The New York City Taxi and Limousine Commission approved changes to its driver pay rules on November 15, 2022, raising the minimum rates of pay for drivers working for High-Volume For-Hire Services (Lyft & Uber). Under these new rules, the minimum per-minute rate will increase by 7.42% and the minimum per-mile rate will increase by 23.93%. Beginning December 19, 2022, High-Volume For-Hire Service drivers must be paid the following minimum pay rates:

- For non-WAV trips in the city:
 - $0.567 per minute
 - $1.348 per mile
- For WAV trips in the city:
 - $0.567 per minute
 - $1.748 per mile

Higher minimum driver pay rates are required for trips that start in the city but go outside of the city limits. For out-of-town driver pay rates, please visit TLC's website. Drivers may also utilize the Driver Pay Calculator on TLC's website to check how much they may be entitled to on a trip under the new pay rates.

If you have questions about the new fare structure, please contact the TLC's Driver Protection Unit, which investigates pay related issues, by calling (718) 391-5539 or e-mailing driverprotection@tlc.nyc.gov.

Sincerely,

Taxi and Limousine Commission
