

Instructions for filing a Stormwater Maintenance Easement

For all projects that will require a Stormwater Maintenance Permit, property owners must execute and record an easement granting DEP access to inspect the stormwater management practices except where the corporation counsel has determined that such a maintenance easement is not necessary due to the property's ownership or use by a public agency. The easement must be filed with either the New York City Register or the Richmond County Clerk prior to DEP's issuing a Stormwater Construction Permit.

The Stormwater Maintenance Easement, along with any required real property transfer tax forms, must be executed by both the property owner and DEP. It is best to submit the original documents, the signed easement and the tax forms, to:

NYC DEP Stormwater Permitting
59-17 Junction Blvd., 9th Floor
Flushing, NY 11373

ATTN. Stormwater Permitting Easements.

The submission must include attachment A, the metes and bounds description or survey map of the lot covered in the maintenance easement. You may use the same information that is attachment A to the deed for the lot. If there are multiple lots, you will need an easement for each lot. All lots contained in the application must be final lots.

The submission may be made at any time before the Stormwater Construction Permit is pulled, but proof that the documents have been properly recorded must be included with the Permit Initiation on the SWPTS.

If you choose, you may submit documents digitally, for review only, to StormwaterPermits@dep.nyc.gov. In the subject line include the name of the project and the Application ID. Once accepted, original paper documents should be submitted as shown above.

A Stormwater Construction Permit will not be issued until the appropriate documentation, approved by DEP, has been recorded and proof of same submitted to NYC DEP.
