

26. GROWTH INDUCING ASPECTS OF THE PROPOSED ACTION

This chapter provides an assessment of the potential growth-inducing aspects of the Proposed Action. These generally refer to “secondary” impacts that could trigger further development. The CEQR Technical Manual indicates that an analysis of the growth-inducing aspects of a Proposed Action is appropriate when an action:

- Adds substantial new land use, new residents, or new employment that could induce additional development of a similar kind or of support uses, such as retail establishments to serve new residential uses; and/or
- Introduces or greatly expands infrastructure capacity.

As discussed in Chapter 1, “Project Description,” the proposal would create a Special Permit for self-storage facilities within Designated Areas and is anticipated to change the geographic distribution of some of these facilities. The Proposed Action is not anticipated to directly induce development and consequentially, would not add substantial new land use, new residents or new employment that could induce additional development. Likewise, the Proposed Actions would not introduce or greatly expand infrastructure capacity. No further analysis with regards to this category is necessary.
