Celebrate 60 years of service — and discover how the Public Service Corps continues to shape the next generation of city professionals!

Join us for a virtual spotlight panel highlighting the Public Service Corps (PSC)—a proven pathway connecting college students with meaningful work experience across New York City government.

Whether you're a city agency exploring workforce solutions, a student considering public service, or an educational partner interested in expanding experiential learning opportunities, this session offers valuable insight into how PSC strengthens our city from the inside out.

You'll learn:

- How agencies are using PSC to meet staffing needs and build future talent
- What students gain from participating in the program
- How PSC supports career exploration, professional growth, and public service
- How agencies and schools can get involved
