Plaza Mural Commission: Lady Pink

MoMA PS1

Arts & Cultural Affairs

Building on past projects on the building facade, MoMA PS1 is launching a new mural commissioning program in June 2025. The program will invite artists to create new works that face the public plaza at PS1's main entrance, welcoming visitors to the museum. Each year, an artist will be selected for a new commission through a selection process involving a jury of local cultural leaders including curators, organizers, and artists.

Community-involved mural projects were piloted in this space between 2020 and 2025 by artists Nanibah Chacon, Tatyana Fazlalizadeh, and Layqa Nuna Yawar, with local Queens community groups Transform America; Make the Road; and members of the Shinnecock, Unkechaug, and Matinecock Nation. To build on their participatory project, the museum has established this new program to activate the space with mural art on an annual basis.
