c/o NYC Community Board 3

Re: Zhou's Group, Inc. d/b/a Yunshang Rice Noodle House
53 Bayard Street, New York, NY 10013

Dear Mr. Chan:

Please be advised that I represent Zhou's Group, Inc. d/b/a Yunshang Rice Noodle House who will participate in a Zoom conference with the Community Board on January 10, 2022 regarding its anticipated application to the New York State Liquor Authority for an on-premises liquor license to operate and serve alcoholic beverages at the above referenced premises.

Attached please find a petition and photographs demonstrating compliance with the posting requirement. The notices shall remain posted at the premises through January 10, 2022, or for as long as CB3 indicates is appropriate.

Regarding the petition, I am advised that as much information as possible was gathered from each individual. However, some signatories were reluctant to provide any additional information, in some cases, their apartment numbers. I am further advised that some members of the community stayed away from speaking to and signing the petition for fear of interacting with someone they didn't know well during this pandemic.

Thank you for your time and consideration. If I may provide any additional information at his time, please let me know.

Respectfully submitted,

Howard S. Levine

Progressions Expected Aid to Be Extended,
but Opponents Questioned the Cost

By BEN KACZORNIK

But critics of President Biden's plan to extend the $300-a-month child benefit, which expires in September, say it is a costly and unnecessary measure that will only add to the federal deficit.

The plan to extend the benefit is a key part of the president's economic agenda, but it has drawn criticism from lawmakers and economists who say it is a costly and unnecessary measure that will only add to the federal deficit.
