Laboratory: Underwriters Laboratories, Inc.

Test Report(s): File SA4866 dated March 11, 2000, revised October 11, 2003

Description: These products relate to beverages (i.e., juices, water, soda water, syrups). Each model has the capability of cooling the beverage by refrigeration of a cold plate. The final beverage is routed through stainless steel or nylon reinforced plastic tubing to a valve in order to dispense. These units may also be beverage-support equipment used in conjunction with a beverage dispenser. Support equipment is to allow carbonate water to make soda, or provide a propellant to transport beverages through tubing. All units require electrical power, water, and drain. Units employ Refrigerant R-134A.
