Sponsor: Processing was made possible in part by the Ford Foundation.

Provenance: Prior to his death and establishment of the Municipal Archives, La Guardia donated a substantial portion of his congressional records as well as certain mayoral and personal papers to the New York Public Library. When the Municipal Archives was organized in 1950 (as part of the Municipal Reference Library, then a branch of the New York Public Library) it acquired the remainder of the mayoral records.

Processing Information

A basic finding aid was assembled by the former director of the Municipal Archives, Jim Katsaros, during 1954-1958.

In October 1984, a Ford Foundation grant allowed for the processing of the personal and professional papers of Fiorello H. La Guardia held across three institutions: mayoral records at the Municipal Archives; his personal papers, donated by his wife, Marie La Guardia, to La Guardia Community College; and a collection of congressional correspondence and some subject files and mayoral correspondence that had been donated by La Guardia to the Rare Books and Manuscript Division of the New York Public Library's during 1939-1947.

The project commenced in November 1984 and was led by archivist Jacqueline Reisert Esposito with assistance by project archivists Richard Lord, Cathy Thompson, and Barbara Gilson. Archivists kept much of the original arrangement of the collection, but combined materials described in the Katsaros finding aid as "personal papers" and "subject files" into one series of subject files, as it was determined that the personal papers were not actually personal in nature, but were created during La Guardia's time as mayor. During the span of the project, 150 cubic feet of previously unknown materials were uncovered in addition to the 500 cubic feet of known records already at the Archives. Materials were placed in new acid-free folders and boxes, mostly half cubic foot in size. Original folder titles, presumably devised by the La Guardia's secretarial staff, were retained when possible.

In 1986, La Guardia and Wagner Archives received funding from the New York State Assembly to support the microfilming of the La Guardia collections held there, and at the Municipal Archives. Additional funding for microfilming was received in 1989 from the Municipal Archives Reference and Research Fund.

In 2018, the finding aid was revised and updated by staff archivist Alexandra Hilton. Significant work was done to clean-up data to accurately reflect and provide greater clarity of the collection's contents. Some anachronistic terms - mainly those referring to race, ethnicity, or sex - were modified.

Records consist of personal papers, such as birth records, legal and financial records, and family correspondence; writings by La Guardia, including the manuscript of his autobiography, The Making of an Insurgent, drafts of his "Under the Hat" newspaper column, and articles he wrote for PM Magazine; UNRRA records containing correspondence, speeches, and illustrated letters from Italian children; and transcripts from his radio show, Talk to the People, on WNYC from 1941-1945, and of his radio broadcasts after leaving the mayoralty.

Biographical/Historical Information

Fiorello H. La Guardia was the eldest son and second of three children of Achille Luigi Carlo La Guardia and Irene Coen. He was born in the Italian section of Greenwich Village, New York City, two years after the arrival of his immigrant parents. His father, a musician from Foggia, Italy, was a lapsed Catholic; his mother, a merchant's daughter from Trieste, Italy (then part of Austria-Hungary), was Jewish. La Guardia was brought up Episcopalian and was to marry first a Catholic and then a Lutheran. All this led fellow New Yorkers toasting him as "the cosmopolite of this most cosmopolitan city."

La Guardia was brought up on western army posts, where his father served as an enlisted bandmaster from 1885-1898, and he was educated through the eighth grade in the public schools of Prescott, Arizona. Upon his father's discharge, the family returned to Trieste.

From the age of 17 to 23, La Guardia was a member of the American Consular Service. He was stationed in Budapest, then in Fiume, with short assignments in Trieste and Croatia. When he returned to New York in 1906, La Guardia was fluent in Hungarian, German, Serbo-Croatian, Yiddish and Italian.

In 1910, after putting himself through New York University Law School, by taking evening classes while working as an interpreter at Ellis Island, La Guardia began practicing law on the Lower East Side. La Guardia joined his local Republican Club, which was more hospitable at that time to aspiring Italian American politicians than the Irish-dominated clubs of the Democrats. In 1915, three years after his debut as an election district captain in his native Greenwich Village, La Guardia was appointed a Deputy State Attorney General.

After that, his career turned to elective office, and the multilingual, Western-bred, Balkan-plated Episcopalian of Italian-Jewish descent started with the advantage of being a balanced ticket in himself. However, few persons felt neutral about La Guardia the campaigner, who combined the gut-fighting tactics of a political boss from the tenements with the issue-oriented politics of a "people's attorney." The "Little Flower" – the English translation of Fiorello – was found to be colorful, dynamic, contagiously self-confident and progressive, as well as a likely threat to Tammany Hall. In a habitually Democratic city, La Guardia, an irregular Republican but a Republican nonetheless, won 11 out of 14 campaigns.

La Guardia rose to prominence in national politics before entering City Hall. In 1916, he became the first Republican since the Civil War to be elected to Congress from the Lower East Side. He voted for America's entrance into World War I in 1917 and took a leave of absence from the House to serve as a pilot bombardier on the Italian-Austrian front. Returning home a much-decorated Major in 1918, he was reelected to Congress but resigned the following year to run for President of the New York City Board of Aldermen. In 1921, La Guardia lost the Republican primary for Mayor. The next year, with the support of publisher William Randolph Hearst, he was returned to Congress, this time from the Twentieth Congressional District. Supported by a predominantly Italian and Jewish constituency, he served five consecutive terms until 1932.

In 1924, La Guardia supported the Progressive Party presidential candidacy of Robert M. LaFollette, and himself stood for reelection as a Progressive. The following year he showed further contempt for the GOP by endorsing the Socialist Norman Thomas, in New York's mayoral race.

Although La Guardia returned to the Republican Party in 1926, he remained a maverick. The "power trusts" were one of his favorite targets; with Senator George W. Norris (Nebraska), he waged a successful fight to prevent the private development of Muscle Shoals by the industrialist Henry Ford. In 1928, La Guardia cosponsored with Norris a measure to permit the federal development of the project; it was pocket-vetoed by President Coolidge. One newspaper of the 1920s called him "America's Most Liberal Congressman." La Guardia summed up his own image of himself when he said in 1927, "I am doomed to live in a hopeless minority for most of my legislative days."

In 1932, the Norris-La Guardia Anti-Injunction Act was passed. However, at the very peak of his congressional career, La Guardia lost his bid for reelection in 1932 – a casualty of the Democratic-Roosevelt landslide.

La Guardia had previously run for Mayor of New York City in 1929 against the popular Democratic incumbent James J. Walker and been defeated by nearly half a million votes. In 1933, when an anti-Tammany Fusion slate was formed under the leadership of Judge Samuel Seabury, whose investigations had led to Mayor Walker's resignation, La Guardia was its nominee. This time he was elected. Reelected in 1937 and again in 1941, he was the first reform Mayor in New York's history to succeed himself.

For the next twelve years, over the city's radio station, before the legislature in Albany, at the Board of Estimate, and elsewhere, he identified good government in New York City with his name in dramatic fashion. La Guardia was a popular showman. The press, chronicling his every move and antic, made him the best-known chief executive in New York City's history.

In 1934, he secured enabling legislation from Albany to balance the city budget through special taxes and structural reorganization, such as the consolidation of the five borough park departments into a single department. Two years later he threw his weight behind a successful referendum for a new city charter. The most advanced municipal constitution of its time, it provided for a deputy mayor, a smaller city council to replace the discredited Board of Aldermen, and a city planning commission. Through other legislation, La Guardia built the city's first sewage treatment plants, improved the market facilities, and by 1940 achieved both the unification and public ownership of the city's subways.

New York was vital for the New Deal's recovery program, and La Guardia's standing with the Roosevelt administration released a flow of federal funds for projects dear to him. La Guardia opened New York's first major airport in northern Queens (later renamed LaGuardia Airport), and in 1942, the ground was broken for Idlewild Airport (later renamed John F. Kennedy International Airport) in southern Queens. La Guardia drew up blueprints and received grants from Washington for schools, playgrounds, swimming pools, bridges, roads, health centers, parks and the arts.

Besides raising the quality of urban life, La Guardia's public improvements put men and women back to work in a time of mass unemployment. He reformed the relief system to include rent payments, food allotments, and grants to single men. Also with the help of federal money, La Guardia realized his long-standing ideas about slum clearance. By 1942 the New York City Housing Authority, which he had been brought into being eight years earlier, had constructed 13 public housing projects. He believed in "government with a heart." He attracted and retained for considerable lengths of service, men of unique talent – among them Robert Moses, A. A. Berle, Jr., Newbold Morris, Rexford G. Tugwell, Paul Windels and Joseph D. McGoldrick.

As World War II approached, La Guardia hoped that President Roosevelt would appoint him Secretary of War, but that position fell to another Republican, Henry L. Stimson. La Guardia was instead appointed Director of Civilian Defense in 1941. Unhappy in this role, he applied for an Army General's commission and was deeply disappointed when his application was rejected. The wartime Roosevelt administration wanted La Guardia to remain in command of the most important city on the home front.

La Guardia was 37 when he got married. On March 8, 1919, he married Thea Almerigotti, a native of Trieste; they had one child, Fioretta Thea. Both wife and infant daughter died of tuberculosis in 1921. La Guardia's second marriage, on February 28, 1929, was to Marie Fischer, a native New Yorker who had been his secretary for 15 years. The childless couple adopted a girl, Jean, and a boy, Eric.

La Guardia left City Hall in 1945. Unwilling to retire, he served as Director-General of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in 1946. He died on September 20, 1947, at his home in the Riverdale section of the Bronx from pancreatic cancer. Funeral services were conducted at the Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine, where La Guardia had occasionally worshipped. He was buried in Woodlawn Cemetery in the Bronx.

Scope and Content Note

This collection largely documents Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia's career as the Mayor of New York City from 1934-1945. It consists of correspondence, reports and memos between the Mayor's Office and every existing agency and department; letters to and from the Mayor's Office and various interest groups and individuals; invitations; local laws; legislation; executive orders; photographs; press releases; proclamations; speeches; minutes of meetings; appointments; applications; bills; biographical notes; and transcripts of speeches and radio broadcasts.

Fiorello La Guardia's terms as Mayor coincided with a particularly significant time in the city's history, from the Great Depression through World War II. To deal with the problems of unemployment, relief and welfare, he established an entirely new relationship between the city and the federal government. He was an early proponent of measures such as public works and unemployment insurance to alleviate the hardship of the depression. The collection demonstrates how closely he worked with federal officials at every level as they sought to ameliorate depression-caused conditions.

Under La Guardia, New York was the first city to take advantage of federal housing money by establishing the New York City Housing Authority, which became the model for housing authorities throughout the country. The physical image of "city" today, is in large part a result of events and policies that originated in the 1930s. The creation of large tracts of public housing and urban highways are two of many such factors that appear throughout this collection.

Other prevalent topics include the following: The early stages of the civil rights movement, particularly the Harlem riots of 1934 and 1943; racketeering investigations; unemployment; labor unions and the Works Progress Administration (WPA); the American Labor Party and Fusion Party; relationships between the city and state and federal government; the war effort at home; civil defense; and military draft.

Additionally, the records provide an overview of his work prior to and after his time as mayor. The Prohibition series documents La Guardia's staunch opposition to the passage of the 18th Amendment in 1919. A series of records from his time as President of the Board of Aldermen detail investigations launched against the City Comptroller, foreshadowing reforms he would later institute as Mayor. Another series documents La Guardia's post-mayoral position as Director-General of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, in which he was responsible for overseeing the distribution of food in Europe and organizing displaced persons' camps.

Series II: Subject Files

Date(s): 1913-1949, bulk 1934-1945

Size (Extent): 288 cubic feet in 576 boxes

Scope and Content:

During Fiorello LaGuardia's years as Mayor, his office received and processed large quantities of constituent correspondence on a wide array of subjects. These letters, responses, background reports, diagrams, blueprints, supporting materials and progress reports make up the bulk of the Subject Files series. These records represent the full scope of issues, events, persons, and activities that filled the three terms LaGuardia served as Mayor.

The Subject Files series was created by consolidating three file systems into a single study of the issues and events that prompted the highest degree of constituent correspondence. These materials were organized and identified by (1) general correspondence – compiled and organized by the clerical staff of the general mayoral file room; (2) the Mayor's "personal" files – kept by his secretaries; and (3) category files – which represent materials on designated and coded categories. These sets of records have been integrated and alphabetized in this series. Original titles have been retained where appropriate and are generally self-explanatory. They represent word usage prevalent during the 1930s and 1940s – for instance, under the designation Airports, LaGuardia Airport is listed by its original name, North Beach Airport, and Kennedy Airport is listed as Idlewild Airport. Furthermore, titles may use language that is inappropriate for present use but continues to exist to preserve the authenticity of the original filing system.

Correspondence is placed in its designated file by the appropriate secretaries according to their system of indicators. A designation is determined by either letterhead, signatory, or letter subjects, and is usually noted by a pencil check mark at the appropriate indicator or by a pencil-written note across the top. A subject designation applied by the original clerical staff was not changed during the archival processing.

Related Materials: These subject files are best utilized by cross-referencing in two manners: (1) within the subject files themselves, i.e., materials referring to Idlewild Airport can be found under both alphabetical designators – "I" for Idlewild and "A" for Airport (followed by subtitle Idlewild); (2) within other series held with this particular collection, particularly the Departmental Files series.

Arrangement: This series is arranged alphabetically by subject and then chronologically.

Access: This series has been microfilmed. See microfilm rolls 1-261 (master negative nos. 25052-25299) for boxes 1-576 (box 576, folders 1-8 only) and roll no. 262 (master negative no. 25299A) for box 576, folders 9-12.

Location: 31 Chambers St., Shelf 3363-3938

Series III: Office of Civilian Defense

Date(s): 1936-1946, bulk 1941-1943

Size (Extent): 51.5 cubic feet in 103 boxes

Scope and Content:

The Office of Civilian Defense was created on May 21, 1941. President Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed New York City's Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia as its National Director. La Guardia held this position until the end of World War II. Before the Office's creation, various committees and interest groups produced documents concerning the war and the home front's participation. The Mayor's staff maintained a war file which is included in this series.

The Office's purpose was to alert and educate the public about the needs and developments utilized in civilian defense on the federal, state and local levels. The Office developed many departments and volunteer groups, such as WNYJ, which served as the civilian defense radio station for the New York City area with a network of over 200 amateur radio transmitters. Fire protection and bomb disposal units were trained to handle damage caused by air raids. Volunteers were organized into the Air Warden Service, and emergency medical units were created to supplement units previously established. Posters, pamphlets, and booklets were created to urge rationing, silence on troop and ship movements, bond purchases, metal salvage and black market avoidance, amongst other topics.

Related Material: This series should be used in conjunction with Series IV: Civilian Defense Volunteer Office.

Arrangement: A large portion of the records were arranged into three main divisions: New York City, New York State and the United States federal government. The rest are presumably from the National Director's office files. Material includes correspondence, reports, maps, books, pamphlets and booklets. Each division is organized in alphabetical order.

Access: This series has been microfilmed. See microfilm rolls 1-51 (master negative nos. 04351-04401).

Location: 31 Chambers St., Shelf 3991-3992, 4171-4272

Series IV: Civilian Defense Volunteer Office

Date(s): 1928-1950, bulk 1940-1945

Size (Extent): 9 cubic feet in 18 boxes

Scope and Content:

The Civilian Defense Volunteer Office (CDVO), formed in October 1941, was an official agency of the New York City War Council. It was opened for precisely four years, closing in October 1945. The CDVO also operated as the Official “Salvage” Coordinator for the War Production Board. Grover A. Whalen was appointed by Mayor La Guardia to serve as the CDVO’s chairman during the war years, 1941-1945. The office was overseen by its working chairman, James G. Blaine, and vice-chairman, Mrs. Winthrop W. Aldrich.

The CDVO operated 65 branch offices and five borough offices, consolidating the efforts of over 720,000 volunteers during the four year period. The CDVO was responsible for volunteer recruitment, civilian defense training programs, child care programs, salvage centers, healthcare administration and job training development. During its four year tenure, the CDVO raised over $36,038,035 in war bond sales and $1,700,000 for the New York National War Fund. The series contains correspondence, reports, pamphlets, brochures and forms for record management.

Series V: Selective Service Aide

Date(s): 1908-1946, bulk 1940-1945

Size (Extent): 19 cubic feet in 38 boxes

Scope and Content:

The United States Congress passed the Selective Service Act on September 14, 1940. The Act went into effect on October 21, 1940. Men, between the ages of 18- 35, were required to register at their local draft boards for service in the World War. The Selective Service Aide supervised the operation of the 297 draft boards operating in the New York City area. Two aides were serving in this position during the La Guardia administration: Colgate Hoyt (1940-1942) and Henry G. Bartol (1942-1945).

The series consists primarily of correspondence, defense manuals, and regulation booklets. The correspondence is divided into two sections: one is arranged by draft board number 1-297; the rest is arranged in alphabetical order. Subjects included among the correspondence are acceptances and resignations on local boards, the ethnic breakdown of each local board, and requests for change of draft status. The civil defense manuals and regulation manuals are organized within two miscellaneous sections. These boxes include pamphlets describing air raid procedures, emergency medical units, and bomb demolition.

Arrangement: This series is arranged alphabetically by subject.

Access: This series is not microfilmed.

Location: 31 Chambers St., Shelf 4465-4502

Series VI: Correspondence with Federal Officials

Date(s): 1933-1945

Scope and Content: During Fiorello La Guardia's years as Mayor, his administration warranted a continuous stream of contact with officials from all departments and divisions of the federal government. Series VIII: Latin American Scholarship Committee

Date(s): 1941-1954

Size (Extent): 5.5 cubic feet in 11 boxes

Scope and Content:

Between 1942 and 1946, the City of New York administered a Latin American student scholarship fund. It was developed under the aegis of Mayor La Guardia as a response to the demonstrated need for increased education in Latin American countries. The scholarships provided a one-year education in New York City, plus a monthly living stipend and housing arrangements, for twenty students per year.

The following persons were directly involved in the management of the scholarship program: J. Stanton Ribbons, Director, Latin American Scholarship Committee (also the Federal Coordinator for Inter-American Relations operating out of the Department of Commerce); Nelson Rockefeller, Coordinator of Commercial and Cultural Relations; and Rebecca B. Rankin, Reference Librarian, Municipal Library and Secretary, New York City Committee for Latin American Scholarships, Inc.

The scholarships were funded by several corporate sponsors and underwritten by the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation and directed by Dr. Henry A. Moe. The scholarship recipients were housed at New York City's International House.

Arrangement: Boxes 1-4 represent the correspondence, applications, and details of the scholarship winners. These files are organized alphabetically by last name. Boxes 5-11 represents rejected applications, general office correspondence, corporate sponsor correspondence, letters to and from Grace Shipping Lines (responsible for transporting students to and from their country of origin), and publicity materials for the program.

Access: This series is not microfilmed.

Series IX: United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration

Date(s): 1944-1947

Size (Extent): 3 cubic feet in 6 boxes

Scope and Content

The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration (UNRRA) was established to organize relief forces for the famine-struck countries in Post-World War II Europe. The organization also assisted in the relocation of displaced Europe refugees who, for political reasons, did not want to return to their own countries.

Fiorello H. La Guardia became the Director-General of UNRRA in March 1946. His responsibilities included overseeing the distribution of food in Europe, organizing displaced persons camp for those not wishing to return to countries in Eastern Europe, and supervising the rebuilding of the Italian monuments destroyed during the war. He resigned from the agency on December 31, 1946

The series consists of Fiorello's correspondence during the year 1946. Also included in this series are the Minutes of the Central Committee Meetings, the International Emergency Food Council, and interoffice memorandum. Reports on the displaced persons, camp are also included within this series.

Related Material: Additional material on La Guardia's participation in the administration of UNRRA is held by the United Nations archives.

Arrangement: This series is arranged alphabetically, encompassing only the letters A-L.

Access: This series is not microfilmed.

Series X: American Society of Civil Engineers

Date(s): 1940-1945

Size (Extent): 1.5 cubic feet in 3 boxes

Scope and Content: The American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE) provided the National Committee on Civilian Protection and the National Committee on Protective Construction with recommendations on building ideas for use in the defense effort. This series consists of building code studies, shelter construction materials, reports, correspondence and pamphlets regarding the role of building construction and maintenance for wartime protection. Walter D. Binger headed the Committees as National Chairman and Ernest P. Goodrich as National Vice Chairman in 1941. The two men switched positions in 1942, remaining there for the remainder of the war. The Committees advised the Secretary of War and were sanctioned by him to produce materials for wartime consideration.

Related Material: This series should be used in conjunction with Series III: Office of Civilian Defense and Series IV: Civilian Defense Volunteer Office.

Arrangement: The bulk of this series is arranged by committee; the rest is arranged alphabetically by material type.

Access: This series is not microfilmed.

Series XI: Police Department

Date(s): 1931-1948

Size (Extent): 1.5 cubic feet in 3 boxes

Scope and Content:

The Police Department series consists of three separate boxes each containing varied materials that could be classified as miscellaneous. The majority of these materials extend beyond the scope of the La Guardia mayoral years.

Box 1 contains reports on the NYPD's ethnic makeup. In March 1931, the Police Department supervisors ordered reports to be submitted describing the ethnic composition of each branch and precinct of the police force. Each section sent a detailed list of ethnic make-up. The majority of the force in 1931 was of Irish birth or parentage.

Boxes 2-3 contain press clippings dealing with various strikes in the city in 1948. Box 2 covers the transit strikes of 1948, including wage demands, raising the transit fare, and related issues. The requested wage was $80 per week based on a forty-hour work week. The transit fare request would be raised a forty-hour work week. The transit fare request would be raised from a nickel to six cents.

Box 3 covers miscellaneous strike by non-city employees, such as the beer truckers' strike of the fall of 1948.

Arrangement: This series is arranged chronologically.

Access: This series is not microfilmed.

Series XII: Invitations

Date(s): 1933-1945

Size (Extent): 70 cubic feet in 140 boxes

Scope and Content: During Fiorello La Guardia's years as Mayor (1934-1945), he was invited to an enormous number of civic and personal functions. Oftentimes the invitations conflicted with other engagements. Sometimes the occasion was inappropriate for mayoral attendance, and, increasingly over the years, the mayor's calendar allowed little time for such invitations. This series contains invitations to events the Mayor declined attendance to, along with the mayor's letter of response if one is available.

Arrangement: Invitations are filed alphabetically by organization or person's name within each chronological year, except for invitations and responses for the years 1942 to 1945, which are organized alphabetically and inclusively for those four years.

Access: This series is not microfilmed.

Series XV: Mayoralty Campaigns

Date(s): 1901-1949

Size (Extent): 31.5 cubic feet in 63 boxes

Scope and Content: In 1933, former U.S. Congressman Fiorello H. La Guardia ran for the office of Mayor of the City of New York on the Republican-Fusion party ticket. His campaign platform was based on a commitment to good, honest government that would be responsive to the needs of the typical New Yorker. The Fusion Party was determined to eliminate the influence and control previously held by Tammany Hall. La Guardia was elected in 1933, and he aimed to accomplish these goals throughout his first and subsequent terms. La Guardia won the 1933 election in a landslide. In 1937 and 1941 the Mayor won re-election both times handily defeating William O'Dwyer. La Guardia chose to not seek re-election in 1945. This series consists of campaign literature, correspondence, reports from various city agencies, and election polls.

Arrangement: For each election year, the organization is similar beginning with campaign literature and following with other subjects as they appear.

Access: This series is not microfilmed. The materials concerning the campaign of 1933 are in very poor condition. Their use will be determined at the discretion of the archivist.

Series XVI: Board of Aldermen

Date(s): 1920-1921

Size (Extent): 1 cubic foot in 2 boxes

Scope and Content: Fiorello La Guardia served as President of the New York City Board of Aldermen during the years 1919-1920. While it was a short term, it was memorable for the instigation of a number of investigations directed against the City's comptroller. Also, La Guardia was the direct recipient of a political feud between himself and then-Governor Nathan Miller, which led him out of city politics and into federal politics on the congressional level. This series consists of material from both the Lockwood and Meyer Commissions. Both commissions were created to investigate the operations of the city budget and the city comptroller. There are also newspaper clippings covering the years 1920-1921.

Arrangement: This series is arranged chronologically.

Access: This series is not microfilmed. Newspaper clippings in this series are extremely fragile. Their use will be determined at the discretion of the archivist.

Location: 31 Chambers St., Shelf 4532-4533

Series XVII: Prohibition

Date(s): 1919-1933

Size (Extent): 1 cubic foot in 2 boxes

Scope and Content: In 1919, the U.S. Congress passed the Eighteenth Amendment (also known as the Volstead Act) banning the production, consumption, and storage of alcoholic beverages in the United States. The law was in effect for fourteen years until its repeal under the 21st Amendment. Congressman La Guardia opposed prohibition and worked diligently to repeal the law. He spoke in Congress, reviewed cases, and wrote articles advocating the movement for repeal. This series consists of various materials detailing La Guardia’s involvement in the Prohibition battle, including correspondence dealing with public opinion concerning the issue, the amendment itself, legal cases, anti-prohibition fund-raisers, news articles, and speeches.

Access: This series is not microfilmed. The documents in this series are in very poor condition and should be handed with extreme care. Their use will be determined at the discretion of the archivist.
