opportunity for City entities, and to review the affirmative employment plan of each municipal entity and provide recommendations for improvement. The EEPC audits, reviews, evaluates, and monitors City agencies' and entities' employment practices, policies, procedures, and programs at least once every four years. The EEPC advises and assists municipal entities in their efforts to establish affirmative plans, measures, and programs to provide, and educate employees, about, equal employment opportunities; implement and maintain effective employment practices that are non-discriminatory; and utilize discrimination complaint investigation procedures that conform to federal, state, and local laws, regulations, policies, and procedures. The EEPC is also empowered to conduct hearings, establish advisory committees, and make legislative, policy, and budgetary recommendations to the Mayor, the City Council, the Department of Citywide Administrative Services, and any other City agency or entity to ensure equal employment opportunities for those who are employed by, or seek employment with, New York City government.

The New York City Charter assigns an EEP Board of five per diem Commissioners, who serve in staggered four-year terms. The EEP Board of Commissioners is comprised of two appointees each from the Mayor and City Council, and a Chairperson who is appointed jointly by the Mayor and Speaker of the Council. This arrangement facilitates the EEP's exercise of jurisdiction over the employment practices of mayoral and non-mayoral agencies, as well as the offices of elected officials and political appointees. EEP Board members serve until the appointment of a successor.

GrowNYC (formerly Council on the Environment of New York City), is a 501c3 non-profit that improves New York City's quality of life through environmental programs that transform communities block by block and empower all New Yorkers to secure a clean and healthy environment for future generations.

GrowNYC achieves its mission through the following projects and programs: Greenmarket, a network of more than 50 farmers markets throughout the city, youth-operated farm stands and other food access programs; Open Space Greening, which creates and rejuvenates community gardens and school gardens via volunteer days, an annual plant sale, mini-grants, technical assistance and our Grow Truck, a tool loan / plant delivery resource; Environmental Education, which offers hands-on projects in the areas of conservation, energy, nutrition and recycling; the Office of Recycling Outreach and Education, which promotes recycling and waste prevention with recycling resources, training and free events like Stop 'N' Swaps and regular textile and food scraps collections.

The New York City Commission on Human Rights (CHR) is a city agency charged with enforcing the New York City Human Rights Law (NYCHRL), one of the most comprehensive civil rights laws in the country.

The NYCHRL prohibits discrimination in employment, housing and public accommodations based on race, color, creed, age, national origin, alienage or citizenship status, gender (including gender identity and sexual harassment), sexual orientation, disability, pregnancy, marital status, and partnership status. Additional employment protections prohibit discrimination based on credit history, unemployment status, arrest or conviction record and status as a victim of domestic violence, stalking and sex offences. Additional housing protections prohibit discrimination based on lawful occupation, family status, and any lawful source of income (including housing subsidies). Retaliation, discriminatory harassment, and bias-based harassment, (including cyber bullying), are also prohibited under the law, in addition to profiling by law enforcement.

The New York City Department of Investigation (DOI) is the City's Inspector General, with independent oversight of City government, including each mayoral agency, City vendors, and an array of boards and commissions. Our investigations may involve any agency, officer, elected official or employee of the City, as well as those who do business with or receive benefits from the City. We are one of the oldest law enforcement agencies in the country and an international leader in the effort to combat corruption in public institutions.

The agency is imbued with unique powers that support its independence and fact-finding mission, including the power to issue subpoenas and take testimony under oath. For more than 140 years, DOI has been the City's anti-corruption watchdog, protecting against corruption, fraud, waste, malfeasance and misconduct and bringing an in-depth understanding of City processes and operations to the investigations it conducts.

DOI's strategy attacks corruption comprehensively through systemic investigations that lead to high-impact arrests, preventive internal controls and operational reforms that improve the way the City runs. Visitors to this website can view our public reports and releases, read about our history, and better understand DOI's distinct role in City government.

NYC.gov/parks

The Department of Parks Recreation, continued by Local Law No. 7 of 1976, is the successor agency to the Parks, Recreation and Cultural Affairs Administration (1968) and the city-wide Department of Parks (1934). Prior to the tenure of Commissioner Robert Moses (1934-60), the city's parks were under the jurisdiction of five borough park commissioners.

The agency's principal mission is to assure that the parks, beaches, playgrounds, stadia, marinas, recreation facilities, gardens, malls, squares and public spaces of the City of New York are clean, safe and attractive for the health and enjoyment of the people. As of August 31, 2020, there were approximately 30,000 acres of City parkland.

Parks is responsible for street trees, park flora and fauna, community gardens, historic houses, statues and monuments, open space, conservation and nature study. It develops management and restoration policy to protect and enhance the City's wetlands, woodlands and meadows. It conducts activities in athletics, physical fitness, environmental education, visual and performing arts and crafts. Special programs are provided for senior citizens, teenagers, pre-schoolers, the disabled and the homeless (Charter, sec. 533).

The Commissioner of Parks & Recreation is a member, in most cases ex-officio, of the Boards of Directors, Trustees or Managers of the following agencies or institutions: State: New York State Park, Recreation and Historic Preservation Commission for the City of New York, Hudson River Valley Greenway; State-Municipal: Hudson River Park Trust; Municipal: City Parks Foundation, Historic House Trust of New York City, NYC Soil and Water Conservation District; Bronx; NYZS/Wildlife Conservation Society (Bronx Zoo), New York Botanical Garden, Wave Hill, Friends of Van Cortlandt Park; Brooklyn: Brooklyn Botanic Garden, Prospect Park Alliance; Manhattan: American Museum of Natural History, Big Apple Circus, Bryant Park Restoration Corporation, Central Park Conservancy, Gracie Mansion Conservancy, Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, Metropolitan Museum of Art, Museum of the City of New York, Riverside Park Fund; Queens: Alley Pond Environmental Center, New York Hall of Science, Queens Botanical Garden, Queens County Farm Museum, Queens Museum of Art, Southern Queens Park Association; Staten Island: Alice Austen House, Greenbelt Conservancy, Snug Harbor Cultural Center, S.I. Botanical Garden, S.I. Children's Museum, S. I. Historical Society, S.I. Zoological Society.

The Department of Records and Information Services was made a Charter agency in 1977. Section 3003 of the Charter designates the Commissioner as the chief archivist of the City, and as the chief reference and research librarian and public records officer for the Mayor, Borough Presidents, and the Council. The Charter consolidated responsibility for the organization and retrieval of records, reports and archival documents produced by past and present City government offices. The Municipal Archives appraises, accessions, classifies, arranges and makes available for research irreplaceable historical records of New York City government. The Municipal Records Management Division ensures that records at all City agencies are retained for designated periods of time and disposed of properly.

DORIS develops uniform standards and procedures to assist City agencies in managing their records. The Municipal Library provides information drawn from its collections of government publications and is the depository for all official reports and studies published electronically by New York City departments, commissions and divisions.

THE ADMINISTRATIVE BOARD OF THE COURTS

All courts in New York City are part of the state Unified Court System and function under the administrative supervision of the Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, who is also the Chief Judge of the State. The Chief Judge appoints a Chief Administrator of the Courts (who is called the Chief Administrative Judge of the Courts if the appointee is a judge) with the advice and consent of the Administrative Board of the Courts. The Chief Administrator, on behalf of the Chief Judge, supervises the administration and operation of the trial courts and directs the Office of Court Administration (OCA). The Chief Judge establishes statewide administrative standards and policies after consultation with the Administrative Board and promulgates them after approval by the Court of Appeals.
