Resources for Researching the Laws of NYC

The summons you received should list the specific NYC section of law, rule or regulation you or your business is charged with violating. Part of preparing for your administrative hearing at OATH is gaining an understanding of that law, rule or regulation and what it requires. Note: If a specific code section is not listed on your summons, you may present this to an OATH Hearing Officer during your hearing as a potential defect in the summons.

All of NYC's laws, rules and regulations are available for review at:

Additionally, if you wish to research prior OATH decisions to understand how the laws have been applied to an issue similar to yours, the New York Law School houses a searchable database of OATH Appeals Decisions available at: <https://www.nyls.edu/cityadmin/>. OATH Hearing Officers are required to follow the reasoning of OATH Appeals Decisions and you may present a prior OATH Appeals Decision to support your arguments during your hearing.
