This guide gives important information about requesting an alternate test date because of religious observance or a special test accommodation for disability, claiming Veterans' or Legacy credit, and notifying DCAS of a change in your mailing address. Follow all instructions on the Special Circumstances Guide that pertain to you when you complete your "Application for Examination."

REQUIRED INFORMATION:

Application for Examination: Follow the online instructions, including those relating to the payment of fee and, if applicable, those found in the Special Circumstances Guide.

THE TEST:

The multiple-choice test will be given at a computer terminal. Your score on this test will be used to determine your place on an eligible list. You must achieve a score of at least 70% to pass the test. The multiple-choice test is designed to assess the extent to which candidates have certain abilities determined to be important to the performance of the tasks of a Police Officer.

Certain questions may need to be answered on the basis of documents or other information supplied to the candidates on the date of the multiple-choice exam. The multiple-choice test may include questions requiring the use of any of the following abilities:

Deductive Reasoning: applying general rules to specific problems and coming up with logical answers. It involves deciding if an answer makes sense. Example: this ability may be used by a Police Officer when determining the appropriate dispatch code based on the situation.

Inductive Reasoning: combining separate pieces of information, or specific answers to problems, to form general rules or conclusions. It involves the ability to think of possible reasons for why things go together. Example: this ability may be used by a Police Officer when investigating specific offenses.

Information Ordering: following correctly a rule or set of rules or actions in a certain order. The rule or set of rules used must be given. The things or actions to be put in order can include numbers, letters, words, pictures, procedures, sentences, and mathematical or logical operations. Example: this ability may be used by a Police Officer when storing found, seized, or recovered property.

Memorization: remembering information such as words, numbers, pictures, and procedures. Pieces of information can be remembered by themselves or with other pieces of information. Example: this ability may be used by a Police Officer when searching for individuals who are wanted for questioning after being presented with an image and description of the individual.

Problem Sensitivity: being able to tell when something is wrong or is likely to go wrong. It includes being able to identify the whole problem as well as elements of the problem. Example: this ability may be used by a Police Officer when apprehending crime suspects or working with crime victims.

Spatial Orientation: determining where you are in relation to the location of some object or where the object is in relation to you. Example: this ability may be used by a Police Officer when navigating throughout their assigned precinct while on foot or in a vehicle.

Visualization: imagining how something would look when it is moved around or when its parts are moved or rearranged. It requires the forming of mental images of how patterns or objects would look after certain changes, such as unfolding or rotation. One has to predict how an object, set of objects, or pattern will appear after the changes have been carried out. Example: this ability may be used by a Police Officer while searching for individuals who are wanted for arrest or questioning when attempting to identify such individuals who are believed to have changed their appearance.

Written Comprehension: understanding sentences and paragraphs written in English. Example: this ability may be used by a Police Officer when reading policies, laws, and other legal documents, as well as reading traffic signs, traffic violation summonses, etc.

Written Expression: using English words or sentences in writing so that others will understand. Example: this ability may be used by a Police Officer when recording information in a memo book or other report(s).

Certain questions may need to be answered on the basis of documents or other information supplied to the candidates on the date of the multiple-choice exam.

VETERANS' PREFERENCE CREDITS AND LEGACY CREDITS: The New York State Civil Service Law provides that additional points can be added to the final score of a candidate who is, or by the date of appointment expects to be, an honorably discharged veteran or disabled veteran of the Armed Forces of the United States; and/or a candidate whose parent or sibling has died while engaged in the discharge of his or her duties as a Police Officer, Firefighter, Emergency Medical Technician, or Paramedic, including as a result of the September 11, 2001 World Trade Center attack or participation that took place in response to the attack. To be eligible for any of these credits, a candidate must achieve a passing score on the examination. Claims for Veterans' Preference Credits or Legacy Credits cannot be made once the eligible list is established. This is only an overview; specific conditions and instructions for requesting Veterans Preference Credits and/or Legacy Credits and additional information are indicated in the Special Circumstances Guide and on the DCAS website at https://www1.nyc.gov/assets/dcas/downloads/pdf/employment/pdf_c_special_circumstances_guide.pdf.

NEW YORK CITY RESIDENCY CREDIT:

Ten points will be added to the multiple-choice test score of those candidates who qualify for New York City Residency Credit. To be eligible for the residency credit, you must have achieved a passing score on the multiple-choice test and must maintain a continuous period of residency in New York City from the date of the multiple-choice test through the date the eligible list is established. You must apply by following the instructions on the date of the multiple-choice test. Merely supplying a New York City address on the Application for this examination does not serve as a request for residency credit. Requests for residency credit cannot be accepted after the eligible list is established. Eligibility for the residency credit will be investigated. As in the case of any intentional misrepresentation of a material fact on an employment application, candidates who claim residency credit and who are determined to have intentionally misrepresented facts concerning City residency shall be disqualified and their names shall be removed from the eligible list, and they may be subject to criminal sanction.

Please be advised that Veterans or active service members of the US Armed Forces, whose DD-214 or other military service records list their Home of Record at the time of entry into active duty as an address within one of the five boroughs—Bronx, Brooklyn, Manhattan, Queens, or Staten Island—may now qualify for NYC Residency Credit. It is important that this Home of Record was established before the candidate applied for the examination.
