the mission:

Since 1985, Long Island City Artists, a non-profit, 501(c)(3) arts advocacy organization, has worked to increase the visibility of professional and emerging artists.

Long Island City Artists occupies a 12,000 square foot multidisciplinary fine arts center in Long Island City, donated by Plaxall Inc. in 2016.

LiC-A serves 20,000 people annually—drawn from the LIC community, Queens, and greater New York City—through more than 30 exhibitions annually, children's workshops, adult drawing classes, live theatre, music, poetry, and dance events.

Exhibitions and programs are promoted via an email newsletter, social media, and posters throughout the community, reaching thousands each month.

LiC-A's community commitment includes offering internships in Gallery and Performance Management to students at LaGuardia and Queens College, as well as making its space available to community and educational organizations such as PS/IS 78 and local PTAs, as well as artists who have lost their studios, and so much more.

fine art:

Our events offer the community opportunities for arts participation, engagement through art exhibitions, workshops, lectures, readings, and more.

LiC-A's member base reflects the broad diversity of Queens and has grown to over 200 member artists, including many with an international presence.

LiC-A provides:

An online presence for its 200 plus members as well as a hub for artists to support each other

Opportunities for artists, students, and teachers to participate in our annual programming including open calls for fine art exhibitions, workshops, and installation art

Over 30 fine art exhibitions annually at The Plaxall gallery and other venues such as The Atlantic Gallery, Citicorp, Flushing Town Hall, Queens College, and Queensborough Community College

events & performance:

Full scale theatrical productions, and many short-form small-scale performances

Monthly play reading series produced in partnership with Stripped Scripts

School performances and events with local elementary schools, high schools and colleges such as LGA Community College, Queens College, IS/PS 78, and more

Annual Fall Film Festival with local and national filmmakers

workshops & education:

Long Island City Artists offers children's workshops by our partners ART STRONG, life drawing classes, artists talks, music, and dance and improvisation classes.

Internships: LiC-A works with students from colleges such as Queens College, LaGuardia Community College, and FIT to help students get invaluable on-site training in gallery management, marketing, theatre production and event management.

LiC-A: a space where the community can come together to work, play, and grow.
