delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
DEVENDRA BAJRACHARYA
85-35 Eliot Ave
Queens, NY 11374

-- Sent from Moises Gutierrez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Moises Gutierrez
1162 Madison St
Brooklyn, NY 11221

-- Sent from Jimmy Beltran to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jimmy Beltran
67-39 52nd Ave
Queens, NY 11378

-- Sent from Juan Bocel to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Juan Bocel
428 57th St

Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from Manuel Rivera to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Affairs
Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Manuel Rivera
2172 Amsterdam Ave
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from nelson mora to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Affairs
Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
nelson mora
393 Bement Ave
Staten Island, NY 10310

-- Sent from weihao gao to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
weihao gao
757 53rd St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from JosÃ© Concepcion to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jose Concepcion
539 W 179th St
New York, NY 10033

-- Sent from Dmitriy Mashchenko to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Dmitriy Mashchenko
4654 Bedford Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11235

-- Sent from ronald belluzzi to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
ronald belluzzi
3209 Ampere Ave
The Bronx, NY 10465

-- Sent from Julio Lopez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Julio Lopez
99-10 Corona Ave.
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Mamadou Balde to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Mamadou Balde
5530 98th Pl
Corona, NY 11368

-- Sent from Adel Bousahla to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Adel Bousahla
2527 E 6th St
Brooklyn, NY 11235

-- Sent from Asraf Uddin to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Affairs Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Asraf Uddin
1263 Fulton St
Brooklyn, NY 11216

-- Sent from Isaiah Leaks to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Isaiah Leaks
361J Skyline Dr
Staten Island, NY 10304

-- Sent from Jorge Chalcu to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jorge Chalcu
325 48th St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from mohammad hossain to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
mohammad hossain
3969 65th PI
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Diengo Garc a to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Diengo Garcia
32-37 105th St
Queens, NY 11369

-- Sent from Samuel Esowe to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Affairs Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Samuel Esowe
632 E 223rd St
The Bronx, NY 10466

-- Sent from Isaiah Oscar to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Isaiah Oscar
40-15 12th St
Queens, NY 11101

-- Sent from Marlene Burgos to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Marlene Burgos
60 W 104th St
New York, NY 10025

-- Sent from James ELIACIN to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
James ELIACIN
55 E 31st St
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from jingshan dong to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
jingshan dong
21 Wellbrook Ave
Staten Island, NY 10314

-- Sent from Mohammad rob to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Mohammad rob
622 Ocean Pkwy
Brooklyn, NY 11218

-- Sent from Ali Mgaresh to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af

Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Ali Mgaresh
1277 E 14th St
Brooklyn, NY 11230

-- Sent from Mohammad Nobi to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Mohammad Nobi
649 Argyle Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11230

-- Sent from Mashuk Hossain to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Mashuk Hossain
39-20 63rd St
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from karl stoessel to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
karl stoessel
3304 Avenue J
Brooklyn, NY 11210

-- Sent from Sayouba Ima to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Sayouba Ima
1004 College Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from Abdourahmane Diallo to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Abdourahmane Diallo
1680 Bedford Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11225

-- Sent from Leonardo González to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Leonardo Gonzalez
602 W 156th St
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from Rootcheel Lochard to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Rootcheel Lochard
1402 Brooklyn Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11210

-- Sent from Moufdi Naji to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how,

when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Moufdi Najj
1265 Bay Ridge Pkwy
Brooklyn, NY 11230

-- Sent from Madelin Torres to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Madelin Torres
1592 Dr Martin L King Jr Blvd
Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Daramane Dembele to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Daramane Dembele
2546 Adam Clayton Powell Jr Blvd
New York, NY 10039

-- Sent from Purcell Nurse to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Purcell Nurse
149 Lefferts Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11225

-- Sent from Daniel Kearney to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Daniel Kearney
611 W 163rd St
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from Bryce Garbutt to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Bryce Garbutt
3217 Hull Ave
The Bronx, NY 10467

-- Sent from Shagar Matabbur to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Shagar Matabbur
89-56 209th St
Queens, NY 11427

-- Sent from Zainul Pasha to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Zainul Pasha
2127 Brown St
Brooklyn, NY 11229

-- Sent from Mohammad Hossain to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,

Mohammad Hossain
741 Church Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11218

-- Sent from zhaojun chen to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
zhaojun chen
6976 Eliot Ave
Queens, NY 11379

-- Sent from Haiying You to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Haiying You
6976 Eliot Ave
Queens, NY 11379

-- Sent from Damien Ramos to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Damien Ramos
2109 35th Ave
Astoria, NY 11106

-- Sent from Mason Karam to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Mason Karam
3023 Pershing Dr
El Paso, TX 79903

-- Sent from Virna Olivo to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Virna Olivo

383 E 143rd St
The Bronx, NY 10454

-- Sent from josue torres to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
josue torres
651 Knickerbocker Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11221

-- Sent from Michelle Drakes to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Michelle Drakes
412 Vermont St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Antonio Flores to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Antonio Flores
27 W 118th St
New York, NY 10026

-- Sent from Sakinatou Bande to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Sakinatou Bande
1259 Clay Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from Mamadou Barry to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Mamadou Barry
176st

The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Cristhian capellan to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Cristhian capellan
3335 Decatur Ave
The Bronx, NY 10467

-- Sent from Miguel Baquix to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Miguel Baquiax
1751 85th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214

-- Sent from Rema kientore to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Rema kientore
2341 Newbold Ave
The Bronx, NY 10462

-- Sent from Adelina Rodriquez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Adelina Rodriguez
1815 Bruckner Blvd
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Mamunur Rashid to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Mamunur Rashid
551 Euclid Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Jose Manuel to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jose Manuel
1610 Dr Martin L King Jr Blvd
Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Anriphe Onifade to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Anriphe Onifade
320 Beekman Ave
The Bronx, NY 10454

-- Sent from Fara Raobivelonoro to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Fara Raobivelonoro
53-77 69th St
Queens, NY 11378

-- Sent from Alberto Brito to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Alberto Brito
31-44 89th St
Queens, NY 11369

-- Sent from Sigfredo Rios to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Sigfredo Rios
210 Bay 34th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214

-- Sent from Jermyn Chan to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jermyn Chan
127-02 140th St
Queens, NY 11436

-- Sent from Gobinda Pun to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Gobinda Pun
80-42 89th Ave
Queens, NY 11421

-- Sent from issaka Barry to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
issaka Barry
951 Gates Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11221

-- Sent from Eric Taliaferro to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Eric Taliaferro
1111 E 105th St
Brooklyn, NY 11236

-- Sent from Mohammed Uddin to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Mohammed Uddin
445 E 5th St
Brooklyn, NY 11218

-- Sent from Martin Victoriano to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Martin Victoriano
3131 Decatur Ave
The Bronx, NY 10467

-- Sent from joshua Guerrero to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
joshua Guerrero
137-55 68th Dr
Queens, NY 11367

-- Sent from Fayez Ahmed to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Fayez Ahmed
195 Sheridan Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Elon Gibson to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Elon Gibson
949 Blake Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from anfernee bain to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
anfernee bain
755 Fenimore St
Brooklyn, NY 11203

-- Sent from Sidbewendin Mathias to Senior Advisor for Policy and

Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Sidbewendin Mathias
74 Bleecker St
Brooklyn, NY 11221

-- Sent from Eloyna Romano to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Eloyna Romano
508 W 166th St
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from Kamran chaudhry to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Kamran chaudhry
20 Father Capodanno Blvd
Staten Island, NY 10305

-- Sent from Ernesto Olivero to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Ernesto Olivero
304 E 156th St
The Bronx, NY 10451

-- Sent from Mohamed Kamagate to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Mohamed Kamagate
1944 Madison Ave
New York, NY 10035

-- Sent from marvin cunningham to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
marvin cunningham
646 Bradford St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Jamshad cheema to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jamshad cheema
323 Avenue C
Brooklyn, NY 11218

-- Sent from Mourad Abidi to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Mourad Abidi
3811 Ditmars Blvd
Queens, NY 11105

-- Sent from Serge Nikiema to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how,

when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Serge Nikiema
4627 Park Ave
The Bronx, NY 10458

-- Sent from Eli Aponte to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Eli Aponte
676 E 141st St
The Bronx, NY 10454

-- Sent from hosam sayedahmed to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
hosam sayedahmed
711 Tonnele Ave
Jersey City, NJ 07306

-- Sent from Gustavo Feliciano to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Gustavo Feliciano
515 W 179th St
New York, NY 10033

-- Sent from chen dayi to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
chen dayi
121 Henry St
New York, NY 10002

-- Sent from xiangzhao chen to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
xiangzhao chen
45-16 97th Pl
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from sajmir laci to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
sajmir laci
1650 Williamsbridge Rd
The Bronx, NY 10461

-- Sent from Manuel Pena to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Manuel Pena
2102 Bronx Park E
The Bronx, NY 10462

-- Sent from Mirza Islam to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,

Mirza Islam
51-13 Skillman Ave
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Luis Munoz to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Luis Munoz
41-16 Case St
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Videl Dunker to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Videl Dunker
1655 Flatbush Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11210

-- Sent from Ladji Traore to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Ladji Traore
1935 Andrews Ave S
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Joshua chance to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Joshua chance
685 Lenox Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11203

-- Sent from anton fredericks to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
anton fredericks

759 Monroe St
Brooklyn, NY 11221

-- Sent from Alfredo Campos to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Alfredo Campos
963 Amsterdam Ave
New York, NY 10025

-- Sent from Hoque ziaul to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Hoque ziaul
664 Washington Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11238

-- Sent from Mohammad Patowary to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Mohammad Patowary
3360 12th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11218

-- Sent from Juan j to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Juan j
166 E 118th St
New York, NY 10035

-- Sent from Elvin Rendon to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Elvin Rendon
176 Graham Ave

Brooklyn, NY 11206

-- Sent from Miguel Ramirez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Miguel Ramirez
61 Ten Eyck St
Brooklyn, NY 11206

-- Sent from Aileen Fernandez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Aileen Fernadez
61 Jersey St
Staten Island, NY 10301

-- Sent from Ruji Haq to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Ruji Haq
1311 Nostrand Ave.
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from Ahmad saeed to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Ahmad saeed
60-70 Woodhaven Blvd
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Abbas Rachid to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Abbas Rachid
69-06 31st Ave
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from HUSSEN DJAMIL to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
HUSSEN DJAMIL
288 E 169th St
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from Stephane Elie to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Stephane Elie
895 Jamaica Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Nasser Yousef to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Affairs Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Nasser Yousef
116 W 116th St
New York, NY 10026

-- Sent from Abdul Baten to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Affairs Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Abdul Baten
901 Avenue H
Brooklyn, NY 11230

-- Sent from Abdoulaye Barry to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Abdoulaye Barry
1539 Castle Hill Ave
The Bronx, NY 10462

-- Sent from md hossen to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards, md hossen
137 Chester Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11218

-- Sent from Bassem Bassam to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Bassem Bassam
19-72 77th St
Queens, NY 11370

-- Sent from Majed Miah to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Majed Miah
71 Suydam St
Brooklyn, NY 11221

-- Sent from Joel Hazzard to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Joel Hazzard
463 E Tremont Ave
The Bronx, NY 10457

-- Sent from oluwayemisi booker to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
oluwayemisi booker
721 Hendrix St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Babatunde fatokun to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Babatunde fatokun
721 Hendrix St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from MarÃa Encalada to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Maria Encalada
4307 14th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11219

-- Sent from Delwar Hossain to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Delwar Hossain
90 Weldon St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Asena Donmez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Asena Donmez
1680 E 17th St
Brooklyn, NY 11229

-- Sent from Nigel Joseph to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Nigel Joseph
144-22 168th St
Queens, NY 11434

-- Sent from AROUNA YABRE to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental

Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
AROUNA YABRE
100 W 143rd St
New York, NY 10030

-- Sent from Ali Congo to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Ali Congo
50 W 139th St
New York, NY 10037

-- Sent from Jorge G to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jorge G
6909 16th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11204

-- Sent from Etelvina Sanmartin to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Etelvina Sanmartin
6909 16th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11204

-- Sent from jose quisquina to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
jose quisquina
476 Coney Island Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11218

-- Sent from Sean edwards to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Sean Edwards
434 Georgia Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Danny Chiu to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Affairs Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Danny Chiu
230 Clinton St
New York, NY 10002

-- Sent from Alex Ofosu-Mensah to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Alex Ofosu-Mensah
2085 Valentine Ave
The Bronx, NY 10457

-- Sent from Segundo Rodriguez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how,

when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Segundo Rodriguez
40-19 99th St
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Kenny Jay to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Kenny Jay
1165 E 229th St
The Bronx, NY 10466

-- Sent from Theron Saunches to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Theron Saunches
15 Sickles St
New York, NY 10040

-- Sent from Arcadio Aquino to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Arcadio Aquino
738 Albany Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11203

-- Sent from Mohamed Traore to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Mohamed Traore
65 W 108th St
New York, NY 10025

-- Sent from Nakisisa Mark to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Nakisisa Mark
19 Long Pond Ln
Staten Island, NY 10304

-- Sent from Sajeeka Wamakulasuriya to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Sajeeka Wamakulasuriya
209 Maple Pkwy
Staten Island, NY 10303

-- Sent from Noureddine Bouzelmat to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Noureddine Bouzelmat
1501 Bay Ridge Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11219

-- Sent from Bonaventure Wendkuuni to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,

Bonaventure Wendkuuni
1071 Teller Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from Jude Pierre to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jude Pierre
730 E 79th St
Brooklyn, NY 11236

-- Sent from Bin ouyang to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Bin ouyang
1032 71st St
Brooklyn, NY 11228

-- Sent from Dominix Eduardo to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Dominix Eduardo
6574 Wetherole St
Queens, NY 11374

-- Sent from Chang Chong to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Chang Chong
20-17 Clintonville St
Queens, NY 11357

-- Sent from jahlil jackson to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
jahlil jackson

505 W 161st St
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from Rogelio Borrego to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Rogelio Borrego
770 Onderdonk Ave
Queens, NY 11385

-- Sent from Elsa Cepeda to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Elsa Cepeda
87-19 91st Ave
Queens, NY 11421

-- Sent from Zangre Ibrahim to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Zangre Ibrahim
475 W 159th St
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from Mohammad Haque to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Mohammad Haque
2430 Tratman Ave
The Bronx, NY 10461

-- Sent from brandon shalim to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
brandon shalim
104-52 112th St

Queens, NY 11419

-- Sent from Juan carlos to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Juan carlos
3701 61st St
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Arturo Segundo to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Arturo Segundo
612 67th St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from Stuart Santos to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Stuart Santos
561 W 174th St
New York, NY 10033

-- Sent from Marcelino Ballinas to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Marcelino Ballinas
9216 35th Ave
Queens, NY 11372

-- Sent from Radip Shrestha to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Radip Shrestha
540 Seminary Row
New York, NY 10027

-- Sent from Zordro Palanza to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Zordro Palanza
10-23 FDR Dr
New York, NY 10009

-- Sent from Esmond Douglas to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Esmond Douglas
140-38 183rd St
Queens, NY 11413

-- Sent from Jardel Costa to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jardel Costa
123 William St
New York, NY 10038

-- Sent from marino benitez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
marino benitez
48-14 98th St
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Wilmer I to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Wilmer I
982 54th St
Brooklyn, NY 11219

-- Sent from Steven Hayes to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Steven Hayes
320 Eastern Pkwy
Brooklyn, NY 11225

-- Sent from Jose Pichardo to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jose Pichardo
265 Livonia Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11212

-- Sent from Miguel Angel to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Miguel Angel
441 55th St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from Shahriar Alam to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 6, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Shahriar Alam
576 E 2nd St
Brooklyn, NY 11218

-- Sent from Jose Morales to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jose Morales
40 Thayer St
New York, NY 10040

-- Sent from Rodney Johnson to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Rodney Johnson
2135 Madison Ave
New York, NY 10037

-- Sent from Jacob Floyd to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jacob Floyd
48 W 138th St
New York, NY 10037

-- Sent from Emanuel Reyes to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Emanuel Reyes
103 Thayer St
New York, NY 10040

-- Sent from Valentin Galvez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Valentin Galvez
375 Edgecombe Ave
New York, NY 10031

-- Sent from Florentino Garcia to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Florentino Garcia
375 Edgecombe Ave
New York, NY 10031

-- Sent from hakan akbag to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af

Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
hakan akbag
340 W 47th St
New York, NY 10036

-- Sent from Miriam Solano to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Miriam Solano
331 E 109th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Sergio palma to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Sergio palma
226 W 20th St
New York, NY 10011

-- Sent from Joan Snovitch to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Joan Snovitch
526 W 47th St
New York, NY 10036

-- Sent from Luis LÃ³pez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Luis Lopez
228 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Maxwel Usiel to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Maxwel Usiel
228 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Jose nevaes to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jose nevares
1747 Lexington Ave
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Alberto Lopez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Alberto Lopez
473 Malcolm X Blvd
New York, NY 10030

-- Sent from Jose Medina to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how,

when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Jose Medina
500 W 140th St
New York, NY 10031

-- Sent from Oliver Danilo to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Oliver Danilo
524 E 119th St
New York, NY 10035

-- Sent from Ruben Heredia to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Ruben Heredia
320 E 109th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Fredy Perez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Fredy Perez
101 W 133rd St
New York, NY 10030

-- Sent from Souleymane Mone to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Souleymane Mone
103 W 141st St
New York, NY 10030

-- Sent from Anthony Nunez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Anthony Nunez
219 E 97th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Kaqwan Williams to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Kaqwan Williams
1695 Madison Ave
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Luis Alvarez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Luis Alvarez
569 Academy St
New York, NY 10034

-- Sent from Ruben Tlahueta to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Affairs
Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,

Ruben Tlahueta
255 E 110th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from ASHFAQ Choudhury to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
ASHFAQ Choudhury
156 Allen St
New York, NY 10002

-- Sent from Victor Bonilla to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Victor Bonilla
5000 Broadway
New York, NY 10034

-- Sent from Juan PÃ©rez to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Juan Perez
325 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Luma Lima to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 10, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Luma Lima
222 E 41st St
New York, NY 10017

-- Sent from fengxian h to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 12, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
fengxian h

180 South St
New York, NY 10038

-- Sent from Ibrahima Diouf to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 13, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Ibrahima Diouf
216 W 100th St
New York, NY 10025

-- Sent from Nathalie Leon to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 15, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Nathalie Leon
370 8th Ave
New York, NY 10001

-- Sent from Hamado Kouanda to Senior Advisor for Policy and Intergovernmental Af Carlos Ortiz on Apr 17, 2023 --

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

I am an app-based food delivery worker and am writing to you because the proposed rules by the DCWP will have the opposite effect of helping us. I urge you to not implement these rules.

Our flexibility and earning opportunities will be cut short. Our ability to choose how, when and if we work will be greatly diminished. We will also not have the opportunity to work for multiple apps and choose deliveries that make sense to us. We enjoy having flexible earning opportunities, and we do not want to compete with thousands of other delivery workers for fewer chances to choose when and where we deliver. And we most certainly do not want to be left out of app-based earning opportunities.

I strongly urge you to reconsider this rule.

Regards

Regards,
Hamado Kouanda
102 W 134th St
New York, NY 10030

From: Driver, Charlie (DCWP)
Sent: Tuesday, April 18, 2023 10:15 AM
To: Sascha Owen <sascha.owen@doordash.com>
Subject: RE: [EXTERNAL] Dasher comments to DCWP on new draft rule for a minimum pay for delivery workers

Hi Sascha,

Thanks for sending these along—confirming receipt. We'll make sure these are added to the public comments and they will be fully considered.

Best,
Charlie

Charlie Driver ~ NYC DCWP t: 212-436-0396 | c: 332-225-6807 | nyc.gov/dcwp

From: Sascha Owen <sascha.owen@doordash.com> Sent:
Monday, April 17, 2023 5:44 PM
To: Driver, Charlie (DCWP) <CDriver@dcwp.nyc.gov>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] Dasher comments to DCWP on new draft rule for a minimum pay for delivery workers

CAUTION: This email originated from outside of the organization. Do not click links or open attachments unless you recognize the sender and know the content is safe. Forward suspect email to phish@oti.nyc.gov as an attachment (Click the More button, then forward as attachment).

Hi Charlie -

I am following up on our conversation regarding comments from Dashers submitted to the DCWP in regard to the recent comment period that closed on April 7 on the new draft rule related to a minimum pay for delivery workers. As discussed, over 600 Dashers submitted comments to the DCWP before the April 7 deadline but most have not been included in the public record on the Agency's website.

I am attaching two documents: (1) a spreadsheet of each Dasher's comment along with their name, contact info and date of email and (2) a file that attaches each letter individually. These comments should be included in the DCWP's official public comments record. Thank you so much.

Best,
Sascha

-- Sent from Yoedys Rodriguez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yoedys and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Yoedys Rodriguez
67 Etna St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Evans Frederic to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Evans and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Evans Frederic
1304 New York Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11203

-- Sent from Juana de fuerte to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juana and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Juana de fuerte
1765 Townsend Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Emilio salas to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Emilio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Emilio salas
1327 Hobart Ave
The Bronx, NY 10461

-- Sent from Devon Brooks to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Devon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Devon Brooks
2500 Webb Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Eddy Siliezar to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eddy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Eddy Siliezar
91 Belmont Ave
Elmont, NY 11003

-- Sent from Wenqi Chen to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wenqi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Wenqi Chen
137 Avenue O
Brooklyn, NY 11204

-- Sent from Becka Bockuchava to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Becka and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Becka Bockuchava
1085 Sheepshead Bay Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11229

-- Sent from Jamel Caraballo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jamel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jamel Caraballo
361 E 163rd St
The Bronx, NY 10451

-- Sent from Alexander Urwand to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alexander and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alexander Urwand
1623 Stadium Ave
The Bronx, NY 10465

-- Sent from SHERITA JOHNSON to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is SHERITA and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

SHERITA JOHNSON
1515 Pennsylvania Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11239

-- Sent from Elizabeth Gonzalez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elizabeth and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Gonzalez
671 Manida St
The Bronx, NY 10474

-- Sent from Malik Valbrun to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Malik and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Malik Valbrun
4011 Kings Hwy
Brooklyn, NY 11234

-- Sent from Landry Gunawan to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Landry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Landry Gunawan
42-24 Hampton St
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Johnny carrion to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Johnny and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Johnny carrion
1144 Metcalf Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Ferguson Ankrah to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ferguson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ferguson Ankrah
201 Treadwell Ave
Staten Island, NY 10302

-- Sent from Paul Jennings to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Paul and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Paul Jennings
116-34 168th St
Queens, NY 11434

-- Sent from Clark Hassler to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Clark and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Clark Hassler
122 Forsyth St
New York, NY 10002

-- Sent from Luis Barros to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Luis Barros
80-33 89th Ave
Queens, NY 11421

-- Sent from Jiande Zhou to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jiande and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jiande Zhou
135-02 Booth Memorial Ave
Queens, NY 11355

-- Sent from Eric Pena to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eric and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Eric Pena
78-86 Thayer St
New York, NY 10040

-- Sent from Perla Rivas to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Perla and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Perla Rivas
357 E 163rd St
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from Mohammed Basha to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohammed and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mohammed Basha
1819 85th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214

-- Sent from nilda santiago to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is nilda and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to

continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

nilda santiago
654 E 224th St
The Bronx, NY 10466

-- Sent from Cesar Cedillo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Cesar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Cesar Cedillo
97-30 42nd Ave
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Natasha Blount to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Natasha and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Natasha Blount
460 E Main St
New York, NY 10044

-- Sent from Sergio osorio to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sergio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Sergio osorio
11123 158th St
Queens, NY 11433

-- Sent from Alvaro Varela to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alvaro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alvaro Varela
1491 Westchester Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Altan Ergun to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Altan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Altan Ergun
308 W 103rd St
New York, NY 10025

-- Sent from Amy k to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Amy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Amy k
54 E 179th St
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Brian Dawson to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Brian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Brian Dawson
148-04 Edgewood St
Queens, NY 11422

-- Sent from RAFIQUL ISLAM to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is RAFIQUL and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where,

and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

RAFIQUL ISLAM
220 Forbell St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Jose Mendez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Mendez
132-05 120th Ave

Queens, NY 11420

-- Sent from Yoben Lopez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yoben and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Yoben Lopez
90-36 149th St
Queens, NY 11435

-- Sent from Adalisbeth Sanchez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Adalisbeth and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule

could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Adalisbeth Sanchez
114 High St
Yonkers, NY 10703

-- Sent from Breann Sylvester to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Breann and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Breann Sylvester
700 E 156th St
The Bronx, NY 10455

-- Sent from Yenelitza Guzman to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yenelitza and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Yenelitza Guzman
128-16 161st St
Queens, NY 11434

-- Sent from Ethian Miranda to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ethian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ethian Miranda
404 E 48th St
Brooklyn, NY 11203

-- Sent from Milagros Ormeno to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Milagros and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Milagros Ormeno
23-11 Cornaga Ave
Queens, NY 11691

-- Sent from Mickey Busanet to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mickey and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mickey Busanet
1137 Noble Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Daniel tapia to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Daniel tapia
37-20 94th St
Queens, NY 11372

-- Sent from Terence Washington to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Terence and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Terence Washington
177 Sands St
Brooklyn, NY 11201

-- Sent from Domingo santiago to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Domingo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Domingo santiago
104-43 43rd Ave
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Evelyn Rodriguez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Evelyn and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Evelyn Rodriguez
424 E 13th St
New York, NY 10009

-- Sent from Armando Muniz to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Armando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Armando Muniz
65-44 162nd St
Queens, NY 11365

-- Sent from Videl Dunker to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Videl and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Videl Dunker
1655 Flatbush Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11210

-- Sent from Nafaa lahabi to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nafaa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Nafaa lahabi
307 E 109th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Nafaa lahabi to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nafaa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Nafaa lahabi
307 E 109th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Madjid Chebrine to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Madjid and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Madjid Chebrine
430 Senator St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from Tatyana Fernandez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tatyana and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Tatyana Fernandez
216 Westervelt Ave
Staten Island, NY 10301

-- Sent from Rohan Wisdom to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rohan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rohan Wisdom
790 Snediker Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Richard Dozier to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Richard and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Richard Dozier
630 Stanley Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Jonathan Pozo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jonathan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Pozo
905 Tinton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from Jerry Egbunu to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jerry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jerry Egbunu
660 E 242nd St
The Bronx, NY 10470

-- Sent from maxim teytelman to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is maxim and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

maxim teytelman
102 Shore Front Pkwy
Queens, NY 11693

-- Sent from Saturnino Oropeza to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Saturnino and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Saturnino Oropeza
223 Wyckoff Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11237

-- Sent from Mersy Ramirez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mersy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mersy Ramirez
712 Logan Ave
The Bronx, NY 10465

-- Sent from DILIO NOLASCO to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is DILIO and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

DILIO NOLASCO
15 North St
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Robinson Medina to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Robinson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Robinson Medina
82 Ellwood St
New York, NY 10040

-- Sent from Yesica Espinosa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yesica and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Yesica Espinosa
81-15 31st Ave
Queens, NY 11370

-- Sent from Hector Vitiello to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hector and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Hector Vitiello
2143 Starling Ave
The Bronx, NY 10462

-- Sent from Juan PÃ©rez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Juan Perez
325 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Juan PÃ©rez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Juan Perez
325 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Nicholas Tobar to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nicholas and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Nicholas Tobar
2473 Davidson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Jian Zhou to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jian Zhou
265 Manetto Hill Rd
Plainview, NY 11803

-- Sent from Leon Lynch to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Leon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Leon Lynch
43-06 210th St
Queens, NY 11361

-- Sent from Leon Lynch to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Leon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Leon Lynch
43-06 210th St
Queens, NY 11361

-- Sent from Mohammed Hasan to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohammed and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where,

and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mohammed Hasan
150-50 116th Rd
Queens, NY 11434

-- Sent from Jose Zamora to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Zamora
43-04 30th Ave.

Queens, NY 11103

-- Sent from Angel Cruz to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Angel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Angel Cruz
11 Mapleton Ave
Staten Island, NY 10306

-- Sent from Farhod Majidov to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Farhod and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule

could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Farhod Majidov
2940 Ocean Pkwy
Brooklyn, NY 11235

-- Sent from Altagracia pereyra to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Altagracia and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Altagracia pereyra
125-01 9th Ave
Queens, NY 11356

-- Sent from Ricardo Jordan to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricardo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ricardo Jordan
375 Pleasant Ave
New York, NY 10035

-- Sent from Carlos Tapia to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carlos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Carlos Tapia
2 Broadway Terrace
New York, NY 10040

-- Sent from Carlos Tapia to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carlos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Carlos Tapia
2 Broadway Terrace
New York, NY 10040

-- Sent from Kalpesh Pandya to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kalpesh and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Kalpesh Pandya
229-14 Hillside Avenue
Queens, NY 11427

-- Sent from Jempher Rodriguez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jempher and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jempher Rodriguez
2159 Morris Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Dulce Martinez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Dulce and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Dulce Martinez
65 Rose Ave
Hempstead, NY 11550

-- Sent from Jiang Wu to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jiang and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jiang Wu
8659 24th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11214

-- Sent from Michelle Hearn to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Michelle and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Michelle Hearn

97 Kingston Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11213

-- Sent from Nadeem Hoosein to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nadeem and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Nadeem Hoosein
85-31 120th St
Queens, NY 11415

-- Sent from Deiri Torres-Morales to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Deiri and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Deiri Torres-Morales
948 Eastern Pkwy
Brooklyn, NY 11213

-- Sent from Terryl Bishop to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Terryl and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Terryl Bishop
1089 E 51st St
Brooklyn, NY 11234

-- Sent from Antwain Allen to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Antwain and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Antwain Allen
830 St Marks Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11213

-- Sent from Ricardo Trujillo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricardo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ricardo Trujillo
468 60th St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from AGUSTIN NUNEZ to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is AGUSTIN and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

AGUSTIN NUNEZ
88-36 76th St
Queens, NY 11421

-- Sent from Aristeo Hernandez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Aristeo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Aristeo Hernandez
634 E 187th St
The Bronx, NY 10458

-- Sent from Diambe Diagne to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Diambe and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Diambe Diagne
60 St Nicholas Ave
New York, NY 10026

-- Sent from Schnider Sejour to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Schnider and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Schnider Sejour
1142 E 102nd St
Brooklyn, NY 11236

-- Sent from Girolamo Genova to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Girolamo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Girolamo Genova
160 Linden Rd
Mineola, NY 11501

-- Sent from Mohamed berichi to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohamed and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mohamed berichi
43-11 55th St
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Adan Perez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Adan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Adan Perez
17 W 182nd St
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from angelika Herbert to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is angelika and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

angelika Herbert
Olinville Ave
The Bronx, NY 10467

-- Sent from JOSEPH RODRIGUEZ to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is JOSEPH and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

JOSEPH RODRIGUEZ
235 E 196th St

The Bronx, NY 10458

-- Sent from Mahalia Sanders to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mahalia and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mahalia Sanders
108-26 Flatlands 9th St
Brooklyn, NY 11236

-- Sent from Braulio torres to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Braulio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule

could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Braulio torres
1749 Grand Concourse
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Julio varga to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Julio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Julio varga
687 Meeker Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11222

-- Sent from Jamaal jacquet to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jamaal and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jamaal jacquet
215 Etna St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Daniel Compaore to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Daniel Compaore
3229 Bruner Ave
The Bronx, NY 10469

-- Sent from Harold Hart to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Harold and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Harold Hart
2930 W 30th St
Brooklyn, NY 11224

-- Sent from Robert Rodriguez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Robert and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Robert Rodriguez
201 W Kingsbridge Rd
The Bronx, NY 10463

-- Sent from Kenneth McKenzie to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kenneth and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Kenneth McKenzie
141 W 5th St
Mount Vernon, NY 10550

-- Sent from Md Islam to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Md and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Md Islam
8859 18th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11214

-- Sent from Darwin Jara to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Darwin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Darwin Jara
58-41 78th Ave
Queens, NY 11385

-- Sent from Leron Mayo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Leron and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Leron Mayo

185 Beechwood Ave
Roosevelt, NY 11575

-- Sent from Jose Sanchez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Sanchez
2314 Valentine Ave
The Bronx, NY 10458

-- Sent from Heriberto Gomez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Heriberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Heriberto Gomez
218-05 Hillside Avenue
Queens, NY 11427

-- Sent from Robert Rodr guez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Robert and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Robert Rodriguez
200 W Kingsbridge Rd
The Bronx, NY 10463

-- Sent from Aleysha Hosang to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Aleysha and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Aleysha Hosang
629 Union St
Brooklyn, NY 11215

-- Sent from Guichun Chen to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Guichun and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Guichun Chen
908 59th St
Brooklyn, NY 11219

-- Sent from Felicia Samaroo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Felicia and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Felicia Samaroo
130-45 225th St
Queens, NY 11413

-- Sent from Christian Raphael to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Christian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Christian Raphael
733 Florence St
Baldwin, NY 11510

-- Sent from Martin Jennings to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Martin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Martin Jennings
330 W 95th St
New York, NY 10025

-- Sent from Anthony Diaz to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Anthony and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Anthony Diaz
68 Woodward Terrace
Woodbury, NY 10917

-- Sent from Greg Wilton to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Greg and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Greg Wilton
170 Egbert Ave
Staten Island, NY 10310

-- Sent from Cheick Kaba to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Cheick and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Cheick Kaba
624 E 222nd St
The Bronx, NY 10467

-- Sent from Luis cortes to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Luis cortes
40-21 67th St
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Luis cortes to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Luis cortes
40-21 67th St
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Andrada Herescu to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Andrada and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Andrada Herescu
24-15 77th St
Queens, NY 11370

-- Sent from Kristine Gasparyan to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kristine and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Kristine Gasparyan
1545 Dahill Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11204

-- Sent from Gabriel Martinez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Gabriel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Gabriel Martinez
61-25 Woodside Ave
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Ashley Pierzynkowski to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ashley and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ashley Pierzynkowski
12 Francesca Ln
Staten Island, NY 10303

-- Sent from Rupinder Kaur to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rupinder and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rupinder Kaur
149-46 Lefferts Blvd
Queens, NY 11420

-- Sent from Orlando garcia to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Orlando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Orlando garcia
345 E 101st St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Tayfun Tarakcioglu to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tayfun and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Tayfun Tarakcioglu
4 Pembroke Dr
Glen Cove, NY 11542

-- Sent from Alberto Ramirez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alberto Ramirez
61 Ten Eyck St
Brooklyn, NY 11206

-- Sent from NIROSHA BANDUGE to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is NIROSHA and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

NIROSHA BANDUGE
56 Eldridge Ave
Staten Island, NY 10302

-- Sent from Jatinder Sembhi to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jatinder and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jatinder Sembhi
229-20 Hillside Avenue
Queens, NY 11427

-- Sent from Jocelyne Arcentales to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jocelyne and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jocelyne Arcentales
32-43 81st St
Queens, NY 11370

-- Sent from Max Desinor to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Max and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Max Desinor
869 Oliver Ave
Westbury, NY 11590

-- Sent from Thelma Brown to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Thelma and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Thelma Brown
60 Beaver Dam Rd
Bellport, NY 11713

-- Sent from Malik Abbas to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Malik and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Malik Abbas
1881 W 6th St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

-- Sent from Juan Frias to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Juan Frias
2663 Heath Ave
The Bronx, NY 10463

-- Sent from Harry Perez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Harry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Harry Perez
6577 160th St
Fresh Meadows, NY 11365

-- Sent from John DAmico to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is John and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

John DAmico
139-81 35th Ave
Queens, NY 11354

-- Sent from Argelis Berroa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Argelis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Argelis Berroa
2719 Morris Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Keisha Rodriguez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Keisha and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Keisha Rodriguez
210 W 230th St
The Bronx, NY 10463

-- Sent from Eddie Ramjeet to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eddie and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Eddie Ramjeet
9144 117th St
Queens, NY 11418

-- Sent from Patrick whittaker to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Patrick and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Patrick whittaker
363 New York Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11213

-- Sent from Elias Venegas to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elias and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Elias Venegas
41-21 29th St
Queens, NY 11101

-- Sent from Joe Doveran to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joe and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Joe Doveran
1063 Willmohr St
Brooklyn, NY 11212

-- Sent from Marco Rojas to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marco and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Marco Rojas
2954 Valentine Ave
The Bronx, NY 10458

-- Sent from Jose concepcion to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose concepcion
150 W Burnside Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Angel Mestizo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Angel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Angel Mestizo
4005 7th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11232

-- Sent from Albert Ventura to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Albert and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Albert Ventura
524 W 173rd St
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from Jose ramos to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose ramos
82 Hancock St
Brooklyn, NY 11216

-- Sent from Mamadou Tambadou to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mamadou and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mamadou Tambadou
1491 Macombs Rd
The Bronx, NY 10452

-- Sent from Henry Garcia to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Henry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Henry Garcia
713 Pleasant Ave
Westbury, NY 11590

-- Sent from William Charite to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is William and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

William Charite
1110 Bushwick Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11221

-- Sent from Ramon Powell to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ramon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ramon Powell
103-31 171st St
Queens, NY 11433

-- Sent from Justian Joseph to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Justian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Justian Joseph
36 Gordon Rd
Valley Stream, NY 11581

-- Sent from Titus Bogba to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Titus and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Titus Bogba
516 Main St
New York, NY 10044

-- Sent from Hammad Chaudhry to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hammad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Hammad Chaudhry
327 Britton Ave
Staten Island, NY 10304

-- Sent from James Riebl to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is James and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

James Riebl
220 Westend Ave
Freeport, NY 11520

-- Sent from Arturo H to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Arturo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Arturo H

127 Allen St
New York, NY 10002

-- Sent from Godsway Davies to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Godsway and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Godsway Davies
1368 Sheridan Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from Abrahima Zalle to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Abrahima and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Abrahima Zalle
424 E 149th St
The Bronx, NY 10455

-- Sent from Giacomo Buzzetta to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Giacomo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Giacomo Buzzetta
828 Bloomingdale Rd
Staten Island, NY 10309

-- Sent from Wilson rodriguez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wilson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Wilson rodriguez
751 Gerard Ave
The Bronx, NY 10451

-- Sent from John Noble to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is John and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

John Noble
1245 Avenue X
Brooklyn, NY 11235

-- Sent from Julio Payano to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Julio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Julio Payano
565 Merrick Rd
Rockville Centre, NY 11570

-- Sent from anthony cooper to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is anthony and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

anthony cooper
261 Woodbine St
Brooklyn, NY 11221

-- Sent from Maria Ludena to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Maria and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Maria Ludena
55 Dongan Ave
Staten Island, NY 10314

-- Sent from Henry Madzaela to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Henry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Henry Madzaela
1050 Anderson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10452

-- Sent from Ashram Brown to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ashram and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ashram Brown
839 Throgs Neck Expy
The Bronx, NY 10465

-- Sent from Jeffrey Moreno to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jeffrey and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey Moreno
1755 Bruckner Blvd
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Damien Steele to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Damien and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Damien Steele
530 Fashion Ave
New York, NY 10018

-- Sent from Md Chowdhury to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Md and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Md Chowdhury
39-25 24th St
Queens, NY 11101

-- Sent from Furkat Khamidov to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Furkat and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Furkat Khamidov
jamshid.ochilov.1987@gmail.com
Brooklyn, NY 11218

-- Sent from James Martinosky to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is James and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

James Martinosky
154-17 12th Ave
Queens, NY 11357

-- Sent from Cindy Reyes to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Cindy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Cindy Reyes
1013 Castle Hill Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from GILBERT MATTHEWS to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is GILBERT and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

GILBERT MATTHEWS
500 W 165th St
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from Gbolahan Epemolu to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Gbolahan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Gbolahan Epemolu
134-36 173rd St
Queens, NY 11434

-- Sent from Wibowo Suwarno to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wibowo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Wibowo Suwarno
85-35 Britton Ave
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Jose Cortes to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Cortes
200 Knickerbocker Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11237

-- Sent from Luis Cruz to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Luis Cruz
87 Hale Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from esther leon to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is esther and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

esther leon
630 Pugsley Ave
The Bronx, NY 10473

-- Sent from Rick Federico to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rick and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rick Federico
194 Cleveland Ave
Staten Island, NY 10308

-- Sent from Edwin Jimenez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edwin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where,

and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Edwin Jimenez
4916 6th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from Eulogio juarez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eulogio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Eulogio juarez
312 E 116th St

New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Eulogio juarez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eulogio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Eulogio juarez
312 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Eulogio juarez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eulogio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule

could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Eulogio juarez
312 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Eulogio juarez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eulogio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Eulogio juarez
312 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Ryan Jamieson to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ryan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ryan Jamieson
3512 Clarendon Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11203

-- Sent from Rovshan Muradov to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rovshan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rovshan Muradov
380 Avenue U
Brooklyn, NY 11223

-- Sent from Rovshan Muradov to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rovshan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rovshan Muradov
380 Avenue U
Brooklyn, NY 11223

-- Sent from Nazarova Murodbegim to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nazarova and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Nazarova Murodbegim
1259 W 13th St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

-- Sent from Jean Charles to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jean and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jean Charles
120-16 195th St
Queens, NY 11412

-- Sent from Shakima Miller to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Shakima and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Shakima Miller
4617 Avenue J
Brooklyn, NY 11234

-- Sent from Bobbi Catala to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Bobbi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Bobbi Catala
62-66 80th Rd
Queens, NY 11385

-- Sent from Keneva Edwards to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Keneva and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Keneva Edwards
26 Pearl St
Mount Vernon, NY 10550

-- Sent from Theodore Pettiford to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Theodore and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Theodore Pettiford
29 S 11th Ave
Mount Vernon, NY 10550

-- Sent from Yemani Vasquez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yemani and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Yemani Vasquez
142 W 143rd St
New York, NY 10030

-- Sent from Angel Garcia to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Angel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Angel Garcia
24-12 32nd St
Queens, NY 11102

-- Sent from Rolando Chopen to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rolando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rolando Chopen
49-12 99th St
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Rolando Chopen to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rolando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rolando Chopen
49-12 99th St
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Rolando Chopen to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rolando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rolando Chopen
49-12 99th St
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Santiago ramirez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Santiago and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Santiago ramirez
322 E 141st St
The Bronx, NY 10454

-- Sent from gebrelmitchell to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is gebrelmitchell and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

gebre mitchell
17 Amundson Ave
Mount Vernon, NY 10550

-- Sent from Domingo SÃ¡nchez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Domingo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Domingo Sanchez
427 W 26th St
New York, NY 10001

-- Sent from Alfredo Tejada to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alfredo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alfredo Tejada
2036 Amsterdam Ave
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from Jerry mardy to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jerry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jerry mardy
430 Park Ave
New York, NY 10022

-- Sent from hardeep singh to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is hardeep and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

hardeep singh
82-24 247th St
Queens, NY 11426

-- Sent from Shahir mirza to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Shahir and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Shahir mirza
1432 E Gun Hill Rd
The Bronx, NY 10469

-- Sent from Agustin feliciano to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Agustin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Agustin feliciano
150 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Dornel Cobourne to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Dornel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Dornel Cobourne
441 E 52nd St
Brooklyn, NY 11203

-- Sent from Isidro Bonilla to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Isidro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Isidro Bonilla
1484 St Nicholas Ave
New York, NY 10033

-- Sent from Isidro Bonilla to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Isidro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Isidro Bonilla
1484 St Nicholas Ave
New York, NY 10033

-- Sent from Isidro Bonilla to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Isidro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Isidro Bonilla
1484 St Nicholas Ave
New York, NY 10033

-- Sent from Guanghong shi to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Guanghong and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Guanghong shi
92-29 Lamont Ave
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Daniel Cipriano to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Daniel Cipriano
4417 5th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from Francisco Barrera to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Francisco and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Francisco Barrera
41 Sickles St
New York, NY 10040

-- Sent from Juan valerio to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Juan valerio
554 Drew St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Francisco leal to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Francisco and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Francisco leal
89-20 43rd Ave
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Auddretta Harrison to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Auddretta and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where,

and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Auddretta Harrison
868 E 51st St
Brooklyn, NY 11203

-- Sent from MD. UDDIN to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is MD. and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

MD. UDDIN
84-59 162nd St

Queens, NY 11432

-- Sent from CHRISTOPHER STEELE to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is CHRISTOPHER and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

CHRISTOPHER STEELE
317 W 45th St
New York, NY 10036

-- Sent from Edgar Andrade to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edgar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Edgar Andrade
35-38 101st St
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Marisa Gonzalez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marisa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Marisa Gonzalez
80 Baruch Dr
New York, NY 10002

-- Sent from Wesley fecu to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wesley and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Wesley fecu
575 Ocean Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from Jermaine Royster to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jermaine and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jermaine Royster
1181 Bushwick Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11221

-- Sent from HECTOR ESTRADA to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is HECTOR and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

HECTOR ESTRADA
2192 Morris Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Douglas Elcock to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Douglas and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Douglas Elcock
185 Erasmus St
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from Julien Preux to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Julien and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Julien Preux
1084 Rogers Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from Pablo Regalado to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Pablo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Pablo Regalado
W 172nd St
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from Aboubacar Ki to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Aboubacar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Aboubacar Ki
1346 Taylor Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Jose Marte to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Marte
235 E 149th St
The Bronx, NY 10451

-- Sent from Jose Feliciano to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Feliciano
2290 Davidson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Enrique Almonte to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Enrique and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Enrique Almonte
104 Sumpter St
Brooklyn, NY 11233

-- Sent from Joseph Channan to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joseph and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Joseph Channan
256 Hemlock St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Rabiye ozbay to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rabiye and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rabiye ozbay
400 Marlborough Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from Rabiye ozbay to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rabiye and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rabiye ozbay
400 Marlborough Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from Khaliljon Ruzmetov to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Khaliljon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Khaliljon Ruzmetov
2570 E 24th St
Brooklyn, NY 11235

-- Sent from Rigoberto Guzman to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rigoberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rigoberto Guzman
25 Mt Hope Pl
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Sarah Marcus to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sarah and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Sarah Marcus
1035 Rev James A Polite Ave
The Bronx, NY 10459

-- Sent from Daniel Leahy to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Daniel Leahy
227 Sharrott Ave
Staten Island, NY 10309

-- Sent from GURVINDER SINGH to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is GURVINDER and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

GURVINDER SINGH
882 N Fletcher Ave
Valley Stream, NY 11580

-- Sent from Jonell ifill to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jonell and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jonell ifill
531 E Lincoln Ave
Mount Vernon, NY 10552

-- Sent from Mark sidoli to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mark and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mark sidoli
198-22 26th Ave
Queens, NY 11358

-- Sent from Pepertual Kyeraa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Pepertual and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Pepertual Kyeraa
3335 De Reimer Ave
The Bronx, NY 10475

-- Sent from Charles Mitchell to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Charles and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Charles Mitchell
628 Eldert Ln
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Regino Peralta to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Regino and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Regino Peralta
4404 New Utrecht Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11219

-- Sent from Delwin garcia to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Delwin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Delwin garcia
1011 Carroll Pl
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from Yoryi Torres to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yoryi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Yoryi Torres
600 W 142nd St
New York, NY 10031

-- Sent from J D to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is J and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

J D
275 Clarkson Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from Cyan Haughton to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Cyan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Cyan Haughton
1530 Story Ave
The Bronx, NY 10473

-- Sent from Sergio Depinto to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sergio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Sergio Depinto
465 Maine Ave
Staten Island, NY 10314

-- Sent from Jose villa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose villa
488 E 163rd St
The Bronx, NY 10451

-- Sent from Armando sancir to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Armando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Armando sancir
23-50 98th St
Queens, NY 11369

-- Sent from Armando sancir to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Armando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Armando sancir
23-50 98th St
Queens, NY 11369

-- Sent from Diego Escandell to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Diego and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where,

and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Diego Escandell
3 Pulsifer Ave
Yonkers, NY 10701

-- Sent from Jia Ye to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jia and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jia Ye
152 Freeborn St

Staten Island, NY 10306

-- Sent from Daniel Taveras to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Daniel Taveras
74-18 Park Ln S
Queens, NY 11421

-- Sent from Carol Mena to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carol and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule

could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Carol Mena
1824 Watson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Md salauddin to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Md and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Md salauddin
40-33 74th Street
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Jhonny Cabrera to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jhonny and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jhonny Cabrera
860 E 161 St
The Bronx, NY 10459

-- Sent from Jaba chokheli to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jaba and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jaba chokheli
535 Neptune Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11224

-- Sent from Stephanie Hodge to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Stephanie and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Hodge
52 Arden St
New York, NY 10040

-- Sent from Bryan Gabriel to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Bryan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Bryan Gabriel
2735 Sedgwick Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Velihan Konuk to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Velihan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Velihan Konuk
10 Fiske Pl
Uniondale, NY 11553

-- Sent from Michael Crawford to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Michael and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Michael Crawford
133-07 140th St
Queens, NY 11436

-- Sent from Edward Saunders to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edward and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Edward Saunders
1610 Dudley Ave
Utica, NY 13501

-- Sent from William jean to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is William and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

William jean

123 Blake Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11212

-- Sent from Jose Serrano to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Serrano
2457 Belmont Ave
The Bronx, NY 10458

-- Sent from Xavier Quintero to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Xavier and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Xavier Quintero
9608 57th Ave
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Tyree Williams to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tyree and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Tyree Williams
186 Denton Pl
Roosevelt, NY 11575

-- Sent from Patrick Rene to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Patrick and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Patrick Rene
30 S 7th Ave
Mount Vernon, NY 10550

-- Sent from Samuel Alvarez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Samuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Samuel Alvarez
41-27 Gleane St
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Melissa Earle-Davis to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Melissa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Melissa Earle-Davis
996 Hegeman Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Allen Adams to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Allen and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Allen Adams
1366 74th St
Brooklyn, NY 11228

-- Sent from Jesse Figueroa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jesse and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jesse Figueroa
770 Hancock St
Brooklyn, NY 11233

-- Sent from Jesse Figueroa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jesse and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jesse Figueroa
770 Hancock St
Brooklyn, NY 11233

-- Sent from Marcia Vandyke to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marcia and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Marcia Vandyke
2035 E 7th St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

-- Sent from Raul Mendoza to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Raul and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Raul Mendoza
515 W 179th St
New York, NY 10033

-- Sent from Shawnhimself Enrique to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Shawnhimself and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Shawnhimself Enrique
257-18 Craft Ave
Queens, NY 11422

-- Sent from Alpha barry to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alpha and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alpha Barry
1700 Bedford Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11225

-- Sent from Ida McDonald to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ida and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ida McDonald
220 Highland Blvd
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Billy Belen to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Billy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Billy Belen
2135 Crotona Ave
The Bronx, NY 10457

-- Sent from Fidel pardo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Fidel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Fidel pardo
171 E 111th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Robinalicia Mathews to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Robinalicia and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Robinalicia Mathews
2615 Jerome Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Joshua Hazan to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joshua and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Joshua Hazan
309 E 110th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Kevin Cantillo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kevin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Kevin Cantillo
14911 85th St
Howard Beach, NY 11414

-- Sent from lurie Graur to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is lurie and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

lurie Graur
1657 W 9th St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

-- Sent from Sirleta Nedd to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sirleta and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Sirleta Nedd
532 Marcy Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11206

-- Sent from Wendy Lam to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wendy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Wendy Lam
488 S Marginal Rd
Jericho, NY 11753

-- Sent from Chuck Ngan to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Chuck and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Chuck Ngan
1920 85th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214

-- Sent from Darryl Campbell to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Darryl and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Darryl Campbell
91 Pitt St
Queens, NY 11412

-- Sent from Davis Aguiar to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Davis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Davis Aguiar

62 E 182nd St
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Hiroshi Takegama to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hiroshi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Hiroshi Takegama
32 Jerome St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Hiroshi Takegama to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hiroshi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Hiroshi Takegama
32 Jerome St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Alexis LÃ³pez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alexis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alexis Lopez
535 W 135th St
New York, NY 10031

-- Sent from Wilbel German to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wilbel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Wilbel German
277 E 207th St
The Bronx, NY 10467

-- Sent from Mickel regis to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mickel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mickel regis
1020 New York Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11203

-- Sent from Mamadou Baldd to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mamadou and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mamadou Baldd
5530 98th Pl
Corona, NY 11368

-- Sent from Evert Arriola to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Evert and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Evert Arriola
24-01 92nd St
Queens, NY 11369

-- Sent from Abdulla Masum to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Abdulla and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Abdulla Masum
90-17 32nd Ave
Queens, NY 11369

-- Sent from Tyrone Fernandez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tyrone and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Tyrone Fernandez
216 Westervelt Ave
Staten Island, NY 10301

-- Sent from Tyrone Fernandez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tyrone and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Tyrone Fernandez
216 Westervelt Ave
Staten Island, NY 10301

-- Sent from Duwayne Hawthorne to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Duwayne and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Duwayne Hawthorne
3304 Bouck Ave
The Bronx, NY 10469

-- Sent from Greibel gonzalez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Greibel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Greibel gonzalez
566 Williams Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Jonathan Peralta to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jonathan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Peralta
39-26 Clearview Expy
Queens, NY 11361

-- Sent from Travis Bobb to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Travis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Travis Bobb
129 W 147th St
New York, NY 10039

-- Sent from Henri Bah to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Henri and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Henri Bah
1052 Anderson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10452

-- Sent from Ifthekar Ahmed to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ifthekar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ifthekar Ahmed
9724 93rd St
Queens, NY 11416

-- Sent from Winston Bain to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Winston and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Winston Bain
9424 87th St
Queens, NY 11416

-- Sent from Elam azcona to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elam and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Elam azcona
91 Eagle St
Brooklyn, NY 11222

-- Sent from Giorgi Managadze to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Giorgi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Giorgi Managadze
501 Brightwater Ct
Brooklyn, NY 11235

-- Sent from Carmelo Arroyo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carmelo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Carmelo Arroyo
1901 84th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214

-- Sent from Jencie Samora to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jencie and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jencie Samora
1105 Morrison Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Anibal Rojas to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Anibal and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Anibal Rojas
287 Irving Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11237

-- Sent from Felix Morales to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Felix and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Felix Morales
858 42nd St
Brooklyn, NY 11232

-- Sent from Imeda chachkhiani to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Imeda and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where,

and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Imeda chachkhiani
1269 E 18th St
Brooklyn, NY 11230

-- Sent from Evelyn Rivera to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Evelyn and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Evelyn Rivera
800 Barretto St

The Bronx, NY 10474

-- Sent from NINA IVERY to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is NINA and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

NINA IVERY
366 Roquette Ave
South Floral Park, NY 11001

-- Sent from Ryan Choice to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ryan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule

could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ryan Choice
20 N 5th St
Brooklyn, NY 11249

-- Sent from Nicholas Small to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nicholas and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Nicholas Small
115-32 202nd St
Queens, NY 11412

-- Sent from JosÃ© RodrÃ­guez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Rodriguez
515 52nd St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from Hector Ramos to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hector and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Hector Ramos
20 Wendell St
Hempstead, NY 11550

-- Sent from nelson hernandez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is nelson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

nelson hernandez
72-48 67th Pl
Queens, NY 11385

-- Sent from Mohammad Chowdhury to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohammad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mohammad Chowdhury
90-10 149th St
Queens, NY 11435

-- Sent from Edvin segura to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edvin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Edvin segura
475 Brook Ave
The Bronx, NY 10455

-- Sent from Keion stone to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Keion and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Keion stone
251 Clifton Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11216

-- Sent from Samantha Buffa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Samantha and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Samantha Buffa
1849 W 10th St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

-- Sent from JAIME GARCIA to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is JAIME and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

JAIME GARCIA
211 Butler St
Brooklyn, NY 11217

-- Sent from Jean-Luc Rivera to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jean-Luc and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jean-Luc Rivera
130 E 104th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Theresa Agosta to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Theresa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Theresa Agosta
2073 W 5th St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

-- Sent from Jonathan salcedo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jonathan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jonathan salcedo
1005 Jerome Ave
The Bronx, NY 10452

-- Sent from Lisa otto to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Lisa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Lisa otto
273 Fairbanks Ave
Staten Island, NY 10306

-- Sent from Brandon Diaz to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Brandon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Brandon Diaz
575 Castle Hill Ave
The Bronx, NY 10473

-- Sent from Rawle Folkes to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rawle and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rawle Folkes
1510 Carroll St
Brooklyn, NY 11213

-- Sent from Edwin RamÃ¡rez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edwin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Edwin Ramirez
316 E 126th St
New York, NY 10035

-- Sent from Edwin RamÃ¡rez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edwin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Edwin Ramirez
316 E 126th St
New York, NY 10035

-- Sent from David Barto to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is David and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

David Barto
100-06 92nd Ave
Queens, NY 11418

-- Sent from Christopher Chan to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Christopher and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Christopher Chan
70-27 Park Dr E
Queens, NY 11367

-- Sent from Lasha sujashvili to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Lasha and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Lasha sujashvili
1961 65th St
Brooklyn, NY 11204

-- Sent from Jessica Montiel to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jessica and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jessica Montiel
112-35 38th Ave
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Guangsen xia to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Guangsen and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Guangsen xia
647 46th St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from Tyresse Calhoun to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tyresse and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Tyresse Calhoun
2522 Newkirk Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from Jordys Aquino to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jordys and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jordys Aquino
550 W 45th St
New York, NY 10036

-- Sent from Orville samuels to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Orville and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Orville samuels
3111 Aurelia Ct
Brooklyn, NY 11210

-- Sent from Chinedum Azikiwe to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Chinedum and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Chinedum Azikiwe
15515 N Conduit Ave
Jamaica, NY 11434

-- Sent from Hanif Ansaar to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hanif and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Hanif Ansaar
1824 Edison Ave
The Bronx, NY 10461

-- Sent from Ruslan Galiev to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ruslan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ruslan Galiev
2127 E 24th St
Brooklyn, NY 11229

-- Sent from Tani Lawrence to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tani and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Tani Lawrence
174-25 127th Ave
Queens, NY 11434

-- Sent from Pedro Costa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Pedro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Pedro Costa
100 Roebling St
Brooklyn, NY 11211

-- Sent from Alisson Costa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alisson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alisson Costa
60-31 60th Pl
Queens, NY 11378

-- Sent from Abdoulaye Tounkara to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Abdoulaye and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Abdoulaye Tounkara
3207 Park Ave
The Bronx, NY 10451

-- Sent from Abdoulaye Tounkara to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Abdoulaye and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Abdoulaye Tounkara
3207 Park Ave
The Bronx, NY 10451

-- Sent from Richard Ortega to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Richard and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Richard Ortega
464 Nostrand Ave.
Brooklyn, NY 11216

-- Sent from Eugene Barrientos to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eugene and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Eugene Barrientos
41-10 95th St
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Fernando Juarez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Fernando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Fernando Juarez
2310 Valentine Ave
The Bronx, NY 10458

-- Sent from Kevin espadero to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kevin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Kevin espadero
3814 97th St
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Alejandro mora to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alejandro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alejandro mora
2217 Ave Y
Brooklyn, NY 11235

-- Sent from Librado Peralta to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Librado and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Librado Peralta
581 Wyona St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from qiang lin to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is qiang and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

qiang lin
1149 80th St
Brooklyn, NY 11228

-- Sent from KRon Simmons to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is KRon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

KRon Simmons
455 Holly Pl
West Hempstead, NY 11552

-- Sent from Marianna Greco to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marianna and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Marianna Greco
136 Churchill Ave
Staten Island, NY 10309

-- Sent from Akeem Elegbeji to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Akeem and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Akeem Elegbeji
146-21 222nd St
Queens, NY 11413

-- Sent from Tremaine Wright to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tremaine and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Tremaine Wright
954 Madison St
Brooklyn, NY 11221

-- Sent from Michael McLean to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Michael and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Michael McLean
75 Wilson St
Brooklyn, NY 11249

-- Sent from Rafiel Perez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rafiel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rafiel Perez
2118 Chatterton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Rafiel Perez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rafiel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rafiel Perez
2118 Chatterton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Rodrique goode to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rodrique and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rodrique goode
1026 Prospect Ave
The Bronx, NY 10459

-- Sent from Ewan Biggs to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ewan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ewan Biggs
1364 Prospect Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11213

-- Sent from Georgie Caraballo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Georgie and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Georgie Caraballo
890 E 6th St
New York, NY 10009

-- Sent from Circe Gedeon to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Circe and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Circe Gedeon
410 E 25th St
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from Erika Davis to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Erika and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Erika Davis
1544 Boone Ave
The Bronx, NY 10460

-- Sent from Jin Chen to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jin Chen
142-02 Franklin Ave
Queens, NY 11355

-- Sent from christopher correa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is christopher and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

christopher correa
4260 65th Pl
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Michael Nguyen to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Michael and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Michael Nguyen
1106 Allerton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10469

-- Sent from Abena Siriboa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Abena and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Abena Siriboa
108-17 171st Pl
Queens, NY 11433

-- Sent from Oswaldo Vazquez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oswaldo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Oswaldo Vazquez
226 E 122nd St
New York, NY 10035

-- Sent from Carolina Castro to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carolina and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where,

and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Carolina Castro
685 Georgia Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Christopher Hudson to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Christopher and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Christopher Hudson

1655 Flatbush Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11210

-- Sent from Margaret DiBernardino to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Margaret and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Margaret DiBernardino
259 Hyatt Ave
Yonkers, NY 10704

-- Sent from Rafael Comunidad to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rafael and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rafael Comunidad
3916 7th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11232

-- Sent from Milton Medina to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Milton and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Milton Medina
50-22 103rd St
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Rocael Ramirez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rocael and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rocael Ramirez
312 E 105th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Elmer RamÃrez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elmer and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Elmer Ramirez
2059 2nd Ave
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Christopher Green to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Christopher and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Christopher Green
1972 Adam Clayton Powell Jr Blvd
New York, NY 10026

-- Sent from Hermelindo MartÁnez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hermelindo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Hermelindo Martinez
108 Field Pl
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Hermelindo MartÁnez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hermelindo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Hermelindo Martinez
108 Field Pl
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Margarito Bautista to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Margarito and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Margarito Bautista
1158 Boynton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Leonidas pena to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Leonidas and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Leonidas pena
2919 Sampson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10465

-- Sent from Emad Ibrahim to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Emad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Emad Ibrahim
1026 56th St
Brooklyn, NY 11219

-- Sent from Joshua Pichardo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joshua and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Joshua Pichardo
265 Livonia Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11212

-- Sent from NicHole George to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is NicHole and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

NicHole George
1195 Carroll St
Brooklyn, NY 11225

-- Sent from Victor Ponce to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Victor and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Victor Ponce

720 Hart St
Brooklyn, NY 11221

-- Sent from md islam to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is md and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

md islam
1212 Newkirk Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230

-- Sent from kazi akter to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is kazi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

kazi akter
1212 Newkirk Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230

-- Sent from G. Paxton to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is G. and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

G. Paxton
189 E 3rd St
New York, NY 10009

-- Sent from justin philidor to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is justin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

justin philidor
823 E 48th St
Brooklyn, NY 11203

-- Sent from Hugo Rodriguez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hugo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Hugo Rodriguez
110-14 Astoria Blvd
Queens, NY 11369

-- Sent from qun chen to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is qun and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

qun chen
659 59th St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from HÃ©ctor Santos to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hector and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Hector Santos
400 W 55th St
New York, NY 10019

-- Sent from Ferdinand iorio to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ferdinand and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ferdinand iorio
251 Giffords Ln
Staten Island, NY 10308

-- Sent from Rosmery Veras to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rosmery and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rosmery Veras
1504 Sheridan Ave
New York, NY 10457

-- Sent from Atiliano miranda to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Atiliano and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Atiliano miranda
1026 Ward Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Henry Giraldo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Henry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Henry Giraldo
52-51 65th Pl
Queens, NY 11378

-- Sent from Benjamin Crisp to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Benjamin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Benjamin Crisp
50 Nevins St
Brooklyn, NY 11217

-- Sent from Alexander Hidalgo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alexander and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alexander Hidalgo
2271 Morris Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Sardar Durrani to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sardar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Sardar Durrani
41-22 75th St
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Rudy Chong to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rudy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rudy Chong
20-17 Clintonville St
Queens, NY 11357

-- Sent from Mohamed Mlayah to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohamed and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mohamed Mlayah
43-32 Kissena Blvd
Queens, NY 11355

-- Sent from Daniel VAZQUEZ to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Daniel VAZQUEZ
557 W 144th St
New York, NY 10031

-- Sent from Adriana Diaz to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Adriana and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Adriana Diaz
943 Sheridan Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from Adriana Diaz to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Adriana and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Adriana Diaz
943 Sheridan Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from andre Beckford to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is andre and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

andre Beckford
87 E 53rd St
Brooklyn, NY 11203

-- Sent from Amadeo GÃ³mez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Amadeo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Amadeo Gomez
1176 Beach Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Joseph Pizzo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joseph and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Joseph Pizzo
612 Logan Ave
The Bronx, NY 10465

-- Sent from Josanne OBrady to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Josanne and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Josanne OBrady
2950 W 24th St
Brooklyn, NY 11224

-- Sent from Vianny G-Cruz to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Vianny and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Vianny G-Cruz
2403 Fuller St
The Bronx, NY 10461

-- Sent from Edgar Heredia to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edgar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Edgar Heredia
2855 Claflin Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Lady Paredes to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Lady and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Lady Paredes
86-32 Woodhaven Blvd
Queens, NY 11421

-- Sent from Barbara downey to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Barbara and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Barbara downey
561 E 187th St
The Bronx, NY 10458

-- Sent from Jimmy Beltran to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jimmy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jimmy Beltran
67-39 52nd Ave
Queens, NY 11378

-- Sent from Jimmy Trujillo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jimmy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jimmy Trujillo
46 Eldert Ln
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Anthony Baptiste to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Anthony and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Anthony Baptiste
919 E 80th St
Brooklyn, NY 11236

-- Sent from Joseph Tavarez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joseph and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Joseph Tavarez
26-35 92nd St
Queens, NY 11369

-- Sent from Nelson Mora to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nelson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Nelson Mora
393 Bement Ave
Staten Island, NY 10310

-- Sent from Therriana Mathieu to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Therriana and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Therriana Mathieu
1416
Brooklyn, NY 11236

-- Sent from Isaiah oscar to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Isaiah and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Isaiah oscar
40-15 12th St
Queens, NY 11101

-- Sent from MOHAMMAD ROB to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is MOHAMMAD and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where,

and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

MOHAMMAD ROB
622 Ocean Pkwy
Brooklyn, NY 11218

-- Sent from Corey williams to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Corey and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Corey williams
PO Box 138

Bronx, NY 10475

-- Sent from Benjamin Tan to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Benjamin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Benjamin Tan
764 Magenta St
The Bronx, NY 10467

-- Sent from Lazaro Garcia to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Lazaro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule

could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Lazaro Garcia
1826 Gleason Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from James Boynton to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is James and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

James Boynton
922 E 169th St
The Bronx, NY 10459

-- Sent from Henry Campbell to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Henry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Henry Campbell
400 Cozine Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Michael Nieves to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Michael and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Michael Nieves
11148 146th St
Queens, NY 11435

-- Sent from Luis gomez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Luis gomez
2224 Valentine Ave
The Bronx, NY 10457

-- Sent from Jennifer Pendergast to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jennifer and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Pendergast
22-59 Dix Ave
Queens, NY 11691

-- Sent from Manuel Roman to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Manuel Roman
917 Eagle Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from Gristubel Cortes to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Gristubel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Gristubel Cortes
209 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Daniel Kearney to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Daniel Kearney
611 W 163rd St
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from Edel Roberts to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Edel Roberts
395 Lexington Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11216

-- Sent from Brilynnn coronado to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Brilynnn and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Brilynnn coronado
2176 Tiebout Ave
The Bronx, NY 10457

-- Sent from Jeanette Barreto to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jeanette and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jeanette Barreto
15 Bennett St
Staten Island, NY 10302

-- Sent from Brandon Shalim to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Brandon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Brandon Shalim
104-52 112th St
Queens, NY 11419

-- Sent from Rubens Adam to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rubens and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rubens Adam
12 Seville St
Elmont, NY 11003

-- Sent from mohammed chowdhury to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is mohammed and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

mohammed chowdhury
2729 W 33rd St
Brooklyn, NY 11224

-- Sent from Juan Santos to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Juan Santos
17-18 Greene Ave
Queens, NY 11385

-- Sent from Cristhian capellan to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Cristhian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Cristhian capellan
3335 Decatur Ave
The Bronx, NY 10467

-- Sent from Miguel Baquix to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Miguel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Miguel Baquiax
1751 85th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214

-- Sent from jean-claude Rakotoniaina to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is jean-claude and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

jean-claude Rakotoniaina
53-77 69th St
Queens, NY 11378

-- Sent from louis innocent to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is louis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

louis innocent
84 E 31st St
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from Ramon galindo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ramon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ramon galindo
2435 Creston Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Armando marin to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Armando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Armando marin
387 E Mosholu Pkwy N
The Bronx, NY 10467

-- Sent from Martin Victoriano to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Martin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Martin Victoriano
2879 Heath Ave
The Bronx, NY 10463

-- Sent from Martin Victoriano to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Martin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Martin Victoriano

2879 Heath Ave
The Bronx, NY 10463

-- Sent from Joshua Guerrero to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joshua and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Joshua Guerrero
137-55 68th Dr
Queens, NY 11367

-- Sent from Elder Perez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elder and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Elder Perez
502 Jackson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10455

-- Sent from Andinson Ortega to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Andinson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Andinson Ortega
90-33 83rd Ave
Queens, NY 11385

-- Sent from Dolores Bermeo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Dolores and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Dolores Bermeo
55-37 97th St
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Kamran Chaudhry to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kamran and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Kamran Chaudhry
20 Father Capodanno Blvd
Staten Island, NY 10305

-- Sent from Kamran Chaudhry to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kamran and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Kamran Chaudhry
20 Father Capodanno Blvd
Staten Island, NY 10305

-- Sent from Ruben Benitez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ruben and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ruben Benitez
259 W 144th St
New York, NY 10030

-- Sent from Marissa Cummings to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marissa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Marissa Cummings
132-07 Farmers Blvd
Queens, NY 11434

-- Sent from Marvin Cunningham to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marvin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Marvin Cunningham
646 Bradford St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Eloisa Grullon to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eloisa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Eloisa Grullon
802 Saratoga Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11212

-- Sent from Dario Lopez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Dario and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Dario lopez
41 Rockaway Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11233

-- Sent from Habib Diallo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Habib and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Habib Diallo
1565 Nostrand Ave.
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from Jarelle whitehead to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jarelle and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jarelle whitehead
840 Lafayette Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11221

-- Sent from Manuel Pena to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Manuel Pena
2102 Bronx Park E
The Bronx, NY 10462

-- Sent from Alcides Jimenez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alcides and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alcides Jimenez
2743 Wallace Ave
The Bronx, NY 10467

-- Sent from David Tan to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is David and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

David Tan
88-35 53rd Ave
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Ricauris Marte to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricauris and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ricauris Marte
1154 Stratford Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Kabir Hossain to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kabir and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Kabir Hossain
86 Fountain Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Orlando Castillo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Orlando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Orlando Castillo
950 Woodycrest Ave
The Bronx, NY 10452

-- Sent from Dominic Daleus to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Dominic and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Dominic Daleus
107-13 Guy R Brewer Blvd
Queens, NY 11433

-- Sent from Aly saleh to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Aly and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Aly saleh
42 Hamden Ave
Staten Island, NY 10306

-- Sent from Ricardo rojas to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricardo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ricardo rojas
61-03 37th Ave
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Md Robin to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Md and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Md Robin
278 Milford St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Mike Bolivar to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mike and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where,

and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mike Bolivar
40-40 68th St
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Miguel Ramirez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Miguel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Miguel Ramirez
61 Ten Eyck St

Brooklyn, NY 11206

-- Sent from Luidys González to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luidys and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Luidys Gonzalez
543 41st St
Brooklyn, NY 11232

-- Sent from Martin Gómez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Martin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Martin Gomez
18-23 Norman St
Queens, NY 11385

-- Sent from Martin GÃ³mez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Martin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Martin Gomez
18-23 Norman St
Queens, NY 11385

-- Sent from Hussen Bila to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hussen and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Hussen Bila
288 E 169th St
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from Hungyick Lai to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 5, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hungyick and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Hungyick Lai
83-02 St James Ave
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Davonte Jones to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Davonte and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Davonte Jones
562 Bainbridge St.
Brooklyn, NY 11233

-- Sent from Davonte Jones to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Davonte and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Davonte Jones
562 Bainbridge St.
Brooklyn, NY 11233

-- Sent from Glenn Williams to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Glenn and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Glenn Williams
112-14 204th St
Queens, NY 11412

-- Sent from Ariel Perez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ariel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ariel Perez
2322 Ryer Ave
The Bronx, NY 10458

-- Sent from Jose Matos to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Matos
225 Irving Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11237

-- Sent from Jose Matos to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Matos

225 Irving Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11237

-- Sent from Jose Matos to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Matos
225 Irving Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11237

-- Sent from Victoria de Mera to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Victoria and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Victoria de Mera
73-05 150th St
Queens, NY 11367

-- Sent from Asena Donmez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Asena and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Asena Donmez
1680 E 17th St
Brooklyn, NY 11229

-- Sent from Luis Vargas to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Luis Vargas
1764 Weeks Ave
The Bronx, NY 10457

-- Sent from Moises solano to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Moises and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Moises solano
361 E 188th St
The Bronx, NY 10458

-- Sent from Sanounih TCHAGBELE to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sanounih and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Sanounih TCHAGBELE
2535 Cruger Ave
The Bronx, NY 10467

-- Sent from Moustafa mourssi to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Moustafa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Moustafa mourssi
358 47th St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from Nilo Ramon to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nilo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Nilo Ramon
1831 Gleason Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Jorge Estrada to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jorge and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jorge Estrada
1208 Clay Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from Oscar ixcoy to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oscar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Oscar ixcoy
999 Southern Blvd
The Bronx, NY 10459

-- Sent from Howayne Patterson to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Howayne and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Howayne Patterson
144-06 116th Ave
Queens, NY 11436

-- Sent from Mary Paulino to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mary and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mary Paulino
71 Granite St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Vincenzo Mastrangelo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Vincenzo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where,

and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Vincenzo Mastrangelo
168-17 Crocheron Ave
Queens, NY 11358

-- Sent from Kevin Herrera to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kevin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Kevin Herrera
66 Willow Ave

Hempstead, NY 11550

-- Sent from Edgar Rojas to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edgar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Edgar Rojas
190 Schaefer St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

-- Sent from Mark Hines to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mark and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule

could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mark Hines
19 Long Pond Ln
Staten Island, NY 10304

-- Sent from Ricardo Castro to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricardo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ricardo Castro
515 W 168th St
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from Elainer Lionel to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elainer and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Elainer Lionel
234 Rochester Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11213

-- Sent from Yi Xie to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Yi Xie
51 Monroe St
New York, NY 10002

-- Sent from raymond rivera to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is raymond and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

raymond rivera
2101 Bedford Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from Joannette serrano to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joannette and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Joannette serrano
30 Richman Plaza
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Marcos Rivera to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marcos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Marcos Rivera
949 E 232nd St
The Bronx, NY 10466

-- Sent from Ibrahim Zangre to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ibrahim and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ibrahim Zangre
475 W 159th St
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from Jose pichardo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose pichardo
265 Livonia Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11212

-- Sent from Silverio Flores to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Silverio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Silverio Flores

1299 Grand Concourse
The Bronx, NY 10452

-- Sent from Sandro jara to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sandro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Sandro jara
685 Hart St
Brooklyn, NY 11221

-- Sent from rajabboy ismatullayev to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is rajabboy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

rajabboy ismatullayev
2470 W 1st St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

-- Sent from rajabboy ismatullayev to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is rajabboy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

rajabboy ismatullayev
2470 W 1st St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

-- Sent from EIÃas Hilario to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elias and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Elias Hilario
2543A Grand Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Serena Rosa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Serena and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Serena Rosa
132 Kramer St
Staten Island, NY 10305

-- Sent from Luis Hurtado to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Luis Hurtado
2050 Anthony Ave
The Bronx, NY 10457

-- Sent from Aly Traore to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Aly and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Aly Traore
902 Eagle Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

-- Sent from Yobany Joel to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yobany and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Yobany Joel
1436 Taylor Ave
The Bronx, NY 10460

-- Sent from Yobany Joel to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yobany and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Yobany Joel
1436 Taylor Ave
The Bronx, NY 10460

-- Sent from Alberto melo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alberto melo
2176 Dean St
Brooklyn, NY 11233

-- Sent from Alexander Lai to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alexander and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alexander Lai
15417 Riverside Dr
Queens, NY 11357

-- Sent from Willy Toribio to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Willy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Willy Toribio
65 Hudson Ave
Roosevelt, NY 11575

-- Sent from Willy Toribio to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Willy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where,

and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Willy Toribio
65 Hudson Ave
Roosevelt, NY 11575

-- Sent from Sergio GONZALEZ to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sergio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Sergio GONZALEZ
256 Wadsworth Ave

New York, NY 10033

-- Sent from Sergio GONZALEZ to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sergio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Sergio GONZALEZ
256 Wadsworth Ave
New York, NY 10033

-- Sent from Juan Lopez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule

could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Juan Lopez
518 W 181st St
New York, NY 10033

-- Sent from Ricaurter Best to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricaurter and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ricaurter Best
70 Charlton St
New York, NY 10014

-- Sent from Damon Holzman to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Damon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Damon Holzman
61-22 223rd Pl
Queens, NY 11364

-- Sent from Raul camilo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Raul and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Raul camilo
1721 Grand Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Absa samba to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Absa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Absa samba
2506 Tratman Ave
The Bronx, NY 10461

-- Sent from Criatian bonilla to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Criatian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Criatian bonilla
10 Montieth St
Brooklyn, NY 11206

-- Sent from YVONI RIVAS to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is YVONI and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

YVONI RIVAS
33-53 155th St
Queens, NY 11354

-- Sent from Anowar Hossen to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Anowar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Anowar Hossen
68 Forbell St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Davy Kabore to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Davy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Davy Kabore
70 E 108th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Tommy Lew to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tommy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Tommy Lew

42 Rivington St
New York, NY 10002

-- Sent from Rumaldo rojas to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rumaldo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rumaldo rojas
250 Brook Ave
The Bronx, NY 10454

-- Sent from Octaviano vivado to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Octaviano and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Octaviano vivado
104-52 39th Ave
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Ricardo choxom to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricardo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ricardo choxom
1912 86th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214

-- Sent from luis zepeda to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

luis zepeda
2615 Jerome Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from JosÃ© Miguel to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Miguel
104-52 39th Ave
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Roberto Velazquez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Roberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Roberto Velazquez
3114 91st St
Queens, NY 11369

-- Sent from Eugenio Andres to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eugenio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Eugenio Andres
2419 Davidson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Juan ruiz to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Juan ruiz
283 Audubon Ave
New York, NY 10033

-- Sent from Catherine Rodriguez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Catherine and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Catherine Rodriguez
960 Prospect Ave
The Bronx, NY 10459

-- Sent from Manuel Rincon to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Manuel Rincon
31-16 58th St
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Manuel Rincon to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Manuel Rincon
31-16 58th St
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Manuel Rincon to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Manuel Rincon
31-16 58th St
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from DAMION WONGSANG to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is DAMION and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where,

and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

DAMION WONGSANG
350 Lenox Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11226

-- Sent from Ansberto Juarez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ansberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ansberto Juarez
11-17 30th Dr

Queens, NY 11102

-- Sent from Valentin villanueva to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Valentin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Valentin villanueva
375 Edgecombe Ave
New York, NY 10031

-- Sent from Samvel Edigarean to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Samvel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule

could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Samvel Edigarean
577 Avenue Z
Brooklyn, NY 11223

-- Sent from Samvel Edigarean to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Samvel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Samvel Edigarean
577 Avenue Z
Brooklyn, NY 11223

-- Sent from Mynor morales to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mynor and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mynor morales
1050 Lowell St
The Bronx, NY 10459

-- Sent from Johnny Gee to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Johnny and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Johnny Gee
7503 15th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11228

-- Sent from Alex campa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alex and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alex campa
35-13 92nd St
Queens, NY 11372

-- Sent from Alfredo talo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alfredo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alfredo talo
945 Aldus St
The Bronx, NY 10459

-- Sent from Manuel Ramos to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Manuel Ramos
250 Brook Ave
The Bronx, NY 10454

-- Sent from Yago sandoval to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yago and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Yago sandoval
2332 Tiebout Ave
The Bronx, NY 10458

-- Sent from Victor perez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Victor and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Victor perez
349 E 109th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Miguel catalan to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Miguel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Miguel catalan

594 Union Ave
The Bronx, NY 10455

-- Sent from Ernest Carrasquillo to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ernest and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ernest Carrasquillo
865 Amsterdam Ave
New York, NY 10025

-- Sent from Carlos Ramirez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carlos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Carlos Ramirez
158 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Marcos Manjarrez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marcos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Marcos Manjarrez
7005 3rd Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11209

-- Sent from Roberto Rojas to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Roberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Roberto Rojas
1726 65th St
Brooklyn, NY 11204

-- Sent from Roberto Rojas to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Roberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Roberto Rojas
1726 65th St
Brooklyn, NY 11204

-- Sent from Marixa Ramirez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marixa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Marixa Ramirez
1306 Avenue U
Brooklyn, NY 11229

-- Sent from Marixa Ramirez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marixa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Marixa Ramirez
1306 Avenue U
Brooklyn, NY 11229

-- Sent from Marixa Ramirez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marixa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Marixa Ramirez
1306 Avenue U
Brooklyn, NY 11229

-- Sent from Omar Reyes to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Omar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Omar Reyes
535 W 135th St
New York, NY 10031

-- Sent from Juan lema to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Juan lema
5003 4th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from Jose Vasquez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Vasquez
1238 Thieriot Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

-- Sent from Jurakulov Nodirjon to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jurakulov and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jurakulov Nodirjon
5507 16th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11204

-- Sent from JosÃ© Catarino to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jose Catarino
506 W 171st St
New York, NY 10032

-- Sent from Oscar Benitez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oscar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Oscar Benitez
610 Trinity Ave
The Bronx, NY 10455

-- Sent from Jeisson Yate to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jeisson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jeisson Yate
5039 43rd St
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Jonathan espinoa to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jonathan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jonathan espinoa
347 E 109th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Alex Ramos to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alex and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alex Ramos
250 Brook Ave
The Bronx, NY 10454

-- Sent from Victor Aquino to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Victor and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Victor Aquino
1651 Nelson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Jazmin casbis to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jazmin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jazmin casbis
39-67 59th St
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Wilson Ramos to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wilson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Wilson Ramos
1182 W Farms Rd
The Bronx, NY 10459

-- Sent from Wilson Ramos to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wilson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Wilson Ramos
1182 W Farms Rd
The Bronx, NY 10459

-- Sent from Angel Alvarez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 6, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Angel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Angel Alvarez
39-45 64th St
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Nicholas Prieto to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nicholas and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Nicholas Prieto
30 Russek Dr
Staten Island, NY 10312

-- Sent from Mei Lew to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mei and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mei Lew
6506 Grand Central Pkwy
Queens, NY 11375

-- Sent from Eusebio Ixcoy to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eusebio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Eusebio Ixcoy
1565 70th St
Brooklyn, NY 11228

-- Sent from Ahmad Dinnawi to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ahmad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ahmad Dinnawi
2355 E 12th St
Brooklyn, NY 11229

-- Sent from Mohammad Hossain to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohammad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mohammad Hossain
741 Church Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11218

-- Sent from Mohammad Hossain to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohammad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mohammad Hossain
741 Church Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11218

-- Sent from Enrique palma to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Enrique and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Enrique palma
3914 103rd St
Corona, NY 11368

-- Sent from Hector sancir to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hector and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Hector sancir
9823 50th Ave
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Luis LÃ³pez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Luis Lopez
228 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

-- Sent from Sukhwinder singh to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sukhwinder and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Sukhwinder singh
114-94 115th St
Queens, NY 11420

-- Sent from Manuel Ramirez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Manuel Ramirez
502 Jackson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10455

-- Sent from Sharif Zaman to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sharif and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Sharif Zaman
1205 Newkirk Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230

-- Sent from Ernesto Nativitas to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ernesto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ernesto Nativitas
3077 31st St
Queens, NY 11102

-- Sent from Oliver nava to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oliver and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Oliver nava
2386 Walton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Oliver nava to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oliver and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Oliver nava
2386 Walton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Oliver nava to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oliver and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Oliver nava
2386 Walton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Oliver nava to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oliver and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Oliver nava
2386 Walton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Oliver nava to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oliver and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Oliver nava
2386 Walton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Oliver nava to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oliver and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Oliver nava
2386 Walton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

-- Sent from Leonel baten to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Leonel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Leonel baten
94-02 40th Rd
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Mario Baten to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mario and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mario Baten
37-11 90th St
Queens, NY 11372

-- Sent from MarÃa Ramirez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Maria and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Maria Ramirez
94-02 40th Rd
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Javan leach to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Javan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Javan leach
1051 Anderson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10452

-- Sent from carlos rodriguez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is carlos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

carlos rodriguez
497 Lincoln Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11208

-- Sent from Mohammad Mahmud to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohammad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mohammad Mahmud
649 Argyle Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11230

-- Sent from xiaoqi zhu to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is xiaoqi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

xiaoqi zhu
737 49th St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

-- Sent from Ernesto Baez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ernesto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where,

and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ernesto Baez
102- 1 Farmers Blvd
Queens, NY 11423

-- Sent from Ernesto Baez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ernesto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Ernesto Baez
102- 1 Farmers Blvd

Queens, NY 11423

-- Sent from Md khan to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Md and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Md khan
2147 Starling Ave
The Bronx, NY 10462

-- Sent from Rodolfo Cabrera to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rodolfo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule

could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rodolfo Cabrera
167-15 65th Ave
Queens, NY 11365

-- Sent from Valentine Gonzalez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Valentine and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Valentine Gonzalez
471 40th St
Brooklyn, NY 11232

-- Sent from Jessica Severino to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jessica and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Jessica Severino
1047 Hoe Ave
The Bronx, NY 10459

-- Sent from Mohamed eldemerdash to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohamed and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Mohamed eldemerdash
7920 4th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11209

-- Sent from Antonio Cruz to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Antonio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Antonio Cruz
120 W 176th St
The Bronx, NY 10453

-- Sent from Kareem Rolland to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kareem and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Kareem Rolland
45 Doreen Dr
Staten Island, NY 10303

-- Sent from Alvaro guarcax to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alvaro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum

pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alvaro guarcax
104-69 Roosevelt Ave
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Alvaro guarcax to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alvaro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alvaro guarcax
104-69 Roosevelt Ave
Queens, NY 11368

-- Sent from Carlos florian to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carlos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Carlos Florian
143-11 Hillside Avenue
Queens, NY 11435

-- Sent from Rezwan Karim to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rezwan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Rezwan Karim
84-75 Homelawn St
Queens, NY 11432

-- Sent from XIU LIN to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is XIU and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

XIU LIN
352 94th St
Brooklyn, NY 11209

-- Sent from Patrick Lewis to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Patrick and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other

delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Patrick Lewis
3635 Bronxwood Ave
The Bronx, NY 10469

-- Sent from noe vergara to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is noe and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

noe vergara
47-12 67th St
Queens, NY 11377

-- Sent from Alexander Ramirez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alexander and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Alexander Ramirez
945 Aldus St
The Bronx, NY 10459

-- Sent from Juan Ramirez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Juan Ramirez
1726 65th St
Brooklyn, NY 11204

-- Sent from Aura Lopez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Aura and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Aura Lopez
94-02 40th Rd
Queens, NY 11373

-- Sent from Fanny Dolores to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Fanny and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Fanny Dolores
34-32 70th St
Queens, NY 11372

-- Sent from Anyelo zorrilla to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Anyelo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Anyelo zorrilla
14626 Hawthorne Ave
Queens, NY 11355

-- Sent from Adonias Clemente to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Adonias and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Adonias Clemente
370 Willis Ave
The Bronx, NY 10454

-- Sent from Bryan Nieves to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Bryan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could

ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Bryan Nieves
2755 Dewey Ave
The Bronx, NY 10465

-- Sent from Marquis Long to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marquis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Marquis Long
52 W 4th St
Mount Vernon, NY 10550

-- Sent from Lena Mckenzie to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Lena and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Lena Mckenzie
361 Livonia Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11212

-- Sent from Elvis Espinal to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elvis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own

time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Elvis Espinal
49 Ridge Ave
Staten Island, NY 10304

-- Sent from Kessraj Maharaj to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kessraj and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Kessraj Maharaj
101-35 109th St
Queens, NY 11419

-- Sent from Queen Omofese to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Queen and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Queen Omofese
115-74 218th St
Queens, NY 11411

-- Sent from PETER DELACRUZ to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is PETER and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

PETER DELACRUZ
1646 Prospect Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11233

-- Sent from David Perez to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is David and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

David Perez
30-47 29th St
Queens, NY 11102

-- Sent from Marvin Jean to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marvin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Marvin Jean
4211 Avenue K
Brooklyn, NY 11210

-- Sent from Lashawanda Wilson to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Lashawanda and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue

and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Lashawanda Wilson
PO Box 1043
Mount Vernon, NY 10551

-- Sent from Stavros Perkins to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Stavros and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Stavros Perkins
3530 Edson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10466

-- Sent from Stavros Perkins to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Stavros and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Stavros Perkins
3530 Edson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10466

-- Sent from Stavros Perkins to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023 --

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Stavros and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Stavros Perkins
3530 Edson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10466

-- Sent from Wilson Lliguichuzhca to Earnings Standard NYC Email on Apr 7, 2023

--

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wilson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Wilson Lliguichuzhca
85-84 56th Ave
Queens, NY 11373

Date	Advocate First Name	Advocate Last Name	Advocate City	Advocate State	Advocate Zip	Advocate Email Address	Message Subject	Message Body
2023-04-05 07:02:18	Yoedys	Rodriguez	Brooklyn	NY	11208	yoedysrodriguez1@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker	Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection, My name is Yoedys and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash. This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether. We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether. Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule. Sincerely, Yoedys Rodriguez 67 Etna St Brooklyn, NY 11208

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Evans and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Evans Frederic
1304 New York Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11203

2023-04-05
07:02:25 Evans Frederic Brooklyn NY 11203 freddyp999@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juana and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Juana de fuerte
1765 Townsend Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

2023-04-05
07:02:32 Juana de fuerte The Bronx NY 10453 luisa21reyes@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Emilio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:03:16 Emilio salas The Bronx NY 10461 emiliosalas0121@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Emilio salas
1327 Hobart Ave
The Bronx, NY 10461

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Devon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Devon Brooks
2500 Webb Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-05
07:03:28 Devon Brooks The Bronx NY 10468 buffaloq20@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eddy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Eddy Siliezar
91 Belmont Ave
Elmont, NY 11003

2023-04-05 07:03:46 Eddy Siliezar Elmont NY 11003 dopefreshness13@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wenqi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Wenqi Chen
137 Avenue O
Brooklyn, NY 11204

2023-04-05
07:04:09 Wenqi Chen Brooklyn NY 11204 chenwenqi1215@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Becka and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:04:23 Becka Bockuchava Brooklyn NY

11229 bokuchavabeka1991@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Becka Bockuchava
1085 Sheepshead Bay Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11229

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jamel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Jamel Caraballo
361 E 163rd St
The Bronx, NY 10451

2023-04-05
07:04:28 Jamel Caraballo The Bronx NY 10451 caraballo83@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alexander and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

07:04:42 Alexander Urwand The Bronx NY

10465 alexanderurw1995@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Alexander Urwand
1623 Stadium Ave
The Bronx, NY 10465

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is SHERITA and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility SHERITA JOHNSON
as a NYC Food Delivery 1515 Pennsylvania Ave
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11239

2023-04-05
07:04:48 SHERITA JOHNSON Brooklyn NY 11239 sjohnson3486@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elizabeth and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Elizabeth Gonzalez
671 Manida St
The Bronx, NY 10474

2023-04-05
07:05:14 Elizabeth Gonzalez The Bronx NY 10474 elizgon09@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Malik and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Malik Valbrun
4011 Kings Hwy
Brooklyn, NY 11234

2023-04-05 07:05:21 Malik Valbrun Brooklyn NY 11234 malique67@proton.me

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Landry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Landry Gunawan
42-24 Hampton St
Queens, NY 11373

2023-04-05 07:05:35 Landry Gunawan Queens NY 11373 landrytjindra@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Johnny and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Johnny carrion
1144 Metcalf Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

2023-04-05
07:05:47 Johnny carrion The Bronx NY 10472 johnnycarrion69@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ferguson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:05:52 Ferguson Ankrah Staten
Island NY 10302 ankrah.ferguson@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Ferguson Ankrah
201 Treadwell Ave
Staten Island, NY 10302

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Paul and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:05:55 Paul Jennings Queens NY 11434 paulnickjon1@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Paul Jennings
116-34 168th St
Queens, NY 11434

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Clark and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Clark Hassler
122 Forsyth St
New York, NY 10002

2023-04-05
07:06:02 Clark Hassler New York NY 10002 clarkhassler@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:07:28 Luis Barros Queens NY 11421 leppard81@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Luis Barros
80-33 89th Ave
Queens, NY 11421

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jiande and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Jiande Zhou
135-02 Booth Memorial Ave
Queens, NY 11355

2023-04-05
07:07:40 Jiande Zhou Queens NY 11355 szzhoujd@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eric and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Eric Pena
as a NYC Food Delivery 78-86 Thayer St
Worker New York, NY 10040

2023-04-05
07:07:54 Eric Pena New York NY 10040 ericpena1212@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Perla and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Perla Rivas
357 E 163rd St
The Bronx, NY 10456

2023-04-05
07:07:59 Perla Rivas The Bronx NY 10456 perlamaria161@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohammed and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:08:02 Mohammed Basha Brooklyn NY 11214 eajzbasha@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Mohammed Basha
1819 85th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is nilda and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:08:25 nilda santiago The Bronx NY 10466 tulunita09@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility nilda santiago
as a NYC Food Delivery 654 E 224th St
Worker The Bronx, NY 10466

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Cesar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:08:33 Cesar Cedillo Queens NY 11368 vincentcesar@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Cesar Cedillo 97-30 42nd Ave Queens, NY 11368

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Natasha and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Natasha Blount
460 E Main St
New York, NY 10044

2023-04-05
07:08:49 Natasha Blount New York NY 10044 natashablount1@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sergio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:09:13 Sergio osorio Queens NY 11433 o.sanchez31094@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Sergio osorio
as a NYC Food Delivery 11123 158th St
Worker Queens, NY 11433

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alvaro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Alvaro Varela
as a NYC Food Delivery 1491 Westchester Ave
Worker The Bronx, NY 10472

2023-04-05
07:09:15 Alvaro Varela The Bronx NY 10472 alvarela7166@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Altan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:09:33 Altan Ergun New York NY 10025 altanergun@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Altan Ergun
as a NYC Food Delivery 308 W 103rd St
Worker New York, NY 10025

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Amy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:10:09 Amy k The Bronx NY 10453 aakissi@outlook.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Amy k
as a NYC Food Delivery 54 E 179th St
Worker The Bronx, NY 10453

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Brian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Brian Dawson
148-04 Edgewood St
Queens, NY 11422

2023-04-05 07:10:12 Brian Dawson Queens NY 11422 briandawson750@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is RAFIQUL and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

07:10:32 RAFIQUL ISLAM Brooklyn NY

11208 rafiqulislam69891988@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
RAFIQUL ISLAM
220 Forbell St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Jose Mendez
132-05 120th Ave
Queens, NY 11420

2023-04-05
07:10:33 Jose Mendez Queens NY 11420 josemr102@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yoben and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:10:45 Yoben Lopez Queens NY

yobenmaldonado2011_@hotmail.co
11435 m

Please Protect My Flexibility Yoben Lopez
as a NYC Food Delivery 90-36 149th St
Worker Queens, NY 11435

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Adalisbeth and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:11:43 Adalisbeth Sanchez Yonkers NY 10703 adalisbeth.sanz@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Adalisbeth Sanchez
114 High St
Yonkers, NY 10703

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Breann and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Breann Sylvester
700 E 156th St
The Bronx, NY 10455

2023-04-05 07:11:59 Breann Sylvester The Bronx NY 10455 iambreann1@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yenelitza and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Yenelitza Guzman
128-16 161st St
Queens, NY 11434

2023-04-05
07:12:12 Yenelitza Guzman Queens NY 11434 yenelitza12@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ethian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Ethian Miranda
404 E 48th St
Brooklyn, NY 11203

2023-04-05
07:12:24 Ethian Miranda Brooklyn NY 11203 ethian7@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Milagros and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:12:42 Milagros Ormeno Queens NY 11691 milly.ormeno@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Milagros Ormeno
23-11 Cornaga Ave
Queens, NY 11691

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mickey and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Mickey Busanet
1137 Noble Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

2023-04-05 07:12:49 Mickey Busanet The Bronx NY 10472 bmel1868@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:13:04 Daniel tapia Queens NY 11372 ludamajo30@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Daniel tapia
as a NYC Food Delivery 37-20 94th St
Worker Queens, NY 11372

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Terence and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Terence Washington
177 Sands St
Brooklyn, NY 11201

2023-04-05
07:13:25 Terence Washington Brooklyn NY 11201 teelaxnyc@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Domingo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Domingo santiago
104-43 43rd Ave
Queens, NY 11368

2023-04-05
07:14:06 Domingo santiago Queens NY 11368 domingo12385@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Evelyn and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Evelyn Rodriguez
424 E 13th St
New York, NY 10009

2023-04-05
07:14:24 Evelyn Rodriguez New York NY 10009 happy2601@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Armando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:14:27 Armando Muniz Queens NY 11365 brandonkcmuniz@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Armando Muniz
65-44 162nd St
Queens, NY 11365

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Videl and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

07:14:31 Videl

Dunker

Brooklyn NY

11210 entrepreneurlife.myway@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Videl Dunker
1655 Flatbush Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11210

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nafaa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:15:52 Nafaa lahabi New York NY 10029 nafaa3030@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Nafaa lahabi
307 E 109th St
New York, NY 10029

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nafaa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:26:39 Nafaa lahabi New York NY 10029 nafaa3030@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Nafaa lahabi
307 E 109th St
New York, NY 10029

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Madjid and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Madjid Chebrine
430 Senator St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

2023-04-05 07:16:08 Madjid Chebrine Brooklyn NY 11220 mchebrine101@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tatyana and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:16:54 Tatyana Fernandez Staten Island NY 10301 tatyanna.fernandez12@aol.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Tatyana Fernandez
216 Westervelt Ave
Staten Island, NY 10301

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rohan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Rohan Wisdom
790 Snediker Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207

2023-04-05
07:17:13 Rohan Wisdom Brooklyn NY 11207 rohan.wisdom@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Richard and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:18:10 Richard Dozier Brooklyn NY 11207 richarddozier8514@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Richard Dozier
630 Stanley Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jonathan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:19:35 Jonathan Pozo The Bronx NY 10456 jonathanpozo754@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Jonathan Pozo as a NYC Food Delivery 905 Tinton Ave
Worker The Bronx, NY 10456

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jerry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jerry Egbunu
660 E 242nd St
The Bronx, NY 10470

2023-04-05 07:20:40 Jerry Egbunu The Bronx NY 10470 jerryegbunu@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is maxim and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:20:44 maxim teytelman Queens NY 11693 maxny1@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility maxim teytelman
as a NYC Food Delivery 102 Shore Front Pkwy
Worker Queens, NY 11693

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Saturnino and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Saturnino Oropeza
223 Wyckoff Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11237

2023-04-05
07:20:58 Saturnino Oropeza Brooklyn NY 11237 garciasaturnino93@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mersy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Mersy Ramirez
712 Logan Ave
The Bronx, NY 10465

2023-04-05 07:22:22 Mersy Ramirez The Bronx NY 10465 ramirezmersy36@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is DILIO and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:22:58 DILIO NOLASCO The Bronx NY 10468 dilionolasco13@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
DILIO NOLASCO
15 North St
The Bronx, NY 10468

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Robinson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Robinson Medina
82 Ellwood St
New York, NY 10040

2023-04-05 07:23:07 Robinson Medina New York NY 10040 robinson531@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yesica and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Yesica Espinosa
81-15 31st Ave
Queens, NY 11370

2023-04-05
07:23:08 Yesica Espinosa Queens NY 11370 yesiespi04@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hector and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Hector Vitiello
2143 Starling Ave
The Bronx, NY 10462

2023-04-05
07:23:48 Hector Vitiello The Bronx NY 10462 hector.vitiello@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:24:07 Juan Pérez New York NY 10029 uberjuan116@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Juan Pérez
325 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:24:26 Juan Pérez New York NY 10029 uberjuan116@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Juan Pérez
325 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nicholas and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Nicholas Tobar
2473 Davidson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-05
07:24:08 Nicholas Tobar The Bronx NY 10468 ntobar8@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:24:08 Jian Zhou Plainview NY 11803 jiangdong215@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jian Zhou
265 Manetto Hill Rd
Plainview, NY 11803

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Leon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:24:45 Leon Lynch Queens NY 11361 leonlynch7@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Leon Lynch
43-06 210th St
Queens, NY 11361

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Leon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:21:44 Leon Lynch Queens NY 11361 leonlynch7@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Leon Lynch
43-06 210th St
Queens, NY 11361

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohammed and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:25:26 Mohammed Hasan Queens NY 11434 m3478918162@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Mohammed Hasan
150-50 116th Rd
Queens, NY 11434

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Jose Zamora
43-04 30th Ave.
Queens, NY 11103

2023-04-05
07:25:39 Jose Zamora Queens NY 11103 josezaroz_76@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Angel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:25:40 Angel Cruz Staten Island NY 10306 getpaper11@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Angel Cruz
11 Mapleton Ave
Staten Island, NY 10306

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Farhod and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Farhod Majidov
2940 Ocean Pkwy
Brooklyn, NY 11235

2023-04-05 07:26:17 Farhod Majidov Brooklyn NY 11235 farhod4111@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Altagracia and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:26:27 Altagracia pereyra Queens NY 11356 altagraciap1@live.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Altagracia pereyra
as a NYC Food Delivery 125-01 9th Ave
Worker Queens, NY 11356

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricardo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Ricardo Jordan
375 Pleasant Ave
New York, NY 10035

2023-04-05
07:26:56 Ricardo Jordan New York NY 10035 rj101709@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carlos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Carlos Tapia
2 Broadway Terrace
New York, NY 10040

2023-04-05 07:26:57 Carlos Tapia New York NY 10040 elemento_03@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carlos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Carlos Tapia
2 Broadway Terrace
New York, NY 10040

2023-04-05 07:27:23 Carlos Tapia New York NY 10040 elemento_03@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kalpesh and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:26:57 Kalpesh Pandya Queens NY

11427 pandyakalpesh6662@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Kalpesh Pandya
229-14 Hillside Avenue
Queens, NY 11427

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jempher and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jempher Rodriguez
2159 Morris Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

2023-04-05 07:27:11 Jempher Rodriguez The Bronx NY 10453 actiboflow@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Dulce and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:27:49 Dulce Martinez d NY 11550 1dulce.martinez@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Dulce Martinez
65 Rose Ave
Hempstead, NY 11550

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jiang and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:29:18 Jiang Wu Brooklyn NY 11214 fangjiangming123@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jiang Wu
8659 24th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11214

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Michelle and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Michelle Hearn
97 Kingston Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11213

2023-04-05 07:29:52 Michelle Hearn Brooklyn NY 11213 mhearns412@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nadeem and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:30:10 Nadeem Hoosein Queens NY

11415 nadeemhosein7856@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Nadeem Hoosein
85-31 120th St
Queens, NY 11415

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Deiri and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:30:34 Deiri Torres-
Morales Brooklyn NY 11213 ocasiopepa@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Deiri Torres-Morales
as a NYC Food Delivery 948 Eastern Pkwy
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11213

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Terryl and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Terryl Bishop
1089 E 51st St
Brooklyn, NY 11234

2023-04-05
07:31:46 Terryl Bishop Brooklyn NY 11234 terryl.bishop@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Antwain and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Antwain Allen
830 St Marks Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11213

2023-04-05
07:32:25 Antwain Allen Brooklyn NY 11213 antwainpromo@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricardo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:33:05 Ricardo Trujillo Brooklyn NY 11220 richard_gomez.7@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Ricardo Trujillo
468 60th St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is AGUSTIN and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
AGUSTIN NUNEZ
88-36 76th St
Queens, NY 11421

2023-04-05
07:33:26 AGUSTIN NUNEZ Queens NY 11421 agustin362514@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Aristeo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:36:06 Aristeo Hernandez The Bronx NY

10458 hernandezaristeo332@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Aristeo Hernandez
634 E 187th St
The Bronx, NY 10458

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Diambe and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Diambe Diagne
60 St Nicholas Ave
New York, NY 10026

2023-04-05
07:36:50 Diambe Diagne New York NY 10026 diagne636@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Schnider and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:37:49 Schnider Sejour Brooklyn NY 11236 schnidercjr27@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Schnider Sejour
as a NYC Food Delivery 1142 E 102nd St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11236

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Girolamo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Girolamo Genova
160 Linden Rd
Mineola, NY 11501

2023-04-05
07:37:50 Girolamo Genova Mineola NY 11501 girolsmo44@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohamed and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Mohamed berichi
43-11 55th St
Queens, NY 11377

2023-04-05
07:37:55 Mohamed berichi Queens NY 11377 berichi.m@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Adan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Adan Perez
17 W 182nd St
The Bronx, NY 10453

2023-04-05
07:38:27 Adan Perez The Bronx NY 10453 adanperez0293@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is angelika and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:39:02 angelika Herbert The Bronx NY 10467 chunk-college0p@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
angelika Herbert
Olinville Ave
The Bronx, NY 10467

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is JOSEPH and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:39:56 JOSEPH RODRIGUEZ The Bronx NY 10458 jjosephrodz1965@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility JOSEPH RODRIGUEZ
as a NYC Food Delivery 235 E 196th St
Worker The Bronx, NY 10458

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mahalia and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:41:16 Mahalia Sanders Brooklyn NY 11236 mahtue486@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Mahalia Sanders
108-26 Flatlands 9th St
Brooklyn, NY 11236

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Braulio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Braulio torres
1749 Grand Concourse
The Bronx, NY 10453

2023-04-05 07:41:33 Braulio torres The Bronx NY 10453 brauliott62@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Julio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:42:21 Julio varga Brooklyn NY 11222 juliovargadd@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Julio varga
687 Meeker Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11222

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jamaal and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:43:29 Jamaal jacquet Brooklyn NY 11208 jjacquet04@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Jamaal jacquet
215 Etna St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Daniel Compaore
3229 Bruner Ave
The Bronx, NY 10469

2023-04-05
07:43:39 Daniel Compaore The Bronx NY 10469 dcompaore73@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Harold and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Harold Hart
2930 W 30th St
Brooklyn, NY 11224

2023-04-05
07:43:55 Harold Hart Brooklyn NY 11224 shaboog@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Robert and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Robert Rodriguez
201 W Kingsbridge Rd
The Bronx, NY 10463

2023-04-05
07:43:59 Robert Rodriguez The Bronx NY 10463 robert_r02@hotmail.es

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kenneth and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:44:08 Kenneth McKenzie Mount Vernon NY 10550 kenken7516@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Kenneth McKenzie
141 W 5th St
Mount Vernon, NY 10550

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Md and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:44:47 Md Islam Brooklyn NY 11214 mostsohel92@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Md Islam
8859 18th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11214

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Darwin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Darwin Jara
as a NYC Food Delivery 58-41 78th Ave
Worker Queens, NY 11385

2023-04-05
07:44:54 Darwin Jara Queens NY 11385 jarap285@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Leron and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Leron Mayo
185 Beechwood Ave
Roosevelt, NY 11575

2023-04-05 07:44:59 Leron Mayo Roosevelt NY 11575 tugeezmayosr16@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:45:22 Jose Sanchez The Bronx NY 10458 josejoaquinsancbez@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Jose Sanchez
2314 Valentine Ave
The Bronx, NY 10458

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Heriberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Heriberto Gomez
218-05 Hillside Avenue
Queens, NY 11427

2023-04-05
07:45:56 Heriberto Gomez Queens NY 11427 herijose@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Robert and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Robert Rodríguez
200 W Kingsbridge Rd
The Bronx, NY 10463

2023-04-05
07:46:32 Robert Rodríguez The Bronx NY 10463 antonior200r@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Aleysha and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:46:57 Aleysha Hosang Brooklyn NY 11215 ahosang422@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Aleysha Hosang
629 Union St
Brooklyn, NY 11215

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Guichun and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:47:44 Guichun Chen Brooklyn NY 11219 cc1214485068@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Guichun Chen
as a NYC Food Delivery 908 59th St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11219

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Felicia and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Felicia Samaroo
130-45 225th St
Queens, NY 11413

2023-04-05
07:48:49 Felicia Samaroo Queens NY 11413 fefonthekeys@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Christian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Christian Raphael
733 Florence St
Baldwin, NY 11510

2023-04-05
07:49:01 Christian Raphael Baldwin NY 11510 c_raphael@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Martin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:49:09 Martin Jennings New York NY 10025 martinsupernova@aol.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Martin Jennings
330 W 95th St
New York, NY 10025

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Anthony and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Anthony Diaz
68 Woodward Terrace
Woodbury, NY 10917

2023-04-05
07:49:34 Anthony Diaz
Woodbury NY
10917 lift6125@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Greg and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Greg Wilton
170 Egbert Ave
Staten Island, NY 10310

2023-04-05
07:52:04 Greg Wilton Staten
Island NY 10310 gregwiltonjr@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Cheick and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Cheick Kaba
624 E 222nd St
The Bronx, NY 10467

2023-04-05
07:52:39 Cheick Kaba The Bronx NY 10467 cheickbilly@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:53:00 Luis cortes Queens NY 11377 luistoxtle@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Luis cortes
40-21 67th St
Queens, NY 11377

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:54:45 Luis cortes Queens NY 11377 luistoxtle@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Luis cortes
40-21 67th St
Queens, NY 11377

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Andrada and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:54:12 Andrada Herescu Queens NY 11370 andrada.herescu@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Andrada Herescu
24-15 77th St
Queens, NY 11370

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kristine and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Kristine Gasparyan
1545 Dahill Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11204

2023-04-05 07:55:30 Kristine Gasparyan Brooklyn NY 11204 qristinag7@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Gabriel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Gabriel Martinez
61-25 Woodside Ave
Queens, NY 11377

2023-04-05
07:55:44 Gabriel Martinez Queens NY 11377 juel71211@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ashley and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:56:49 Ashley Pierzynkowski Staten Island NY 10303 apierzynkowski@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Ashley Pierzynkowski
12 Francesca Ln
Staten Island, NY 10303

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rupinder and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:57:35 Rupinder Kaur Queens NY 11420 rupyrandhawa@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Rupinder Kaur
149-46 Lefferts Blvd
Queens, NY 11420

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Orlando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Orlando garcia
345 E 101st St
New York, NY 10029

2023-04-05
07:57:48 Orlando garcia New York NY 10029 orlandogarcia1972@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tayfun and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Tayfun Tarakcioglu
4 Pembroke Dr
Glen Cove, NY 11542

2023-04-05
07:57:53 Tayfun Tarakcioglu Glen Cove NY 11542 cookis_tayfun@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:58:06 Alberto Ramirez Brooklyn NY 11206 ar7183023310@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Alberto Ramirez
61 Ten Eyck St
Brooklyn, NY 11206

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is NIROSHA and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:58:09 NIROSHA BANDUGE Staten Island NY 10302 niroshd2018@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker NIROSHA BANDUGE 56 Eldridge Ave Staten Island, NY 10302

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jatinder and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Jatinder Sembhi
229-20 Hillside Avenue
Queens, NY 11427

2023-04-05
07:58:24 Jatinder Sembhi Queens NY 11427 gurnur2012@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jocelyne and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:58:47 Jocelyne Arcentales Queens NY 11370 arcentalesj12@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jocelyne Arcentales
32-43 81st St
Queens, NY 11370

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Max and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:58:56 Max Desinor Westbury NY 11590 tikaleodesinor@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Max Desinor
869 Oliver Ave
Westbury, NY 11590

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Thelma and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Thelma Brown
60 Beaver Dam Rd
Bellport, NY 11713

2023-04-05
07:59:16 Thelma Brown Bellport NY 11713 tdown2107@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Malik and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
07:59:19 Malik Abbas Brooklyn NY 11223 abbasmalik689@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Malik Abbas
1881 W 6th St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Juan Frias
2663 Heath Ave
The Bronx, NY 10463

2023-04-05 07:59:43 Juan Frias The Bronx NY 10463 juanjose1923@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Harry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:00:32 Harry Perez Fresh Meadows NY 11365 perezh053@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Harry Perez
6577 160th St
Fresh Meadows, NY 11365

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is John and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:01:27 John DAmico Queens NY 11354 john.damico4@outlook.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
John DAmico
139-81 35th Ave
Queens, NY 11354

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Argelis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Argelis Berroa
2719 Morris Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-05 08:02:17 Argelis Berroa The Bronx NY 10468 argelis_24@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Keisha and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Keisha Rodriguez
210 W 230th St
The Bronx, NY 10463

2023-04-05 08:02:33 Keisha Rodriguez The Bronx NY 10463 rodriguez.keisha@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eddie and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Eddie Ramjeet
9144 117th St
Queens, NY 11418

2023-04-05
08:02:47 Eddie Ramjeet Queens NY 11418 jreddie14@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Patrick and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Patrick whittaker
363 New York Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11213

2023-04-05
08:03:16 Patrick whittaker Brooklyn NY 11213 mopatch@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elias and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Elias Venegas
41-21 29th St
Queens, NY 11101

2023-04-05
08:03:26 Elias Venegas Queens NY 11101 eliasvngs@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joe and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:05:48 Joe Doveran Brooklyn NY 11212 yusefsiddiq@yahoo.co.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Joe Doveran
as a NYC Food Delivery 1063 Willmohr St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11212

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marco and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Marco Rojas
2954 Valentine Ave
The Bronx, NY 10458

2023-04-05 08:06:28 Marco Rojas The Bronx NY 10458 markrv859@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:06:40 Jose conception The Bronx NY

10453 starlinconcepcion056@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jose conception
150 W Burnside Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Angel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Angel Mestizo
4005 7th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11232

2023-04-05 08:07:04 Angel Mestizo Brooklyn NY 11232 alasblue@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Albert and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:09:43 Albert Ventura New York NY

10032 venturaalbert042389@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Albert Ventura
524 W 173rd St
New York, NY 10032

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:09:54 Jose ramos Brooklyn NY 11216 joseabel86.jr@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Jose ramos
as a NYC Food Delivery 82 Hancock St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11216

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mamadou and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Mamadou Tambadou
1491 Macombs Rd
The Bronx, NY 10452

2023-04-05

08:10:13 Mamadou Tambadou The Bronx NY

10452 tambadou1998@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Henry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:10:15 Henry Garcia Westbury NY 11590 henrygc31@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Henry Garcia
713 Pleasant Ave
Westbury, NY 11590

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is William and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:10:30 William Charite Brooklyn NY 11221 richforeverjune@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker William Charite 1110 Bushwick Ave Brooklyn, NY 11221

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ramon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Ramon Powell
103-31 171st St
Queens, NY 11433

2023-04-05
08:10:45 Ramon Powell Queens NY 11433 ramonpowell@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Justian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:10:53 Justian Joseph Valley Stream NY 11581 jusheff.jj@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Justian Joseph
36 Gordon Rd
Valley Stream, NY 11581

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Titus and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Titus Bogba
516 Main St
New York, NY 10044

2023-04-05
08:12:37 Titus Bogba New York NY 10044 titusbogba@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hammad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Hammad Chaudhry
327 Britton Ave
Staten Island, NY 10304

2023-04-05
08:12:49 Hammad Chaudhry Staten Island NY 10304 hammadch97@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is James and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
James Riebl
220 Westend Ave
Freeport, NY 11520

2023-04-05
08:12:57 James Riebl Freeport NY 11520 jamesriebl@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Arturo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Arturo H as a NYC Food Delivery 127 Allen St
Worker New York, NY 10002

2023-04-05
08:12:58 Arturo H New York NY 10002 artu.h.f@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Godsway and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:13:23 Godsway Davies The Bronx NY 10456 davieslyon79@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Godsway Davies
1368 Sheridan Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Abrahima and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Abrahima Zalle
424 E 149th St
The Bronx, NY 10455

2023-04-05
08:13:28 Abrahima Zalle The Bronx NY 10455 zalleabrahima@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Giacomo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:13:37 Giacomo Buzzetta Staten Island NY 10309 nycbuzz22@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Giacomo Buzzetta
828 Bloomingdale Rd
Staten Island, NY 10309

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wilson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Wilson rodriguez
751 Gerard Ave
The Bronx, NY 10451

2023-04-05
08:14:30 Wilson rodriguez The Bronx NY 10451 willtooill57@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is John and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:14:35 John Noble Brooklyn NY 11235 john.noblemanfn@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
John Noble
1245 Avenue X
Brooklyn, NY 11235

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Julio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:14:40 Julio Payano Rockville
Centre NY 11570 jsolanoarte@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Julio Payano
565 Merrick Rd
Rockville Centre, NY 11570

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is anthony and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:15:21 anthony cooper Brooklyn NY 11221 deslexant@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
anthony cooper
261 Woodbine St
Brooklyn, NY 11221

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Maria and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Maria Ludena
55 Dongan Ave
Staten Island, NY 10314

2023-04-05 08:16:45 Maria Ludena Staten Island NY 10314 isalude69@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Henry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Henry Madzaela
1050 Anderson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10452

2023-04-05
08:16:54 Henry Madzaela The Bronx NY 10452 henrymadzaela2@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ashram and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Ashram Brown
839 Throgs Neck Expy
The Bronx, NY 10465

2023-04-05
08:20:23 Ashram Brown The Bronx NY 10465 ashrambrown@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jeffrey and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jeffrey Moreno
1755 Bruckner Blvd
The Bronx, NY 10472

2023-04-05 08:21:33 Jeffrey Moreno The Bronx NY 10472 grerock2011@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Damien and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Damien Steele
530 Fashion Ave
New York, NY 10018

2023-04-05
08:21:14 Damien Steele New York NY 10018 damiensteele91@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Md and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Md Chowdhury
39-25 24th St
Queens, NY 11101

2023-04-05 08:22:35 Md Chowdhury Queens NY 11101 mukit1990@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Furkat and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Furkat Khamidov
jamshid.ochilov.1987@gmail.com
Brooklyn, NY 11218

2023-04-05
08:22:51 Furkat Khamidov Brooklyn NY

11218 jamshid.ochilov.1987@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is James and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:24:43 James Martinosky Queens NY 11357 jimmyjames0813@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker James Martinosky 154-17 12th Ave Queens, NY 11357

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Cindy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Cindy Reyes
1013 Castle Hill Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

2023-04-05
08:25:16 Cindy Reyes The Bronx NY 10472 reyesdelgadocindy@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is GILBERT and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:25:34 GILBERT MATTHEWS New York NY

10032 gilbert.matthewsjr@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
GILBERT MATTHEWS
500 W 165th St
New York, NY 10032

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Gbolahan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Gbolahan Epemolu
134-36 173rd St
Queens, NY 11434

2023-04-05
08:25:43 Gbolahan Epemolu Queens NY 11434 drewsag@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wibowo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Wibowo Suwarno
85-35 Britton Ave
Queens, NY 11373

2023-04-05

08:28:27 Wibowo Suwarno Queens NY

11373 wibowo8535.ws63@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

08:28:33 Jose

Cortes

Brooklyn NY

11237 randyorton19870101@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Jose Cortes
200 Knickerbocker Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11237

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Luis Cruz
87 Hale Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11208

2023-04-05
08:28:35 Luis Cruz Brooklyn NY 11208 yeiriantonio@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is esther and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
esther leon
630 Pugsley Ave
The Bronx, NY 10473

2023-04-05 08:29:03 esther leon The Bronx NY 10473 lion3@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rick and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:29:15 Rick Federico Staten Island NY 10308 rickny83@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Rick Federico
194 Cleveland Ave
Staten Island, NY 10308

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edwin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Edwin Jimenez
as a NYC Food Delivery 4916 6th Ave
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11220

2023-04-05
08:31:07 Edwin Jimenez Brooklyn NY 11220 emt397023@msn.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eulogio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Eulogio juarez
312 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

2023-04-05 08:31:11 Eulogio juarez New York NY 10029 dobleaa118@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eulogio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Eulogio juarez
312 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

2023-04-05
16:27:27 Eulogio juarez New York NY 10029 dobleaa118@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eulogio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Eulogio juarez
312 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

2023-04-05
16:27:50 Eulogio juarez New York NY 10029 dobleaa118@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eulogio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Eulogio juarez
312 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

2023-04-05
16:32:44 Eulogio juarez New York NY 10029 dobleaa118@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ryan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:34:36 Ryan Jamieson Brooklyn NY 11203 rico.rj22@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Ryan Jamieson
3512 Clarendon Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11203

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rovshan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

08:35:25 Rovshan Muradov Brooklyn NY

11223 muradov.rovshen91@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Rovshan Muradov
380 Avenue U
Brooklyn, NY 11223

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rovshan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:35:54 Rovshan Muradov Brooklyn NY 11223 muradov.rovshen91@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Rovshan Muradov
380 Avenue U
Brooklyn, NY 11223

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nazarova and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Nazarova Murodbegim
1259 W 13th St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

2023-04-05

08:37:20 Nazarova Murodbegim Brooklyn NY

11223 ibragimg78@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jean and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:40:28 Jean Charles Queens NY 11412 guydes19@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jean Charles
120-16 195th St
Queens, NY 11412

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Shakima and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Shakima Miller
4617 Avenue J
Brooklyn, NY 11234

2023-04-05
08:41:20 Shakima Miller Brooklyn NY 11234 shakima.miller@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Bobbi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Bobbi Catala
62-66 80th Rd
Queens, NY 11385

2023-04-05
08:42:23 Bobbi Catala Queens NY 11385 bobbicatala0607@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Keneva and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Keneva Edwards
26 Pearl St
Mount Vernon, NY 10550

2023-04-05 08:42:38 Keneva Edwards Mount Vernon NY 10550 kenieva.3@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Theodore and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:42:55 Theodore Pettiford Mount Vernon NY 10550 theodorepettiford@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Theodore Pettiford 29 S 11th Ave Mount Vernon, NY 10550

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yemani and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Yemani Vasquez
142 W 143rd St
New York, NY 10030

2023-04-05
08:43:29 Yemani Vasquez New York NY 10030 yemani.vasquez1@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Angel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:43:50 Angel Garcia Queens NY 11102 goanimdafa4@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Angel Garcia
24-12 32nd St
Queens, NY 11102

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rolando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Rolando Chopen
49-12 99th St
Queens, NY 11368

2023-04-05
08:43:52 Rolando Chopen Queens NY 11368 rolandochopen47@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rolando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Rolando Chopen
49-12 99th St
Queens, NY 11368

2023-04-05
08:44:25 Rolando Chopen Queens NY 11368 rolanchopen47@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rolando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Rolando Chopen
49-12 99th St
Queens, NY 11368

2023-04-06
15:29:40 Rolando Chopen Queens NY 11368 rolandochopen47@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Santiago and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Santiago ramirez
322 E 141st St
The Bronx, NY 10454

2023-04-05
08:47:42 Santiago ramirez The Bronx NY 10454 sr6889946@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is gebre and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:47:46 gebre mitchell Mount Vernon NY 10550 gmitchell914@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker gebre mitchell 17 Amundson Ave Mount Vernon, NY 10550

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Domingo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Domingo Sánchez
427 W 26th St
New York, NY 10001

2023-04-05
08:51:43 Domingo Sánchez New York NY 10001 flakodr@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alfredo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Alfredo Tejada
2036 Amsterdam Ave
New York, NY 10032

2023-04-05 08:52:00 Alfredo Tejada New York NY 10032 atejada3185@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jerry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:52:13 Jerry mardy New York NY 10022 kakata25252021@outlook.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jerry mardy
430 Park Ave
New York, NY 10022

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is hardeep and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
hardeep singh
82-24 247th St
Queens, NY 11426

2023-04-05 08:52:49 hardeep singh Queens NY 11426 sabi1888@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Shahir and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Shahir mirza
1432 E Gun Hill Rd
The Bronx, NY 10469

2023-04-05
08:53:07 Shahir mirza The Bronx NY 10469 sammymirza989@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Agustin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
08:54:42 Agustin feliciano New York NY 10029 galindogalindo491@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Agustin feliciano
150 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Dornel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Dornel Cobourne
441 E 52nd St
Brooklyn, NY 11203

2023-04-05
09:00:28 Dornel Cobourne Brooklyn NY 11203 cobournedornel@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Isidro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Isidro Bonilla
1484 St Nicholas Ave
New York, NY 10033

2023-04-05 09:01:00 Isidro Bonilla New York NY 10033 castilloisidro960@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Isidro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
10:07:46 Isidro Bonilla New York NY 10033 castilloisidro960@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Isidro Bonilla 1484 St Nicholas Ave New York, NY 10033

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Isidro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
20:20:22 Isidro Bonilla New York NY 10033 castilloisidro960@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Isidro Bonilla 1484 St Nicholas Ave New York, NY 10033

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Guanghong and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

09:01:13 Guanghong shi

Queens NY

11373 guanghong19852005@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Guanghong shi
92-29 Lamont Ave
Queens, NY 11373

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:01:27 Daniel Cipriano Brooklyn NY 11220 danyciprianiano@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Daniel Cipriano
as a NYC Food Delivery 4417 5th Ave
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11220

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Francisco and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Francisco Barrera
41 Sickles St
New York, NY 10040

2023-04-05
09:02:20 Francisco Barrera New York NY 10040 franckbarreraa96@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Juan valerio
554 Drew St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

2023-04-05
09:02:23 Juan valerio Brooklyn NY 11208 juanvalerionyc@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Francisco and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Francisco leal
89-20 43rd Ave
Queens, NY 11373

2023-04-05
09:04:05 Francisco leal Queens NY 11373 xavidrumcode@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Auddretta and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Auddretta Harrison
868 E 51st St
Brooklyn, NY 11203

2023-04-05
09:05:52 Auddretta Harrison Brooklyn NY 11203 auddretta@msn.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is MD. and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:08:44 MD. UDDIN Queens NY 11432 u_borhan@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility MD. UDDIN
as a NYC Food Delivery 84-59 162nd St
Worker Queens, NY 11432

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is CHRISTOPHER and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
CHRISTOPHER STEELE
317 W 45th St
New York, NY 10036

2023-04-05 09:09:07 CHRISTOPHE R STEELE New York NY 10036 boltonlanding518@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edgar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Edgar Andrade
35-38 101st St
Queens, NY 11368

2023-04-05
09:09:24 Edgar Andrade Queens NY 11368 jepsat@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marisa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Marisa Gonzalez
80 Baruch Dr
New York, NY 10002

2023-04-05 09:11:36 Marisa Gonzalez New York NY 10002 mgonzalez10002@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wesley and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Wesley fecu
575 Ocean Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11226

2023-04-05
09:12:16 Wesley fecu Brooklyn NY 11226 wrbk@optonline.net

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jermaine and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:12:23 Jermaine Royster Brooklyn NY 11221 jermaine.royster@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Jermaine Royster
1181 Bushwick Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11221

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is HECTOR and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
HECTOR ESTRADA
2192 Morris Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

2023-04-05
09:14:15 HECTOR ESTRADA The Bronx NY 10453 jacob_e85@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Douglas and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:15:01 Douglas Elcock Brooklyn NY 11226 douglaselcock74@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Douglas Elcock
as a NYC Food Delivery 185 Erasmus St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11226

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Julien and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:15:03 Julien Preux Brooklyn NY 11226 jsaintp990@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Julien Preux
1084 Rogers Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11226

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Pablo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Pablo Regalado
W 172nd St
New York, NY 10032

2023-04-05 09:15:03 Pablo Regalado New York NY 10032 pabregala@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Aboubacar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Aboubacar Ki
1346 Taylor Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

2023-04-05

09:16:39 Aboubacar Ki

The Bronx NY

10472 ki.aboubacar@yahoo.fr

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Jose Marte
235 E 149th St
The Bronx, NY 10451

2023-04-05
09:17:08 Jose Marte The Bronx NY 10451 josemartejr24@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:17:58 Jose Feliciano The Bronx NY 10468 daddynmommy71@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Jose Feliciano 2290 Davidson Ave The Bronx, NY 10468

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Enrique and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Enrique Almonte
104 Sumpter St
Brooklyn, NY 11233

2023-04-05 09:18:25 Enrique Almonte Brooklyn NY 11233 julia.119225@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joseph and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Joseph Channan
256 Hemlock St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

2023-04-05 09:18:49 Joseph Channan Brooklyn NY 11208 channsnj@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rabiye and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:20:48 Rabiye ozbay Brooklyn NY 11226 aygunozbay84@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Rabiye ozbay
400 Marlborough Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11226

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rabiye and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
03:50:28 Rabiye ozbay Brooklyn NY 11226 aygunozbay84@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Rabiye ozbay
400 Marlborough Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11226

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Khaliljon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Khaliljon Ruzmetov
2570 E 24th St
Brooklyn, NY 11235

2023-04-05
09:21:54 Khaliljon Ruzmetov Brooklyn NY 11235 ruzmetov.1999@bk.ru

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rigoberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Rigoberto Guzman
25 Mt Hope Pl
The Bronx, NY 10453

2023-04-05 09:22:20 Rigoberto Guzman The Bronx NY 10453 guzmandz98@my.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sarah and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Sarah Marcus
1035 Rev James A Polite Ave
The Bronx, NY 10459

2023-04-05 09:23:47 Sarah Marcus The Bronx NY 10459 sra.marcus24@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Daniel Leahy
227 Sharrott Ave
Staten Island, NY 10309

2023-04-05 09:24:56 Daniel Leahy Staten Island NY 10309 kandiman30@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is GURVINDER and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:25:17 GURVINDER SINGH Valley Stream NY 11580 gs9425562@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker GURVINDER SINGH
882 N Fletcher Ave
Valley Stream, NY 11580

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jonell and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:29:10 Jonell ifill Mount
Vernon NY 10552 jonellifill@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Jonell ifill
as a NYC Food Delivery 531 E Lincoln Ave
Worker Mount Vernon, NY 10552

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mark and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:33:00 Mark sidoli Queens NY 11358 mmosserro@outlook.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Mark sidoli
198-22 26th Ave
Queens, NY 11358

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Pepertual and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Pepertual Kyeraa
3335 De Reimer Ave
The Bronx, NY 10475

2023-04-05
09:33:24 Pepertual Kyeraa The Bronx NY 10475 kpepertual@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Charles and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:33:45 Charles Mitchell Brooklyn NY 11208 charlesvmitchell@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Charles Mitchell
628 Eldert Ln
Brooklyn, NY 11208

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Regino and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Regino Peralta
4404 New Utrecht Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11219

2023-04-05
09:34:00 Regino Peralta Brooklyn NY 11219 reginoperalta@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Delwin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Delwin garcia
1011 Carroll Pl
The Bronx, NY 10456

2023-04-05
09:34:03 Delwin garcia The Bronx NY 10456 elpery25@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yoryi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Yoryi Torres
600 W 142nd St
New York, NY 10031

2023-04-05
09:35:40 Yoryi Torres New York NY 10031 izandre@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is J and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:35:53 J D Brooklyn NY 11226 janedoedrt@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility J D
as a NYC Food Delivery 275 Clarkson Ave
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11226

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Cyan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Cyan Haughton
1530 Story Ave
The Bronx, NY 10473

2023-04-05
09:37:18 Cyan Haughton The Bronx NY 10473 seanjam30@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sergio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Sergio Depinto
465 Maine Ave
Staten Island, NY 10314

2023-04-05 09:37:35 Sergio Depinto Staten Island NY 10314 sdepinto23@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Jose villa
488 E 163rd St
The Bronx, NY 10451

2023-04-05
09:37:52 Jose villa The Bronx NY 10451 jmv12@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Armando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:38:23 Armando sancir Queens NY 11369 sancir.25@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Armando sancir
as a NYC Food Delivery 23-50 98th St
Worker Queens, NY 11369

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Armando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
10:05:47 Armando sancir Queens NY 11369 sancir.25@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Armando sancir
23-50 98th St
Queens, NY 11369

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Diego and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:39:09 Diego Escandell Yonkers NY 10701 diegoescandell@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Diego Escandell
3 Pulsifer Ave
Yonkers, NY 10701

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jia and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:39:59 Jia Ye Staten Island NY 10306 jye113093@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Jia Ye
152 Freeborn St
Staten Island, NY 10306

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:42:23 Daniel Taveras Queens NY 11421 danieltaveras1@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Daniel Taveras
as a NYC Food Delivery 74-18 Park Ln S
Worker Queens, NY 11421

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carol and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Carol Mena
1824 Watson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

2023-04-05
09:43:41 Carol Mena The Bronx NY 10472 cmenakhoury@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Md and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:44:09 Md salauddin Queens NY 11373 salauddin.samir@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Md salauddin
40-33 74th Street
Queens, NY 11373

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jhonny and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Jhonny Cabrera
860 E 161 St
The Bronx, NY 10459

2023-04-05
09:44:12 Jhonny Cabrera The Bronx NY 10459 srcabrera01@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jaba and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:44:26 Jaba chokheli Brooklyn NY 11224 jabachokheli23@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Jaba chokheli
535 Neptune Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11224

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Stephanie and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Stephanie Hodge
52 Arden St
New York, NY 10040

2023-04-05
09:45:39 Stephanie Hodge New York NY 10040 shodge916@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Bryan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Bryan Gabriel
2735 Sedgwick Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-05
09:46:22 Bryan Gabriel The Bronx NY 10468 elcoflabx23@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Velihan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Velihan Konuk
10 Fiske Pl
Uniondale, NY 11553

2023-04-05
09:48:44 Velihan Konuk Uniondale NY 11553 velihankonuk@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Michael and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Michael Crawford
133-07 140th St
Queens, NY 11436

2023-04-05
09:50:44 Michael Crawford Queens NY 11436 mcrawford0692@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edward and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:52:15 Edward Saunders Utica NY 13501 ejstronger@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Edward Saunders
as a NYC Food Delivery 1610 Dudley Ave
Worker Utica, NY 13501

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is William and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:52:31 William jean Brooklyn NY 11212 optima.version.07@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker William jean
123 Blake Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11212

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Jose Serrano
2457 Belmont Ave
The Bronx, NY 10458

2023-04-05
09:54:01 Jose Serrano The Bronx NY 10458 alainiserrano@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Xavier and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:55:00 Xavier Quintero Queens NY 11368 xavierquintero58@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Xavier Quintero
9608 57th Ave
Queens, NY 11368

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tyree and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Tyree Williams
as a NYC Food Delivery 186 Denton Pl
Worker Roosevelt, NY 11575

2023-04-05
09:56:55 Tyree Williams Roosevelt NY 11575 ncwill516@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Patrick and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
09:57:15 Patrick Rene Mount
Vernon NY 10550 pat2167@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Patrick Rene
as a NYC Food Delivery 30 S 7th Ave
Worker Mount Vernon, NY 10550

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Samuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Samuel Alvarez
41-27 Gleane St
Queens, NY 11373

2023-04-05
10:00:20 Samuel Alvarez Queens NY 11373 chavezgustavo134@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Melissa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Melissa Earle-Davis
996 Hegeman Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11208

2023-04-05
10:00:59 Melissa Earle-Davis Brooklyn NY 11208 renjayma@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Allen and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Allen Adams
1366 74th St
Brooklyn, NY 11228

2023-04-05
10:02:39 Allen Adams Brooklyn NY 11228 allenadams1212@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jesse and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jesse Figueroa
770 Hancock St
Brooklyn, NY 11233

2023-04-05 10:10:14 Jesse Figueroa Brooklyn NY 11233 jessjamez@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jesse and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jesse Figueroa
770 Hancock St
Brooklyn, NY 11233

2023-04-06 02:24:01 Jesse Figueroa Brooklyn NY 11233 jessjamez@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marcia and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
10:14:44 Marcia Vandyke Brooklyn NY 11223 marciarobinson34@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Marcia Vandyke
2035 E 7th St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Raul and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Raul Mendoza
515 W 179th St
New York, NY 10033

2023-04-05
10:15:30 Raul Mendoza New York NY 10033 crewdjs12@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Shawnhimself and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Shawnhimself Enrique
257-18 Craft Ave
Queens, NY 11422

2023-04-05 Shawnhimse
10:16:12 Iff Enrique Queens NY
11422 shawn1019@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alpha and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

10:18:34 Alpha

barry

Brooklyn NY

11225 barryalphaoumar199@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Alpha barry
as a NYC Food Delivery 1700 Bedford Ave
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11225

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ida and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Ida McDonald
220 Highland Blvd
Brooklyn, NY 11207

2023-04-05
10:19:29 Ida McDonald Brooklyn NY 11207 idamac72@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Billy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Billy Belen
2135 Crotona Ave
The Bronx, NY 10457

2023-04-05 10:19:33 Billy Belen The Bronx NY 10457 bbelen2627@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Fidel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
10:21:57 Fidel pardo New York NY 10029 fidelparado19@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Fidel pardo
171 E 111th St
New York, NY 10029

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Robinalicia and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Robinalicia Mathews
2615 Jerome Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-05
10:22:06 Robinalicia Mathews The Bronx NY 10468 junierobinson09@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joshua and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Joshua Hazan
309 E 110th St
New York, NY 10029

2023-04-05
10:22:07 Joshua Hazan New York NY 10029 joshuah1989@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kevin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
10:22:14 Kevin Cantillo Howard Beach NY 11414 kevin.cantillo@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Kevin Cantillo
14911 85th St
Howard Beach, NY 11414

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Iurie and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
10:24:11 Iurie Graur Brooklyn NY 11223 iurie.graur.priv@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Iurie Graur
as a NYC Food Delivery 1657 W 9th St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11223

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sirleta and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Sirleta Nedd
532 Marcy Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11206

2023-04-05
10:24:52 Sirleta Nedd Brooklyn NY 11206 eyecubaebe@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wendy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Wendy Lam
488 S Marginal Rd
Jericho, NY 11753

2023-04-05
10:25:59 Wendy Lam Jericho NY 11753 wendyonly@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Chuck and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Chuck Ngan
1920 85th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214

2023-04-05
10:26:26 Chuck Ngan Brooklyn NY 11214 chuckngan@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Darryl and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Darryl Campbell
91 Pitt St
Queens, NY 11412

2023-04-05 10:27:21 Darryl Campbell Queens NY 11412 withmyqueen1108@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Davis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Davis Aguiar
62 E 182nd St
The Bronx, NY 10453

2023-04-05
10:28:07 Davis Aguiar The Bronx NY 10453 daguiar277@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hiroshi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Hiroshi Takegama
32 Jerome St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

2023-04-05
10:31:23 Hiroshi Takegama Brooklyn NY 11207 takegamah08@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hiroshi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Hiroshi Takegama
32 Jerome St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

2023-04-05
10:35:24 Hiroshi Takegama Brooklyn NY 11207 takegamah08@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alexis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Alexis López
as a NYC Food Delivery 535 W 135th St
Worker New York, NY 10031

2023-04-05
10:32:15 Alexis López New York NY 10031 fervicen2019f@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wilbel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

10:33:21 Wilbel

German

The Bronx NY

10467 wilbel.ventura.german@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Wilbel German
277 E 207th St
The Bronx, NY 10467

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mickel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
10:37:17 Mickel regis Brooklyn NY 11203 mickel300@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Mickel regis
1020 New York Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11203

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mamadou and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
10:40:12 Mamadou Baldd Corona NY 11368 kountacama@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Mamadou Baldd 5530 98th Pl Corona, NY 11368

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Evert and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Evert Arriola
24-01 92nd St
Queens, NY 11369

2023-04-05
10:41:57 Evert Arriola Queens NY 11369 evertarriola@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Abdulla and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Abdulla Masum
90-17 32nd Ave
Queens, NY 11369

2023-04-05
10:42:15 Abdulla Masum Queens NY 11369 abdullamasum@ymail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tyrone and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Tyrone Fernandez
as a NYC Food Delivery 216 Westervelt Ave
Worker Staten Island, NY 10301

2023-04-05 Staten
10:43:28 Tyrone Fernandez Island NY 10301 ferno2920@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tyrone and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Tyrone Fernandez
as a NYC Food Delivery 216 Westervelt Ave
Worker Staten Island, NY 10301

2023-04-05 Staten
10:43:42 Tyrone Fernandez Island NY 10301 ferno2920@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Duwayne and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
10:44:36 Duwayne Hawthorne The Bronx NY

10469 duwayne.hawthorne@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Duwayne Hawthorne
as a NYC Food Delivery 3304 Bouck Ave
Worker The Bronx, NY 10469

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Greibel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Greibel gonzalez
566 Williams Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207

2023-04-05 10:48:00 Greibel gonzalez Brooklyn NY 11207 menagreibel@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jonathan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
10:48:53 Jonathan Peralta Queens NY 11361 jonathanperalta331@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Jonathan Peralta
39-26 Clearview Expy
Queens, NY 11361

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Travis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Travis Bobb
129 W 147th St
New York, NY 10039

2023-04-05
10:52:18 Travis Bobb New York NY 10039 tbobb12227@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Henri and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Henri Bah
1052 Anderson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10452

2023-04-05
10:55:00 Henri Bah The Bronx NY 10452 bah.henri@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ifthekar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
10:56:11 Ifthekar Ahmed Queens NY 11416 ifthekar1979@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Ifthekar Ahmed
as a NYC Food Delivery 9724 93rd St
Worker Queens, NY 11416

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Winston and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Winston Bain
as a NYC Food Delivery 9424 87th St
Worker Queens, NY 11416

2023-04-05
10:56:22 Winston Bain Queens NY 11416 winstonbain@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elam and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Elam azcona
91 Eagle St
Brooklyn, NY 11222

2023-04-05
10:57:13 Elam azcona Brooklyn NY 11222 elam.azcona157@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Giorgi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
10:58:45 Giorgi Managadze Brooklyn NY 11235 giorgimanagadze9@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Giorgi Managadze
501 Brightwater Ct
Brooklyn, NY 11235

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carmelo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
11:00:00 Carmelo Arroyo Brooklyn NY 11214 carmeloarroyo99@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Carmelo Arroyo
as a NYC Food Delivery 1901 84th St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11214

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jencie and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Jencie Samora
1105 Morrison Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

2023-04-05
11:01:13 Jencie Samora The Bronx NY 10472 youngyasha11@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Anibal and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
11:02:52 Anibal Rojas Brooklyn NY 11237 anibalromeorojas@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Anibal Rojas
287 Irving Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11237

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Felix and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
11:02:53 Felix Morales Brooklyn NY 11232 felixmorales0709@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Felix Morales
858 42nd St
Brooklyn, NY 11232

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Imeda and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
11:04:02 Imeda chachkhiani Brooklyn NY 11230 imedachachkhiani@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Imeda chachkhiani
1269 E 18th St
Brooklyn, NY 11230

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Evelyn and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Evelyn Rivera
800 Barretto St
The Bronx, NY 10474

2023-04-05
11:06:04 Evelyn Rivera The Bronx NY 10474 rivera.evelyn1968@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is NINA and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
11:07:02

NINA

IVERY

South
Floral
Park NY

11001 msmeanie125@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

NINA IVERY
366 Roquette Ave
South Floral Park, NY 11001

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ryan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
11:09:56 Ryan Choice Brooklyn NY 11249 choceryan@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Ryan Choice
20 N 5th St
Brooklyn, NY 11249

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nicholas and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
11:11:27 Nicholas Small Queens NY 11412 nes2neo@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Nicholas Small
115-32 202nd St
Queens, NY 11412

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is José and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
11:13:26 José Rodríguez Brooklyn NY 11220 r_odriguez20fun@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
José Rodríguez
515 52nd St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hector and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
11:18:00 Hector Ramos Hempstead NY 11550 hhramos@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Hector Ramos
20 Wendell St
Hempstead, NY 11550

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is nelson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

nelson hernandez
72-48 67th Pl
Queens, NY 11385

2023-04-05
11:18:29 nelson hernandez Queens NY 11385 nel@usa.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohammad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Mohammad Chowdhury
90-10 149th St
Queens, NY 11435

2023-04-05

11:20:28 Mohammad Chowdhury Queens NY

11435 muid1223@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edvin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Edvin segura
475 Brook Ave
The Bronx, NY 10455

2023-04-05
11:23:49 Edvin segura The Bronx NY 10455 edso16@icoud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Keion and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Keion stone
251 Clifton Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11216

2023-04-05 11:23:54 Keion stone Brooklyn NY 11216 skeion4@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Samantha and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Samantha Buffa
1849 W 10th St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

2023-04-05
11:24:17 Samantha Buffa Brooklyn NY 11223 sbuffa1992@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is JAIME and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

JAIME GARCIA
211 Butler St
Brooklyn, NY 11217

2023-04-05
11:25:08 JAIME GARCIA Brooklyn NY 11217 garjaime@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jean-Luc and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Jean-Luc Rivera
130 E 104th St
New York, NY 10029

2023-04-05
11:25:56 Jean-Luc Rivera New York NY 10029 lexriviera91@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Theresa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Theresa Agosta
as a NYC Food Delivery 2073 W 5th St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11223

2023-04-05
11:26:35 Theresa Agosta Brooklyn NY 11223 teteaug@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jonathan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

11:27:18 Jonathan salcedo The Bronx NY

10452 jonathansalcedo19@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Jonathan salcedo
as a NYC Food Delivery 1005 Jerome Ave
Worker The Bronx, NY 10452

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Lisa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
11:27:33 Lisa otto Staten
Island NY 10306 lillypondlisa8@netscape.net

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Lisa otto
273 Fairbanks Ave
Staten Island, NY 10306

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Brandon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
11:27:50 Brandon Diaz The Bronx NY 10473 contactbrandondiaz@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Brandon Diaz
575 Castle Hill Ave
The Bronx, NY 10473

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rawle and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
11:29:01 Rawle Folkes Brooklyn NY 11213 rawle431@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Rawle Folkes
1510 Carroll St
Brooklyn, NY 11213

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edwin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Edwin Ramírez
316 E 126th St
New York, NY 10035

2023-04-05
11:29:12 Edwin Ramírez New York NY 10035 edvinramirez10@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edwin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Edwin Ramírez
316 E 126th St
New York, NY 10035

2023-04-05
11:29:47 Edwin Ramírez New York NY 10035 edvinramirez10@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is David and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
David Barto
100-06 92nd Ave
Queens, NY 11418

2023-04-05
11:32:15 David Barto Queens NY 11418 gillllberg@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Christopher and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Christopher Chan
as a NYC Food Delivery 70-27 Park Dr E
Worker Queens, NY 11367

2023-04-05

11:32:59 Christopher Chan

Queens NY

11367 chrisc925@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Lasha and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Lasha sujashvili
1961 65th St
Brooklyn, NY 11204

2023-04-05
11:33:45 Lasha sujashvili Brooklyn NY 11204 sujashvili1791@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jessica and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Jessica Montiel
112-35 38th Ave
Queens, NY 11368

2023-04-05
11:35:44 Jessica Montiel Queens NY 11368 vteutle@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Guangsen and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Guangsen xia
647 46th St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

2023-04-05
11:41:24 Guangsen xia Brooklyn NY 11220 guangsenxia3@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tyresse and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Tyresse Calhoun
as a NYC Food Delivery 2522 Newkirk Ave
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11226

2023-04-05
11:43:23 Tyresse Calhoun Brooklyn NY 11226 tyressecalhoun@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jordys and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jordys Aquino
550 W 45th St
New York, NY 10036

2023-04-05 11:46:48 Jordys Aquino New York NY 10036 jhooncr@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Orville and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
11:50:03 Orville samuels Brooklyn NY 11210 orvillesamuels77@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Orville samuels as a NYC Food Delivery 3111 Aurelia Ct
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11210

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Chinedum and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Chinedum Azikiwe
15515 N Conduit Ave
Jamaica, NY 11434

2023-04-05
11:52:56 Chinedum Azikiwe Jamaica NY 11434 canthony241@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hanif and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Hanif Ansaar
1824 Edison Ave
The Bronx, NY 10461

2023-04-05 11:55:08 Hanif Ansaar The Bronx NY 10461 17037551.us@saeinstitute.edu

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ruslan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Ruslan Galiev
2127 E 24th St
Brooklyn, NY 11229

2023-04-05
12:01:35 Ruslan Galiev Brooklyn NY 11229 galievrusl@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tani and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Tani Lawrence
174-25 127th Ave
Queens, NY 11434

2023-04-05
12:02:11 Tani Lawrence Queens NY 11434 dtanilawrence@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Pedro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Pedro Costa
100 Roebling St
Brooklyn, NY 11211

2023-04-05
12:02:54 Pedro Costa Brooklyn NY 11211 ferreira_pedro@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alisson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Alisson Costa
60-31 60th Pl
Queens, NY 11378

2023-04-05 12:04:08 Alisson Costa Queens NY 11378 alybrooklyn1985@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Abdoulaye and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Abdoulaye Tounkara
3207 Park Ave
The Bronx, NY 10451

2023-04-05

12:08:26 Abdoulaye Tounkara The Bronx NY

10451 makantounkara54@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Abdoulaye and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Abdoulaye Tounkara
3207 Park Ave
The Bronx, NY 10451

2023-04-05

12:08:59 Abdoulaye Tounkara The Bronx NY

10451 makantounkara54@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Richard and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

12:13:10 Richard Ortega Brooklyn NY

11216 richardantonio21175@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Richard Ortega
464 Nostrand Ave.
Brooklyn, NY 11216

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eugene and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

12:16:22 Eugene Barrientos Queens NY

11373 eugenebarrientos48@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Eugene Barrientos
as a NYC Food Delivery 41-10 95th St
Worker Queens, NY 11373

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Fernando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Fernando Juarez
2310 Valentine Ave
The Bronx, NY 10458

2023-04-05
12:16:49 Fernando Juarez The Bronx NY 10458 ferdinansoy@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kevin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
12:23:15 Kevin espadero Queens NY 11368 kevingustavo2244@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Kevin espadero
3814 97th St
Queens, NY 11368

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alejandro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Alejandro mora
2217 Ave Y
Brooklyn, NY 11235

2023-04-05
12:29:04 Alejandro mora Brooklyn NY 11235 alex1mora@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Librado and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
12:30:07 Librado Peralta Brooklyn NY

11207 peraltarosarioliberaldo@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Librado Peralta
as a NYC Food Delivery 581 Wyona St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11207

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is qiang and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
12:31:05 qiang lin Brooklyn NY 11228 1400282951@qq.com

Please Protect My Flexibility qiang lin
as a NYC Food Delivery 1149 80th St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11228

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is KRon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

12:32:24 KRon

Simmons

West
Hempstead
d NY

11552 k.simmons780@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

KRon Simmons
455 Holly Pl
West Hempstead, NY 11552

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marianna and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Marianna Greco
136 Churchill Ave
Staten Island, NY 10309

2023-04-05 12:33:36 Marianna Greco Staten Island NY 10309 dolceemariana@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Akeem and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
12:36:48 Akeem Elegbeji Queens NY 11413 meekapo@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Akeem Elegbeji
146-21 222nd St
Queens, NY 11413

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tremaine and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Tremaine Wright
954 Madison St
Brooklyn, NY 11221

2023-04-05
12:45:02 Tremaine Wright Brooklyn NY 11221 treyovoxo@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Michael and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
12:46:16 Michael McLean Brooklyn NY 11249 michaelmcl75@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Michael McLean
75 Wilson St
Brooklyn, NY 11249

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rafiel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Rafiel Perez
2118 Chatterton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

2023-04-05 12:47:10 Rafiel Perez The Bronx NY 10472 rafielperez0122@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rafiel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Rafiel Perez
2118 Chatterton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

2023-04-05 12:47:30 Rafiel Perez The Bronx NY 10472 rafielperez0122@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rodrique and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Rodrique goode
1026 Prospect Ave
The Bronx, NY 10459

2023-04-05
12:58:13 Rodrique goode The Bronx NY 10459 zionras2009@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ewan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Ewan Biggs
1364 Prospect Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11213

2023-04-05 13:02:23 Ewan Biggs Brooklyn NY 11213 ewanbase@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Georgie and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Georgie Caraballo
890 E 6th St
New York, NY 10009

2023-04-05
13:03:08 Georgie Caraballo New York NY 10009 georgiefeliciano@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Circe and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Circe Gedeon
410 E 25th St
Brooklyn, NY 11226

2023-04-05
13:04:23 Circe Gedeon Brooklyn NY 11226 gedeoncirce@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Erika and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Erika Davis
as a NYC Food Delivery 1544 Boone Ave
Worker The Bronx, NY 10460

2023-04-05
13:26:04 Erika Davis The Bronx NY 10460 erika.darby15@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Jin Chen
142-02 Franklin Ave
Queens, NY 11355

2023-04-05
13:27:09 Jin Chen Queens NY 11355 jinchen508@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is christopher and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

13:40:00 christopher correa

Queens NY

11377 edenic436tamale@m.facebook.com

Please Protect My Flexibility christopher correa
as a NYC Food Delivery 4260 65th Pl
Worker Queens, NY 11377

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Michael and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Michael Nguyen
1106 Allerton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10469

2023-04-05
13:45:10 Michael Nguyen The Bronx NY 10469 phat_n_2000@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Abena and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Abena Siriboa
108-17 171st Pl
Queens, NY 11433

2023-04-05
13:47:07 Abena Siriboa Queens NY 11433 obrafoabena@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Osvaldo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Osvaldo Vazquez
226 E 122nd St
New York, NY 10035

2023-04-05
13:52:46 Osvaldo Vazquez New York NY 10035 aldo140191@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carolina and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Carolina Castro
685 Georgia Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207

2023-04-05
13:53:10 Carolina Castro Brooklyn NY 11207 lacrazymama@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Christopher and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Christopher Hudson
1655 Flatbush Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11210

2023-04-05
13:53:25 Christopher Hudson Brooklyn NY 11210 cah022@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Margaret and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Margaret DiBernardino
259 Hyatt Ave
Yonkers, NY 10704

2023-04-05
13:57:50 Margaret DiBernardino Yonkers NY

10704 mrgtrdibernardino@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rafael and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Rafael Comunidad
3916 7th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11232

2023-04-05 13:58:58 Rafael Comunidad Brooklyn NY 11232 rafael.cb@live.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Milton and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Milton Medina
50-22 103rd St
Queens, NY 11368

2023-04-05
13:59:03 Milton Medina Queens NY 11368 orduzyesid89@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rocael and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
14:01:02 Rocael Ramirez New York NY 10029 anibalramirez2059@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Rocael Ramirez
312 E 105th St
New York, NY 10029

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elmer and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Elmer Ramírez
2059 2nd Ave
New York, NY 10029

2023-04-05 14:06:19 Elmer Ramírez New York NY 10029 er907562@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Christopher and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

14:13:29 Christopher Green

New York NY

10026 greenchristopher491@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Christopher Green
as a NYC Food Delivery 1972 Adam Clayton Powell Jr Blvd
Worker New York, NY 10026

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hermelindo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Hermelindo Martínez
108 Field Pl
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-05
14:13:55 Hermelindo Martínez The Bronx NY 10468 carnalitos110@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hermelindo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Hermelindo Martínez
108 Field Pl
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-06
14:42:01 Hermelindo Martínez The Bronx NY 10468 carnalitos110@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Margarito and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
14:18:37 Margarito Bautista The Bronx NY 10472 margaritobautista11@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Margarito Bautista
1158 Boynton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Leonidas and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Leonidas pena
2919 Sampson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10465

2023-04-05
14:19:52 Leonidas pena The Bronx NY 10465 leonidas2131@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Emad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Emad Ibrahim
1026 56th St
Brooklyn, NY 11219

2023-04-05 14:21:18 Emad Ibrahim Brooklyn NY 11219 emadagip75@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joshua and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
14:22:21 Joshua Pichardo Brooklyn NY 11212 joshuajeu12345@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Joshua Pichardo
265 Livonia Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11212

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nichole and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
NicHole George
1195 Carroll St
Brooklyn, NY 11225

2023-04-05
14:32:46 Nichole George Brooklyn NY 11225 nicholegeo425@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Victor and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Victor Ponce
720 Hart St
Brooklyn, NY 11221

2023-04-05
14:38:09 Victor Ponce Brooklyn NY 11221 victorponce49@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is md and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
14:41:37 md islam Brooklyn NY 11230 jabedbbs2@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility md islam
as a NYC Food Delivery 1212 Newkirk Ave
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11230

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is kazi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
14:43:43 kazi akter Brooklyn NY 11230 jabedbbs4@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility kazi akter
as a NYC Food Delivery 1212 Newkirk Ave
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11230

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is G. and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
G. Paxton
189 E 3rd St
New York, NY 10009

2023-04-05
14:55:03 G. Paxton New York NY 10009 gregpaxton2001@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is justin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
14:55:12 justin philidor Brooklyn NY 11203 justinphilidor@ocloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility justin philidor
as a NYC Food Delivery 823 E 48th St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11203

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hugo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Hugo Rodriguez
110-14 Astoria Blvd
Queens, NY 11369

2023-04-05
15:01:32 Hugo Rodriguez Queens NY 11369 huroz2003@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is qun and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
15:02:23 qun chen Brooklyn NY 11220 chenqunyu911@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility qun chen
as a NYC Food Delivery 659 59th St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11220

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Héctor and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

15:05:19 Héctor Santos New York NY

10019 santoshector1977@outlook.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Héctor Santos
as a NYC Food Delivery 400 W 55th St
Worker New York, NY 10019

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ferdinand and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
15:11:10 Ferdinand iorio Staten
Island NY 10308 ferdinandiorio@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Ferdinand iorio
as a NYC Food Delivery 251 Giffords Ln
Worker Staten Island, NY 10308

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rosmery and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Rosmery Veras
1504 Sheridan Ave
New York, NY 10457

2023-04-05
15:14:47 Rosmery Veras New York NY 10457 rosmery.vs27@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Atiliano and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
15:15:12 Atiliano miranda The Bronx NY 10472 atilianomiranda08@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Atiliano miranda
1026 Ward Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Henry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
15:17:01 Henry Giraldo Queens NY 11378 henrygiraldo@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Henry Giraldo 52-51 65th Pl Queens, NY 11378

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Benjamin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Benjamin Crisp
50 Nevins St
Brooklyn, NY 11217

2023-04-05 15:19:32 Benjamin Crisp Brooklyn NY 11217 bencrisp13@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alexander and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Alexander Hidalgo
2271 Morris Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

2023-04-05
15:22:07 Alexander Hidalgo The Bronx NY 10453 shairsantos1909@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sardar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Sardar Durrani
41-22 75th St
Queens, NY 11373

2023-04-05
15:24:04 Sardar Durrani Queens NY 11373 durraniusman@rocketmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rudy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
15:24:43 Rudy Chong Queens NY

11357 johnamcmerchandising@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Rudy Chong
20-17 Clintonville St
Queens, NY 11357

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohamed and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
15:26:00 Mohamed Mlayah Queens NY 11355 stephanemlayah@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Mohamed Mlayah
43-32 Kissena Blvd
Queens, NY 11355

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
15:29:27 Daniel VAZQUEZ New York NY 10031 danielvazquez.2195@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Daniel VAZQUEZ 557 W 144th St New York, NY 10031

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Adriana and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Adriana Diaz
943 Sheridan Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

2023-04-05
15:30:45 Adriana Diaz The Bronx NY 10456 adiazadriana@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Adriana and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Adriana Diaz
943 Sheridan Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

2023-04-05
15:31:08 Adriana Diaz The Bronx NY 10456 adiazadriana@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is andre and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
15:40:41 andre Beckford Brooklyn NY 11203 andrebeckford8@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
andre Beckford
87 E 53rd St
Brooklyn, NY 11203

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Amadeo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
15:47:20 Amadeo Gómez The Bronx NY 10472 amadegomez2021@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Amadeo Gómez
1176 Beach Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joseph and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Joseph Pizzo
612 Logan Ave
The Bronx, NY 10465

2023-04-05 15:59:13 Joseph Pizzo The Bronx NY 10465 joepizzo69@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Josanne and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
16:00:27 Josanne OBrady Brooklyn NY 11224 j.obrady@dbeautybarllc.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Josanne OBrady
2950 W 24th St
Brooklyn, NY 11224

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Vianny and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Vianny G-Cruz
2403 Fuller St
The Bronx, NY 10461

2023-04-05
16:04:36 Vianny G-Cruz The Bronx NY 10461 gutiervd27@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edgar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Edgar Heredia
as a NYC Food Delivery 2855 Claflin Ave
Worker The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-05
16:06:45 Edgar Heredia The Bronx NY 10468 eheredia9308@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Lady and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
16:09:55 Lady Paredes Queens NY 11421 ladyparedes90@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Lady Paredes
86-32 Woodhaven Blvd
Queens, NY 11421

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Barbara and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Barbara downey
561 E 187th St
The Bronx, NY 10458

2023-04-05
16:11:33 Barbara downey The Bronx NY 10458 barbara55d896s@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jimmy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
16:17:42 Jimmy Beltran Queens NY 11378 jimmybeltran3@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Jimmy Beltran
67-39 52nd Ave
Queens, NY 11378

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jimmy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
16:23:27 Jimmy Trujillo Brooklyn NY 11208 jimmytrujillo1986@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Jimmy Trujillo
46 Eldert Ln
Brooklyn, NY 11208

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Anthony and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Anthony Baptiste
919 E 80th St
Brooklyn, NY 11236

2023-04-05
16:23:47 Anthony Baptiste Brooklyn NY 11236 dealhand@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joseph and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
16:27:28 Joseph Tavaréz Queens NY 11369 jjtny101@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Joseph Tavaréz
as a NYC Food Delivery 26-35 92nd St
Worker Queens, NY 11369

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nelson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Nelson Mora
393 Bement Ave
Staten Island, NY 10310

2023-04-05 16:32:17 Nelson Mora Staten Island NY 10310 nmora123@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Therriana and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Therriana Mathieu
1416
Brooklyn, NY 11236

2023-04-05
16:57:45 Therriana Mathieu Brooklyn NY 11236 therrimat50@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Isaiah and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
17:08:08 Isaiah oscar Queens NY 11101 oxy.moronz444@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Isaiah oscar
40-15 12th St
Queens, NY 11101

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is MOHAMMAD and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

MOHAMMAD ROB
622 Ocean Pkwy
Brooklyn, NY 11218

2023-04-05 MOHAMMA
17:17:58 D

ROB

Brooklyn NY

11218 rayhann95@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Corey and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Corey williams
PO Box 138
Bronx, NY 10475

2023-04-05
17:23:54 Corey williams Bronx NY 10475 ossie7733@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Benjamin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Benjamin Tan
as a NYC Food Delivery 764 Magenta St
Worker The Bronx, NY 10467

2023-04-05
17:29:37 Benjamin Tan The Bronx NY 10467 tanbenjamin68@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Lazaro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
17:31:05 Lazaro Garcia The Bronx NY 10472 lazarogarcia74@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Lazaro Garcia
1826 Gleason Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is James and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
James Boynton
922 E 169th St
The Bronx, NY 10459

2023-04-05 17:31:50 James Boynton The Bronx NY 10459 hflamesbc23@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Henry and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Henry Campbell
400 Cozine Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207

2023-04-05 17:33:23 Henry Campbell Brooklyn NY 11207 flushtap8@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Michael and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Michael Nieves
11148 146th St
Queens, NY 11435

2023-04-05
17:42:38 Michael Nieves Queens NY 11435 mike.nieves111@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
17:47:30 Luis gomez The Bronx NY 10457 luisfcruzgomez@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Luis gomez
2224 Valentine Ave
The Bronx, NY 10457

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jennifer and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jennifer Pendergast
22-59 Dix Ave
Queens, NY 11691

2023-04-05 17:54:28 Jennifer Pendergast Queens NY 11691 jjaylove81@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Manuel Roman
917 Eagle Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

2023-04-05
17:59:28 Manuel Roman The Bronx NY 10456 manuelroman1224@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Gristubel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Gristubel Cortes
209 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

2023-04-05 18:00:14 Gristubel Cortes New York NY 10029 chrizcort@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Daniel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Daniel Kearney
611 W 163rd St
New York, NY 10032

2023-04-05
18:03:19 Daniel Kearney New York NY 10032 djkearney82@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Edel Roberts
395 Lexington Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11216

2023-04-05 18:03:34 Edel Roberts Brooklyn NY 11216 plezzaant@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Brilynnn and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
18:04:45 Brilynnn coronado The Bronx NY 10457 brilynn_coronado@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Brilynnn coronado
2176 Tiebout Ave
The Bronx, NY 10457

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jeanette and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jeanette Barreto
15 Bennett St
Staten Island, NY 10302

2023-04-05 18:05:04 Jeanette Barreto Staten Island NY 10302 navarro826@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Brandon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Brandon Shalim
104-52 112th St
Queens, NY 11419

2023-04-05
18:09:47 Brandon Shalim Queens NY 11419 brandonshalim@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rubens and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Rubens Adam
12 Seville St
Elmont, NY 11003

2023-04-05 18:13:22 Rubens Adam Elmont NY 11003 rubensadam02@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is mohammed and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
18:31:21 mohammed chowdhury Brooklyn NY

Please Protect My Flexibility mohammed chowdhury
Imohammedchowdhury926@gmail.c as a NYC Food Delivery 2729 W 33rd St
11224 om Worker Brooklyn, NY 11224

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
18:45:02 Juan Santos Queens NY 11385 justin.santos62.js@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Juan Santos
as a NYC Food Delivery 17-18 Greene Ave
Worker Queens, NY 11385

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Cristhian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Cristhian capellan
3335 Decatur Ave
The Bronx, NY 10467

2023-04-05
18:48:02 Cristhian capellan The Bronx NY 10467 bigcasado@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Miguel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
18:49:04 Miguel Baquiaux Brooklyn NY 11214 baquixadolfo19@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Miguel Baquiaux 1751 85th St Brooklyn, NY 11214

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is jean-claude and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
jean-claude Rakotoniaina
53-77 69th St
Queens, NY 11378

2023-04-05

19:00:53 jean-claude Rakotoniaina Queens NY

11378 rakotojc5@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is louis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
19:01:27 louis innocent Brooklyn NY 11226 linnocent6@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker louis innocent
84 E 31st St
Brooklyn, NY 11226

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ramon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Ramon galindo
2435 Creston Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-05
19:18:04 Ramon galindo The Bronx NY 10468 chocky701701@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Armando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Armando marin
387 E Mosholu Pkwy N
The Bronx, NY 10467

2023-04-05
19:22:16 Armando marin The Bronx NY 10467 aguilasmaria@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Martin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Martin Victoriano
2879 Heath Ave
The Bronx, NY 10463

2023-04-05 19:32:17 Martin Victoriano The Bronx NY 10463 vladimir2r@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Martin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Martin Victoriano
2879 Heath Ave
The Bronx, NY 10463

2023-04-05 19:38:08 Martin Victoriano The Bronx NY 10463 vladimir2r@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joshua and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
19:35:31 Joshua Guerrero Queens NY 11367 joshuag988@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Joshua Guerrero
137-55 68th Dr
Queens, NY 11367

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elder and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Elder Perez
502 Jackson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10455

2023-04-05
19:45:48 Elder Perez The Bronx NY 10455 elderp495@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Andinson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
19:47:56 Andinson Ortega Queens NY 11385 andinsonortega@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Andinson Ortega
90-33 83rd Ave
Queens, NY 11385

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Dolores and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Dolores Bermeo
55-37 97th St
Queens, NY 11368

2023-04-05
19:52:36 Dolores Bermeo Queens NY 11368 ebermeo318@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kamran and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Kamran Chaudhry
20 Father Capodanno Blvd
Staten Island, NY 10305

2023-04-05
20:00:31 Kamran Chaudhry Staten Island NY 10305 kamranpopy@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kamran and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
20:00:45 Kamran Chaudhry Staten Island NY 10305 kamranpopy@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Kamran Chaudhry
20 Father Capodanno Blvd
Staten Island, NY 10305

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ruben and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
20:11:29 Ruben Benitez New York NY 10030 rubefromdabridge@aol.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Ruben Benitez
259 W 144th St
New York, NY 10030

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marissa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Marissa Cummings
132-07 Farmers Blvd
Queens, NY 11434

2023-04-05
20:22:49 Marissa Cummings Queens NY 11434 marissajc21@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marvin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Marvin Cunningham
646 Bradford St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

2023-04-05
20:24:10 Marvin Cunningham Brooklyn NY 11207 richierico823@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eloisa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
20:39:28 Eloisa Grullon Brooklyn NY 11212 valdramon793@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Eloisa Grullon
802 Saratoga Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11212

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Dario and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Dario lopez
41 Rockaway Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11233

2023-04-05
20:41:55 Dario lopez Brooklyn NY 11233 dariolopez83463@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Habib and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Habib Diallo
1565 Nostrand Ave.
Brooklyn, NY 11226

2023-04-05 20:46:43 Habib Diallo Brooklyn NY 11226 hd59529@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jarelle and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
20:52:59 Jarelle whitehead Brooklyn NY

11221 whiteheadjarelle229@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jarelle whitehead
840 Lafayette Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11221

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Manuel Pena
2102 Bronx Park E
The Bronx, NY 10462

2023-04-05
20:59:40 Manuel Pena The Bronx NY 10462 manuep0727@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alcides and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Alcides Jimenez
2743 Wallace Ave
The Bronx, NY 10467

2023-04-05
21:03:37 Alcides Jimenez The Bronx NY 10467 alcidesabreu64@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is David and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
David Tan
88-35 53rd Ave
Queens, NY 11373

2023-04-05 21:10:03 David Tan Queens NY 11373 88niceman99@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricauris and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Ricauris Marte
as a NYC Food Delivery 1154 Stratford Ave
Worker The Bronx, NY 10472

2023-04-05
21:19:24 Ricauris Marte The Bronx NY 10472 fatimamartinez34k@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kabir and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Kabir Hossain
86 Fountain Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11208

2023-04-05 21:40:31 Kabir Hossain Brooklyn NY 11208 khusa889@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Orlando and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Orlando Castillo
950 Woodycrest Ave
The Bronx, NY 10452

2023-04-05 21:41:41 Orlando Castillo The Bronx NY 10452 orlandocc64@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Dominic and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Dominic Daleus
107-13 Guy R Brewer Blvd
Queens, NY 11433

2023-04-05
21:45:10 Dominic Daleus Queens NY 11433 dominicdaleus@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Aly and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
22:02:30 Aly saleh Staten Island NY 10306 alysaleh075@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Aly saleh
42 Hamden Ave
Staten Island, NY 10306

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricardo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

22:11:35 Ricardo rojas Queens NY

11377 papichulorojas2915@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Ricardo rojas
61-03 37th Ave
Queens, NY 11377

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Md and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05
22:20:25 Md Robin Brooklyn NY 11208 hasanrobin01722@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Md Robin
278 Milford St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mike and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Mike Bolivar
40-40 68th St
Queens, NY 11377

2023-04-05 22:30:28 Mike Bolivar Queens NY 11377 mikebo8163@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Miguel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-05

22:52:53 Miguel Ramirez Brooklyn NY

11206 miguel.ramirez6259@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Miguel Ramirez
61 Ten Eyck St
Brooklyn, NY 11206

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luidys and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Luidys González
543 41st St
Brooklyn, NY 11232

2023-04-05
23:30:46 Luidys González Brooklyn NY 11232 luidysgonzalez2022@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Martin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Martin Gómez
18-23 Norman St
Queens, NY 11385

2023-04-05 23:37:43 Martin Gómez Queens NY 11385 mcmexico1990@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Martin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Martin Gómez
18-23 Norman St
Queens, NY 11385

2023-04-05 23:39:43 Martin Gómez Queens NY 11385 mcmexico1990@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hussen and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Hussen Bila
288 E 169th St
The Bronx, NY 10456

2023-04-05
23:41:36 Hussen Bila The Bronx NY 10456 hussen.bila@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hungyick and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Hungyick Lai
83-02 St James Ave
Queens, NY 11373

2023-04-05
23:48:19 Hungyick Lai Queens NY 11373 jackylai82@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Davonte and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Davonte Jones
562 Bainbridge St.
Brooklyn, NY 11233

2023-04-06 00:48:37 Davonte Jones Brooklyn NY 11233 chaseharrison742@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Davonte and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Davonte Jones
562 Bainbridge St.
Brooklyn, NY 11233

2023-04-06 06:19:04 Davonte Jones Brooklyn NY 11233 chaseharrison742@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Glenn and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
01:54:44 Glenn Williams Queens NY 11412 acoremg1527@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Glenn Williams
112-14 204th St
Queens, NY 11412

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ariel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Ariel Perez
2322 Ryer Ave
The Bronx, NY 10458

2023-04-06
02:05:41 Ariel Perez The Bronx NY 10458 nezsty025@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jose Matos
225 Irving Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11237

2023-04-06 02:14:39 Jose Matos Brooklyn NY 11237 matosny1986@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jose Matos
225 Irving Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11237

2023-04-06 02:15:55 Jose Matos Brooklyn NY 11237 matosny1986@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jose Matos
225 Irving Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11237

2023-04-06 08:17:20 Jose Matos Brooklyn NY 11237 matosny1986@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Victoria and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Victoria de Mera
73-05 150th St
Queens, NY 11367

2023-04-06
02:22:21 Victoria de Mera Queens NY 11367 isvior1105@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Asena and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
02:53:03 Asena Donmez Brooklyn NY 11229 asenaasildonmez@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Asena Donmez
1680 E 17th St
Brooklyn, NY 11229

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
02:53:38 Luis Vargas The Bronx NY 10457 luistvargas88@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Luis Vargas
1764 Weeks Ave
The Bronx, NY 10457

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Moises and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06

03:09:54 Moises

solano

The Bronx NY

10458 jadielfernandosolano@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Moises solano
361 E 188th St
The Bronx, NY 10458

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sanounih and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Sanounih TCHAGBELE
2535 Cruger Ave
The Bronx, NY 10467

2023-04-06

03:09:55 Sanounih TCHAGBELE The Bronx NY

10467 sanouniht91@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Moustafa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
03:23:08 Moustafa mourssi Brooklyn NY 11220 mostafacairo347@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Moustafa mourssi
358 47th St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nilo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Nilo Ramon
1831 Gleason Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

2023-04-06 03:33:33 Nilo Ramon The Bronx NY 10472 wiloramon@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jorge and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jorge Estrada
1208 Clay Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

2023-04-06 03:51:30 Jorge Estrada The Bronx NY 10456 jorgeestrada78@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oscar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Oscar ixcoy
999 Southern Blvd
The Bronx, NY 10459

2023-04-06
03:56:08 Oscar ixcoy The Bronx NY 10459 ixcoy3269@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Howayne and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Howayne Patterson
144-06 116th Ave
Queens, NY 11436

2023-04-06

04:02:32 Howayne Patterson Queens NY

11436 062395hdp@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mary and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
04:02:53 Mary Paulino Brooklyn NY 11207 alexapaulinolopez@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Mary Paulino
71 Granite St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Vincenzo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Vincenzo Mastrangelo
168-17 Crocheron Ave
Queens, NY 11358

2023-04-06

04:06:45 Vincenzo Mastrangelo Queens NY

11358 enzomas79@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kevin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Kevin Herrera
66 Willow Ave
Hempstead, NY 11550

2023-04-06 04:23:32 Kevin Herrera Hempstead NY 11550 kferrera90@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Edgar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
04:48:32 Edgar Rojas Brooklyn NY 11207 edgarrojas475@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Edgar Rojas
190 Schaefer St
Brooklyn, NY 11207

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mark and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06 11:53:36 Mark Hines Staten Island NY 10304 goodfortune711@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Mark Hines 19 Long Pond Ln Staten Island, NY 10304

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricardo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Ricardo Castro
515 W 168th St
New York, NY 10032

2023-04-06
11:58:34 Ricardo Castro New York NY 10032 dricardoc73@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elainer and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Elainer Lionel
234 Rochester Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11213

2023-04-06
12:03:35 Elainer Lionel Brooklyn NY 11213 e.lionel301@aol.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Yi Xie
51 Monroe St
New York, NY 10002

2023-04-06
12:18:07 Yi Xie New York NY 10002 xieyi77@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is raymond and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06

12:18:56 raymond rivera Brooklyn NY

11226 raymondjamesrivera@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility raymond rivera
as a NYC Food Delivery 2101 Bedford Ave
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11226

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Joannette and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
12:30:30 Joannette serrano The Bronx NY 10453 jenny4utolove@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Joannette serrano
30 Richman Plaza
The Bronx, NY 10453

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marcos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Marcos Rivera
949 E 232nd St
The Bronx, NY 10466

2023-04-06 12:35:48 Marcos Rivera The Bronx NY 10466 malco_03@outlook.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ibrahim and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
13:19:53 Ibrahim Zangre New York NY 10032 ibrahimzangre359@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Ibrahim Zangre 475 W 159th St New York, NY 10032

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
14:18:31 Jose pichardo Brooklyn NY 11212 josepichardo2020@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Jose pichardo
265 Livonia Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11212

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Silverio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Silverio Flores
1299 Grand Concourse
The Bronx, NY 10452

2023-04-06

14:23:43

Silverio

Flores

The Bronx NY

10452 silveriof83@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sandro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
14:25:07 Sandro jara Brooklyn NY 11221 jarasandro@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Sandro jara
as a NYC Food Delivery 685 Hart St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11221

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is rajabboy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
14:32:07 rajabboy ismatullayev Brooklyn NY

11223 rajabboy177@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
rajabboy ismatullayev
2470 W 1st St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is rajabboy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
14:32:19 rajabboy ismatullayev Brooklyn NY

11223 rajabboy177@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
rajabboy ismatullayev
2470 W 1st St
Brooklyn, NY 11223

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elías and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Elías Hilario
2543A Grand Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-06
14:38:08 Elías Hilario The Bronx NY 10468 elileox@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Serena and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
14:49:51 Serena Rosa Staten Island NY 10305 serenarosa18@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Serena Rosa
132 Kramer St
Staten Island, NY 10305

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Luis Hurtado
2050 Anthony Ave
The Bronx, NY 10457

2023-04-06
14:51:18 Luis Hurtado The Bronx NY 10457 hurtadoluis0476@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Aly and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Aly Traore
902 Eagle Ave
The Bronx, NY 10456

2023-04-06
14:53:25 Aly Traore The Bronx NY 10456 traorealy1991@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yobany and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Yobany Joel
1436 Taylor Ave
The Bronx, NY 10460

2023-04-06
14:58:32 Yobany Joel The Bronx NY 10460 perezmik3@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yobany and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Yobany Joel
1436 Taylor Ave
The Bronx, NY 10460

2023-04-06
15:00:04 Yobany Joel The Bronx NY 10460 perezmik3@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
15:16:28 Alberto melo Brooklyn NY 11233 melonyc1031@gmail.cok

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Alberto melo
2176 Dean St
Brooklyn, NY 11233

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alexander and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Alexander Lai
15417 Riverside Dr
Queens, NY 11357

2023-04-06
15:18:25 Alexander Lai Queens NY 11357 alexlai2k17@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Willy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Willy Toribio
65 Hudson Ave
Roosevelt, NY 11575

2023-04-06
15:21:07 Willy Toribio Roosevelt NY 11575 willytoribio010@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Willy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Willy Toribio
65 Hudson Ave
Roosevelt, NY 11575

2023-04-06
15:21:35 Willy Toribio Roosevelt NY 11575 willytoribio010@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sergio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Sergio GONZALEZ
256 Wadsworth Ave
New York, NY 10033

2023-04-06
15:34:08 Sergio GONZALEZ New York NY 10033 tlapue94@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sergio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Sergio GONZALEZ
256 Wadsworth Ave
New York, NY 10033

2023-04-06
15:35:31 Sergio GONZALEZ New York NY 10033 tlapue94@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
15:55:53 Juan Lopez New York NY 10033 pez_xander69@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Juan Lopez
518 W 181st St
New York, NY 10033

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricaurter and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
15:59:43 Ricaurter Best New York NY 10014 chombo2115@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Ricaurter Best as a NYC Food Delivery 70 Charlton St
Worker New York, NY 10014

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Damon and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Damon Holzman
61-22 223rd Pl
Queens, NY 11364

2023-04-06
16:09:18 Damon Holzman Queens NY 11364 idreamofdeals@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Raul and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
16:18:11 Raul camilo The Bronx NY 10453 camiloraul29_24@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Raul camilo
1721 Grand Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Absa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Absa samba
2506 Tratman Ave
The Bronx, NY 10461

2023-04-06
16:50:38 Absa samba The Bronx NY 10461 ab_samba23@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Criatian and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
16:56:12 Criatian bonilla Brooklyn NY 11206 christianbonilla94@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Criatian bonilla
10 Montieth St
Brooklyn, NY 11206

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is YVONI and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
YVONI RIVAS
33-53 155th St
Queens, NY 11354

2023-04-06
17:23:38 YVONI RIVAS Queens NY 11354 yvonrivas@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Anowar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Anowar Hossen
68 Forbell St
Brooklyn, NY 11208

2023-04-06
17:27:59 Anowar Hossen Brooklyn NY 11208 ah9147666@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Davy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Davy Kabore
70 E 108th St
New York, NY 10029

2023-04-06 17:36:33 Davy Kabore New York NY 10029 kaboredavy85@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Tommy and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Tommy Lew as a NYC Food Delivery 42 Rivington St
Worker New York, NY 10002

2023-04-06
17:48:40 Tommy Lew New York NY 10002 tommylewdash@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rinaldo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Rinaldo rojas
250 Brook Ave
The Bronx, NY 10454

2023-04-06
18:17:26 Rinaldo rojas The Bronx NY 10454 thiagoroh82@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Octaviano and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
18:29:46 Octaviano vivado Queens NY 11368 ramosdelarosa64@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Octaviano vivado
104-52 39th Ave
Queens, NY 11368

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ricardo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
18:31:49 Ricardo choxom Brooklyn NY 11214 choxomricardo@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Ricardo choxom
1912 86th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
18:34:14 luis zepeda The Bronx NY 10468 aluisz8022z@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility luis zepeda
as a NYC Food Delivery 2615 Jerome Ave
Worker The Bronx, NY 10468

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is José and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility José Miguel
as a NYC Food Delivery 104-52 39th Ave
Worker Queens, NY 11368

2023-04-06
18:34:16 José Miguel Queens NY 11368 ing.rosas_21@hotmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Roberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
18:35:20 Roberto Velazquez Queens NY 11369 reyesvelasquez056@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Roberto Velazquez
3114 91st St
Queens, NY 11369

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eugenio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Eugenio Andres
as a NYC Food Delivery 2419 Davidson Ave
Worker The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-06
18:38:09 Eugenio Andres The Bronx NY 10468 aa6723126@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
18:45:50 Juan ruiz New York NY 10033 gravielruiz0530@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Juan ruiz
as a NYC Food Delivery 283 Audubon Ave
Worker New York, NY 10033

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Catherine and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Catherine Rodriguez
960 Prospect Ave
The Bronx, NY 10459

2023-04-06

18:50:45 Catherine Rodriguez The Bronx NY

10459 lasexyc4u@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Manuel Rincon
31-16 58th St
Queens, NY 11377

2023-04-06
18:57:04 Manuel Rincon Queens NY 11377 lszpd2980@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Manuel Rincon
31-16 58th St
Queens, NY 11377

2023-04-06
18:59:17 Manuel Rincon Queens NY 11377 lszpd2980@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Manuel Rincon
31-16 58th St
Queens, NY 11377

2023-04-06
19:01:24 Manuel Rincon Queens NY 11377 lszpd2980@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is DAMION and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

DAMION WONGSANG
350 Lenox Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11226

2023-04-06

18:57:08 DAMION WONGSANG Brooklyn NY

11226 wongsanginc@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ansberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
19:03:18 Ansberto Juarez Queens NY 11102 betojuarez77.bj@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Ansberto Juarez
as a NYC Food Delivery 11-17 30th Dr
Worker Queens, NY 11102

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Valentin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
19:06:04 Valentin villanueva New York NY 10031 valentingalvez@68gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Valentin villanueva
375 Edgecombe Ave
New York, NY 10031

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Samvel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Samvel Edigarean
577 Avenue Z
Brooklyn, NY 11223

2023-04-06
19:16:51 Samvel Edigarean Brooklyn NY 11223 sarahydman@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Samvel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Samvel Edigarean
577 Avenue Z
Brooklyn, NY 11223

2023-04-06 23:38:09 Samvel Edigarean Brooklyn NY 11223 sarahydman@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mynor and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
19:47:38 Mynor morales The Bronx NY 10459 moralesmynor56@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Mynor morales
1050 Lowell St
The Bronx, NY 10459

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Johnny and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Johnny Gee
7503 15th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11228

2023-04-06
19:53:03 Johnny Gee Brooklyn NY 11228 jgeesus@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alex and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
19:56:46 Alex campa Queens NY

alexezequielsequeccampa@gmail.co
11372 m Please Protect My Flexibility Alex campa
as a NYC Food Delivery 35-13 92nd St
Worker Queens, NY 11372

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alfredo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Alfredo talo
945 Aldus St
The Bronx, NY 10459

2023-04-06
19:58:58 Alfredo talo The Bronx NY 10459 taloalfredo28@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Manuel Ramos
250 Brook Ave
The Bronx, NY 10454

2023-04-06
20:03:19 Manuel Ramos The Bronx NY 10454 manuellopez7833@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Yago and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Yago sandoval
2332 Tiebout Ave
The Bronx, NY 10458

2023-04-06
20:04:49 Yago sandoval The Bronx NY 10458 yago97gali@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Victor and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
20:07:56 Victor perez New York NY 10029 alexramiresperez@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Victor perez
349 E 109th St
New York, NY 10029

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Miguel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Miguel catalan
594 Union Ave
The Bronx, NY 10455

2023-04-06
20:08:48 Miguel catalan The Bronx NY 10455 catalanvicente27@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ernest and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Ernest Carrasquillo
865 Amsterdam Ave
New York, NY 10025

2023-04-06
20:24:02 Ernest Carrasquillo New York NY 10025 perceptiv730@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carlos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Carlos Ramirez
158 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

2023-04-06
20:29:19 Carlos Ramirez New York NY 10029 perezcarlos1256@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marcos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06

20:43:37 Marcos Manjarrez Brooklyn NY

11209 1981marcosmarcos@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Marcos Manjarrez
7005 3rd Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11209

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Roberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
21:13:30 Roberto Rojas Brooklyn NY 11204 rojasmacario24@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Roberto Rojas
1726 65th St
Brooklyn, NY 11204

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Roberto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Roberto Rojas
1726 65th St
Brooklyn, NY 11204

2023-04-07
15:02:26 Roberto Rojas Brooklyn NY 11204 rojasmacario24@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marixa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
21:14:01 Marixa Ramirez Brooklyn NY

asuncionramirezperez224@gmail.co
11229 m

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Marixa Ramirez
1306 Avenue U
Brooklyn, NY 11229

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marixa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
21:17:45 Marixa Ramirez Brooklyn NY

asuncionramirezperez224@gmail.co
11229 m

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Marixa Ramirez
1306 Avenue U
Brooklyn, NY 11229

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marixa and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
21:18:12 Marixa Ramirez Brooklyn NY

asuncionramirezperez224@gmail.co
11229 m

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Marixa Ramirez
1306 Avenue U
Brooklyn, NY 11229

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Omar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Omar Reyes
535 W 135th St
New York, NY 10031

2023-04-06
21:17:19 Omar Reyes New York NY 10031 alejansalvador@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
21:22:30 Juan lema Brooklyn NY 11220 jesusperrez708090@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Juan lema 5003 4th Ave Brooklyn, NY 11220

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jose and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
21:31:09 Jose Vasquez The Bronx NY 10472 vasquezgiovanny714@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Jose Vasquez
1238 Thieriot Ave
The Bronx, NY 10472

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jurakulov and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Jurakulov Nodirjon
5507 16th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11204

2023-04-06

21:35:07 Jurakulov Nodirjon Brooklyn NY

11204 nurshodjon2019@gamil.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is José and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
José Catarino
506 W 171st St
New York, NY 10032

2023-04-06 21:45:19 José Catarino New York NY 10032 catojose8@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oscar and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Oscar Benitez
as a NYC Food Delivery 610 Trinity Ave
Worker The Bronx, NY 10455

2023-04-06
21:57:24 Oscar Benitez The Bronx NY 10455 benitezosc99@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jeisson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jeisson Yate
5039 43rd St
Queens, NY 11377

2023-04-06 22:29:09 Jeisson Yate Queens NY 11377 jshate7@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jonathan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
22:32:44 Jonathan espinoa New York NY

10029 jonathansarmiento83@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jonathan espinoa
347 E 109th St
New York, NY 10029

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alex and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Alex Ramos
250 Brook Ave
The Bronx, NY 10454

2023-04-06 22:43:46 Alex Ramos The Bronx NY 10454 eugenioramos1220@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Victor and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Victor Aquino
1651 Nelson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10453

2023-04-06
22:48:53 Victor Aquino The Bronx NY 10453 victoraquino04@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jazmin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
22:54:39 Jazmin casbis Queens NY 11377 jazminvillamar325@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Jazmin casbis 39-67 59th St Queens, NY 11377

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wilson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Wilson Ramos
1182 W Farms Rd
The Bronx, NY 10459

2023-04-06
23:04:05 Wilson Ramos The Bronx NY 10459 benjamin3695@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wilson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Wilson Ramos
1182 W Farms Rd
The Bronx, NY 10459

2023-04-07
15:12:37 Wilson Ramos The Bronx NY 10459 benjamin3695@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Angel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-06
23:04:34 Angel Alvarez Queens NY 11377 miguelalvarez1504@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Angel Alvarez
39-45 64th St
Queens, NY 11377

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Nicholas and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
00:15:36 Nicholas Prieto Staten Island NY 10312 lilnick726@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Nicholas Prieto
30 Russek Dr
Staten Island, NY 10312

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mei and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
00:34:29 Mei Lew Queens NY 11375 maglew714@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Mei Lew
6506 Grand Central Pkwy
Queens, NY 11375

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Eusebio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
00:41:26 Eusebio Ixcoy Brooklyn NY 11228 eusebiopelicoixcoy@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Eusebio Ixcoy 1565 70th St Brooklyn, NY 11228

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ahmad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
01:32:38 Ahmad Dinnawi Brooklyn NY 11229 ahmad_asma@live.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Ahmad Dinnawi
as a NYC Food Delivery 2355 E 12th St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11229

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohammad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07

01:37:48 Mohammad Hossain Brooklyn NY

11218 shakir.shoikot61593@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Mohammad Hossain
741 Church Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11218

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohammad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07

01:40:58 Mohammad Hossain Brooklyn NY

11218 shakir.shoikot61593@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Mohammad Hossain
741 Church Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11218

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Enrique and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
01:40:25 Enrique palma Corona NY 11368 enriquedejesus15@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Enrique palma
as a NYC Food Delivery 3914 103rd St
Worker Corona, NY 11368

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Hector and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
01:42:47 Hector sancir Queens NY 11368 sancir.150@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Hector sancir
9823 50th Ave
Queens, NY 11368

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Luis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Luis López
228 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029

2023-04-07
02:28:31 Luis López New York NY 10029 yoilui1980@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sukhwinder and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Sukhwinder singh
114-94 115th St
Queens, NY 11420

2023-04-07

02:31:32 Sukhwinder singh

Queens NY

11420 rajneek013@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Manuel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07

02:44:53 Manuel Ramirez The Bronx NY

10455 ramirez1235manuel@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Manuel Ramirez
502 Jackson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10455

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Sharif and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Sharif Zaman
1205 Newkirk Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230

2023-04-07 03:05:07 Sharif Zaman Brooklyn NY 11230 syemhasan567@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ernesto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility Ernesto Nativitas
as a NYC Food Delivery 3077 31st St
Worker Queens, NY 11102

2023-04-07
03:10:12 Ernesto Nativitas Queens NY 11102 ernestodomin50@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oliver and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Oliver nava
2386 Walton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-07
03:50:34 Oliver nava The Bronx NY 10468 olivernava939@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oliver and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Oliver nava
2386 Walton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-07
03:51:18 Oliver nava The Bronx NY 10468 olivernava939@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oliver and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Oliver nava
2386 Walton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-07
03:53:37 Oliver nava The Bronx NY 10468 olivernava939@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oliver and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Oliver nava
2386 Walton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-07
03:55:50 Oliver nava The Bronx NY 10468 olivernava939@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oliver and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
15:28:38 Oliver nava The Bronx NY 10468 olivernava939@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Oliver nava
as a NYC Food Delivery 2386 Walton Ave
Worker The Bronx, NY 10468

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Oliver and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Oliver nava
2386 Walton Ave
The Bronx, NY 10468

2023-04-07
15:45:15 Oliver nava The Bronx NY 10468 olivernava939@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Leonel and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
03:54:32 Leonel baten Queens NY 11373 leonelbaten220@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Leonel baten 94-02 40th Rd Queens, NY 11373

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mario and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
04:07:56 Mario Baten Queens NY 11372 batandavid33@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Mario Baten
37-11 90th St
Queens, NY 11372

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is María and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
04:11:56 María Ramirez Queens NY 11373 mariabate2912@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker María Ramirez
94-02 40th Rd
Queens, NY 11373

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Javan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
04:12:05 Javan leach The Bronx NY 10452 lordleach06@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Javan leach
as a NYC Food Delivery 1051 Anderson Ave
Worker The Bronx, NY 10452

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is carlos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
carlos rodriguez
497 Lincoln Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11208

2023-04-07
06:18:50 carlos rodriguez Brooklyn NY 11208 carloskeyla19@hmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohammad and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
07:15:27 Mohammad Mahmud Brooklyn NY

11230 mohammad55556666@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Mohammad Mahmud
649 Argyle Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11230

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is xiaoqi and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
xiaoqi zhu
737 49th St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

2023-04-07 08:01:07 xiaoqi zhu Brooklyn NY 11220 xiaoqizhu69@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ernesto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Ernesto Baez
102- 1 Farmers Blvd
Queens, NY 11423

2023-04-07
09:02:57 Ernesto Baez Queens NY 11423 yemell93@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Ernesto and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker Ernesto Baez
102- 1 Farmers Blvd
Queens, NY 11423

2023-04-07
09:03:39 Ernesto Baez Queens NY 11423 yamell93@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Md and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Md khan
2147 Starling Ave
The Bronx, NY 10462

2023-04-07
09:40:01 Md khan The Bronx NY 10462 faysal.khan12@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rodolfo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Rodolfo Cabrera
167-15 65th Ave
Queens, NY 11365

2023-04-07
10:05:30 Rodolfo Cabrera Queens NY 11365 lolitorespinoza@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Valentine and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Valentine Gonzalez
471 40th St
Brooklyn, NY 11232

2023-04-07
10:13:02 Valentine Gonzalez Brooklyn NY 11232 sunset471@icloud.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Jessica and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
11:09:16 Jessica Severino The Bronx NY 10459 severinojessica1047@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Jessica Severino
1047 Hoe Ave
The Bronx, NY 10459

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Mohamed and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
11:16:43 Mohamed eldemerdash Brooklyn NY mohamedeldemerdash1973@gmail.

11209 com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Mohamed eldemerdash
7920 4th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11209

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Antonio and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Antonio Cruz
120 W 176th St
The Bronx, NY 10453

2023-04-07
11:37:10 Antonio Cruz The Bronx NY 10453 cruz.antonio@live.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kareem and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
12:18:41 Kareem Rolland Staten Island NY 10303 pettykashmedia@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker Kareem Rolland 45 Doreen Dr Staten Island, NY 10303

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alvaro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Alvaro guarcax
104-69 Roosevelt Ave
Queens, NY 11368

2023-04-07
12:27:38 Alvaro guarcax Queens NY 11368 conpaalvaro@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alvaro and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Alvaro guarcax
104-69 Roosevelt Ave
Queens, NY 11368

2023-04-07
12:29:24 Alvaro guarcax Queens NY 11368 conpaalvaro@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Carlos and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Carlos florian
143-11 Hillside Avenue
Queens, NY 11435

2023-04-07
12:53:50 Carlos florian Queens NY 11435 carfutbol33@yahoo.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Rezwan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Rezwan Karim
84-75 Homelawn St
Queens, NY 11432

2023-04-07
13:30:04 Rezwan Karim Queens NY 11432 rezwank01@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is XIU and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
14:05:09 XIU LIN Brooklyn NY 11209 xiulin0721@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility XIU LIN
as a NYC Food Delivery 352 94th St
Worker Brooklyn, NY 11209

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Patrick and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Patrick Lewis
3635 Bronxwood Ave
The Bronx, NY 10469

2023-04-07 14:13:51 Patrick Lewis The Bronx NY 10469 patricklewis55@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is noe and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
14:14:15 noe vergara Queens NY 11377 vergara182@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility noe vergara
as a NYC Food Delivery 47-12 67th St
Worker Queens, NY 11377

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Alexander and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Alexander Ramirez
945 Aldus St
The Bronx, NY 10459

2023-04-07 14:44:24 Alexander Ramirez The Bronx NY 10459 exprecion.55@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Juan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Juan Ramirez
1726 65th St
Brooklyn, NY 11204

2023-04-07
14:55:14 Juan Ramirez Brooklyn NY 11204 carlossmateo299@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Aura and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07

14:56:16 Aura lopez Queens NY

11373 auramarinaperezlopez9@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Aura lopez
94-02 40th Rd
Queens, NY 11373

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Fanny and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Fanny Dolores
34-32 70th St
Queens, NY 11372

2023-04-07 15:18:39 Fanny Dolores Queens NY 11372 sophiajulian88@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Anyelo and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Anyelo zorrilla
14626 Hawthorne Ave
Queens, NY 11355

2023-04-07
15:30:17 Anyelo zorrilla Queens NY 11355 anyelodash94@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Adonias and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Adonias Clemente
370 Willis Ave
The Bronx, NY 10454

2023-04-07
15:35:22 Adonias Clemente The Bronx NY 10454 carlosclemente1994@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Bryan and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
15:38:17 Bryan Nieves The Bronx NY 10465 bryan_rebellion@aol.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Bryan Nieves
2755 Dewey Ave
The Bronx, NY 10465

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marquis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
15:53:13

Marquis Long

Mount
Vernon NY

gohardtransportationnyc@gmail.co
10550 m

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Marquis Long
52 W 4th St
Mount Vernon, NY 10550

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Lena and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Lena Mckenzie
361 Livonia Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11212

2023-04-07
15:56:10 Lena Mckenzie Brooklyn NY 11212 lenamckenzie23@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Elvis and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
16:05:31 Elvis Espinal Staten Island NY 10304 elvisricardes@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Elvis Espinal
49 Ridge Ave
Staten Island, NY 10304

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Kessraj and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
16:46:52 Kessraj Maharaj Queens NY 11419 kessrajm@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Kessraj Maharaj
101-35 109th St
Queens, NY 11419

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Queen and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
17:43:44 Queen Omofese Queens NY 11411 queenomofese@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Queen Omofese
115-74 218th St
Queens, NY 11411

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is PETER and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

PETER DELACRUZ
1646 Prospect Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11233

2023-04-07
19:03:44 PETER DELACRUZ Brooklyn NY 11233 delacruzpeter4@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is David and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
David Perez
30-47 29th St
Queens, NY 11102

2023-04-07 19:26:48 David Perez Queens NY 11102 dny24pb@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Marvin and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Marvin Jean
4211 Avenue K
Brooklyn, NY 11210

2023-04-07
19:51:14 Marvin Jean Brooklyn NY 11210 youngvador90@gmail.com

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Lashawanda and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07
21:00:30

Lashawanda Wilson

Mount
Vernon NY

10551 lashawandawilson81@yahoo.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Lashawanda Wilson
PO Box 1043
Mount Vernon, NY 10551

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Stavros and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07

21:16:53 Stavros Perkins The Bronx NY

10466 stavrosperkinskirnon@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility as a NYC Food Delivery Worker
Stavros Perkins
3530 Edson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10466

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Stavros and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07

21:17:37

Stavros

Perkins

The Bronx NY

10466 stavrosperkinskirnon@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker

Stavros Perkins
3530 Edson Ave
The Bronx, NY 10466

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Stavros and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

2023-04-07

21:17:51 Stavros Perkins The Bronx NY

10466 stavrosperkinskirnon@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility Stavros Perkins
as a NYC Food Delivery 3530 Edson Ave
Worker The Bronx, NY 10466

Dear Department of Consumer and Worker Protection,

My name is Wilson and I am a delivery worker and constituent in New York City. I am writing to urge you to revise the proposed rule that sets minimum pay for delivery workers. I support a minimum pay standard, but as currently written, the rule could ultimately take away my ability to work flexibly on platforms like DoorDash.

This draft rule threatens my ability to earn extra income making deliveries when, where, and how often I want. I choose to do this work because it allows me to earn on my own time and the freedom to choose which deliveries I accept, and I know many other delivery workers also depend on this flexibility. I worry that the high costs on consumers and resulting decline in orders from restaurants under the revised minimum pay rule could require platforms to restrict this flexibility. This will make it difficult for me to continue pursuing these earning opportunities altogether.

We want minimum pay protections, but also want to ensure that flexibility can continue and New Yorkers don't stop using delivery services altogether.

Please consider app-based delivery workers like myself before you enact this minimum pay rule.

Sincerely,

Please Protect My Flexibility
as a NYC Food Delivery
Worker
Wilson Lliguichuzhca
85-84 56th Ave
Queens, NY 11373

2023-04-07
21:51:51 Wilson Lliguichuzhca Queens NY 11373 mellmattmia@gmail.com

From: Driver, Charlie (DCWP)
Sent: Monday, April 17, 2023 12:02 PM
To: Josh Gold <jgold@uber.com>
Cc: Ortiz, Carlos (DCWP) <COrtiz@dcwp.nyc.gov>
Subject: RE: [EXTERNAL] Delivery Worker Minimum Pay Public Comment

Hi Josh,

Thanks for flagging the discrepancy here. We did not receive the comments you flagged, and are working on finding out why. Regardless, we will add these comments to the public record and fully consider them.

Best,
Charlie

Charlie Driver ~ NYC DCWP t: 212-436-0396 | c: 332225-6807 |
nyc.gov/dcwp

From: Josh Gold <jgold@uber.com>
Sent: Friday, April 14, 2023 12:04 PM
To: Driver, Charlie (DCWP) <CDriver@dcwp.nyc.gov>; Ortiz, Carlos (DCWP) <COrtiz@dcwp.nyc.gov>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] Delivery Worker Minimum Pay Public Comment

CAUTION: This email originated from outside of the organization. Do not click links or open attachments unless you recognize the sender and know the content is safe. Forward suspect email to phish@oti.nyc.gov as an attachment (Click the More button, then forward as attachment).

Carlos & Charlie -

I'm writing with concerns about the Agency's most recent public comment period on the Second Proposed Rules related to minimum pay for food delivery service workers. After the comment period closed on April 7th, the Agency published comments received from the public to its website. The publication made clear that, unfortunately, the agency blocked comments from the domain "p2a.com". What is not clear is whether the agency did this purposely or inadvertently (perhaps due to some kind of network firewall). Either way, the comments submitted via the domain "p2a.com" are part of the public record. The domain belongs to "Phone2Action" a common advocacy tool used by membership organizations, non-profits, advocacy groups and others to facilitate participation in government by members of the public. Comments from individual members of the public submitted via this domain were not blocked during the Agency's previous comment period nor, to our knowledge, are they blocked from the City Council or other NYC Agency's comment processes.

I'm attaching here a list of over 500 comments that were submitted by members of the public via Phone2Action, prior to the end of the comment period. These comments are part of the administrative record and we urge the agency to take the time it needs to consider them and appropriately respond to them. I'm also attaching a delivery report that shows these messages clearly 'arrived'. Those who commented through this method participated in the City's public comment process and through no fault of the commenters, the agency has failed to consider and address their comments - we urge you to do so.

Josh

ID	Date	Legislator Title	Legislator First Name	Legislator Last Name	Advocate First Name	Advocate Last Name	Advocate City	Advocate State	Advocate Zip	Advocate Email Address	Advocate Email Subscribed	Message Subject	Message Body
1.6E+08	2023-03-29 16:47:03	Commissioners from	Department of	Worker & Consumer Protection	Briane	Hatcher	Queens	NY	11433	brianehatcher@gmail.com	1	Please Protect My Flexibility	To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection: We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work. The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps. Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility. Regards, Briane Hatcher
1.6E+08	2023-03-29 16:47:21	Commissioners from	Department of	Worker & Consumer Protection	Abdur	Rahman	Queens	NY	11416	ar1900562@gmail.com	1	Please Protect My Flexibility	To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection: We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work. The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps. Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility. Regards, Abdur Rahman

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:47:26 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Evan ali Queens NY 11355 alievan728@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Evan ali

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:47:38 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jadde Bellamy Brooklyn NY 11231 lynettebellamy24@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jadde Bellamy

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:47:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Abderrzek Aliche Brooklyn NY 11223 al.abder19@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Abderrzek Aliche

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:47:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Dale Traverso Queens NY 11412 dtraverso.dt@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Dale Traverso

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:47:49 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection jack zelkowitz Staten Island NY 10312 jackptcar300@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
jack zelkowitz

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:47:51 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Modou Samb New York NY 10026 smodou2020@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Modou Samb

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:47:52 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Brandon De La Cuadra Brooklyn NY 11221 bdelacuadra58@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Brandon De La Cuadra

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:48:00 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Edgar Acteopan Brooklyn NY 11237 acteopanedar@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Edgar Acteopan

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:48:06 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Xavier Dupervil Brooklyn NY 11216 dupervilxavier@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Xavier Dupervil

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:48:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Luis paulino The Bronx NY 10463 luisplino@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Luis paulino

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:48:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Leslie Randolph Brooklyn NY 11225 bigcap371@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Leslie Randolph

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:48:27 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection alfredo vega New Rochelle NY 10801 alfredovega08@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
alfredo vega

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:48:27 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Christopher Stewart The Bronx NY 10467 mog4ever7@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Christopher Stewart

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:48:28 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Sonica Thomas Queens NY 11423 sonlecy3@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Sonica Thomas

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:48:33 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection LIVINGSTONE GERMAIN Brooklyn NY 11212 livingstonegermain@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
LIVINGSTONE GERMAIN

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:48:43 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Shemuel Peters Brooklyn NY 11221 shemupeters@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Shemuel Peters

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:48:50 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Osman Abass The Bronx NY 10452 abassosman02@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Osman Abass

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:48:55 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Bishal Shrestha Queens NY 11377 shresthabishal276@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Bishal Shrestha

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:48:56 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kiaun Figueroa The Bronx NY 10467 m keontorresmusic125th@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kiaun Figueroa

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:48:58 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Md Hasan Queens NY 11432 polash07@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Md Hasan

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:02 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Juan Torres Brooklyn NY 11208 marcosjimenez231@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Juan Torres

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:06 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection christian goris The Bronx NY 10453 gorischristian12@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
christian goris

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:08 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Dominick Goldberg Brooklyn NY 11234 kb115@pm.me 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Dominick Goldberg

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:10 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Annie oden Queens NY 11422 annie.oden82@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Annie oden

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:14 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Gregor Bonny Brooklyn NY 11212 bonnygregor80@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Gregor Bonny

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:20 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection CHRISTOPHER CURIEL The Bronx NY 10467 curielchristophercmc@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
CHRISTOPHER CURIEL

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:26 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Josiah Dillard The Bronx NY 10471 josiahd114@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Josiah Dillard

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:34 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mohamed assal Queens NY 11358 mediphone08@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mohamed assal

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:39 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jeannette Izquierdo Queens NY 11693 redhotginger88@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jeannette Izquierdo

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:40 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Richard Tonns Queens NY 11385 rftonns@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Richard Tonns

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:44 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection | Meekaaee DeBradley Plainfield NJ 07060 meekgeekfreak@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Meekaaeel DeBradley

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:48 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection | Margarette Darbouze Brooklyn NY 11226 margarettedarbouze@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Margarette Darbouze

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:49 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection | Jamaris Garcia Bayonne NJ 07002 jgpsyche@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jamaris Garcia

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:57 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Corey Quinn Brooklyn NY 11211 corey92q@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Corey Quinn

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:49:59 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Abdelrahman Ghonim Queens NY 11106 abdughoneim888@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Abdelrahman Ghonim

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:50:01 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Pasang sherpa Brooklyn NY 11230 unique.passang@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Pasang sherpa

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:50:10 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Juan Reyes New York NY 10002 filsonik@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Juan Reyes

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:50:17 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Milenko Nizic Queens NY 11369 mnvmp16@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Milenko Nizic

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:50:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Julio Varga Brooklyn NY 11222 juliovarga4@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Julio Varga

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:50:31 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Brooke Gibbs Mastic NY 11950 b.gibbs119@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Brooke Gibbs

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:50:43 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Glenn Atkins New York NY 10038 atkins_blc@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Glenn Atkins

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:51:02 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Syed ali Queens NY 11368 dilarajahan11@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Syed ali

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:51:07 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection David Lee Brooklyn NY 11236 artlover21@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
David Lee

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:51:40 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ceiquan Brown Staten Island NY 10301 ceiquan15@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ceiquan Brown

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:52:02 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Md hasan Queens NY 11432 md07hasan1988@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Md hasan

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:52:02 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jeancarlo Tejada New York NY 10031 j.tejada.uber77@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jeancarlo Tejada

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:52:44 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection everton Springer Brooklyn NY 11238 evertonalonza@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
everton Springer

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:52:49 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Dujon Jennings The Bronx NY 10456 dujonjennings86@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Dujon Jennings

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:53:00 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Wenhong Meng Queens NY 11354 tmengcn@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Wenhong Meng

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:53:03 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jace Horsford The Bronx NY 10453 horsfordjace@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jace Horsford

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:53:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kadeem Boykins Brooklyn NY 11212 kadeemrashardsr@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kadeem Boykins

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:53:27 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Xavier mazz New York NY 10019 gs9bangbang@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Xavier mazz

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:53:31 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ousainou Sumareh The Bronx NY 10453 tunkarasumareh30@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ousainou Sumareh

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:53:38 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Rassan Gary Brooklyn NY 11203 mistergary620@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Rassan Gary

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:53:38 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Tiffany irvis Queens NY 11432 tiffanyirvis7@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Tiffany irvis

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:53:52 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection SHAMIER BRITT Brooklyn NY 11230 shamierbritt@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
SHAMIER BRITT

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:53:54 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Sadman Kabir Brooklyn NY 11207 maheer461@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Sadman Kabir

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:53:58 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Adianne Horton The Bronx NY 10475 adiannehorton@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Adianne Horton

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:54:08 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ricardo Condado Staten Island NY 10305 r.condado98@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ricardo Condado

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:54:08 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Edgar Heredia The Bronx NY 10468 eheredia9308@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Edgar Heredia

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:54:25 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Lionel Cook The Bronx NY 10475 lionelcook70@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Lionel Cook

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:54:33 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kevin Anzurez The Bronx NY 10467 sheadmireskevin1@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kevin Anzurez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:54:57 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jersino Joseph Brooklyn NY 11203 jersinojoseph7@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jersino Joseph

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:54:59 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Cynthia Rodriguez Queens NY 11367 cynthiacr8@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Cynthia Rodriguez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:55:22 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Davon Daniels Queens NY 11435 dmoney5208@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Davon Daniels

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:55:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Lorna Sexius Brooklyn NY 11203 lornasexius@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Lorna Sexius

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:55:35 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Andre James Queens NY 11434 aanthonyjames@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Andre James

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:55:45 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Daouda kone New York NY 10027 daoudikone5560@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Daouda kone

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:55:56 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection CHRISTOPHER JIMENEZ New York NY 10033 frankmorningstar90@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
CHRISTOPHER JIMENEZ

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:56:18 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Terrance cannady Brooklyn NY 11216 samboy23.tc@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Terrance cannady

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:56:36 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Redulfo pilar New York NY 11208 chortycrv@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Redulfo pilar

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:56:45 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jacky Wu Brooklyn NY 11214 jackywuapple612@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jacky Wu

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:57:01 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Bin ouyang Brooklyn NY 11219 ouyangbin1223@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Bin ouyang

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:57:38 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Celecia miller The Bronx NY 10467 mitsy47@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Celecia miller

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:57:48 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection YASIN OZTURK Queens NY 11104 oztrkysn@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
YASIN OZTURK

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:58:02 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection
Tani Lawrence Queens NY 11434 dtanilawrence@yahoo.com
1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Tani Lawrence

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:58:04 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection
Adan Rivera Brooklyn NY 11207 sgtrivera182@gmail.com
1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Adan Rivera

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:58:08 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection
Malia Jones New York NY 10013 mjones23@aol.com
1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Malia Jones

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:58:26 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Immanuel Bhagolie New York NY 10004 ebhagolie@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Immanuel Bhagolie

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:58:29 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Andy Zheng Brooklyn NY 11231 zoilist57@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Andy Zheng

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:58:37 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jamaul Moore Brooklyn NY 11233 levar1530@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jamaul Moore

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:58:43 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection YuTing Weng Brooklyn NY 11220 wengyuting1981@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
YuTing Weng

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:58:46 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Md arrafat Brooklyn NY 11208 mdarafatrabbi87@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Md arrafat

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:58:55 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ferguson Ankrah Staten Island NY 10302 yeboahann300@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ferguson Ankrah

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:59:09 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mohamed Hassan Queens NY 11373 altarkwe8@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mohamed Hassan

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:59:13 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection James III Brooklyn NY 11203 jamesjones7180@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
James III

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:59:18 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Andre Cowan New York NY 10002 andre@gneticsmanagement.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Andre Cowan

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 16:59:40 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mizanur Choudhury The Bronx NY 10461 00mizan@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mizanur Choudhury

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:00:09 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Abu Sayed Queens NY 11416 abus63567@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Abu Sayed

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:00:18 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Justin Straughter Yonkers NY 10701 jstraughter822@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Justin Straughter

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:00:20 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Amr Hassan Brooklyn NY 11228 amrmhassan6970@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Amr Hassan

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:00:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection jae lee Queens NY 11360 kateflower77@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
jae lee

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:01:17 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Patricia Nunez The Bronx NY 10463 pnunez57@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Patricia Nunez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:02:31 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Edgar perez Brooklyn NY 11219 edgarbenjamingsp@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Edgar perez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:02:58 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Brandon Shalim Queens NY 11419 brandonshalim@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Brandon Shalim

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:03:21 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Fadilatou Boubacar The Bronx NY 10456 alimrana227@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Fadilatou Boubacar

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:03:43 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Allan Harper Brooklyn NY 11234 abharper17@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Allan Harper

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:04:34 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Fitzroy Young The Bronx NY 10468 larrystay2fly@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Fitzroy Young

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:04:51 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection RONALD HARDNETT The Bronx NY 10467 hardnettronald@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
RONALD HARDNETT

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:04:59 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jonavann Jerriho Brooklyn NY 11216 jonnyjerriho@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jonavann Jerriho

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:05:13 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Damola bamidele Queens NY 11413 dorganizedmind@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Damola bamidele

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:05:22 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Luis Perez Astoria NY 11105 l.perez2786@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Luis Perez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:05:38 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Najla Quarles The Bronx NY 10454 lovelynage@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Najla Quarles

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:06:10 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Abigail Murrien Brooklyn NY 11232 puppluv_78@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Abigail Murrien

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:06:30 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Raul E Queens NY 11378 mugga261@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Raul E

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:06:33 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Melissa Powell The Bronx NY 10466 mtiffany9310@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Melissa Powell

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:06:52 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection aten Walters New York NY 10001 atenwalters@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
aten Walters

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:07:11 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mubarak abass The Bronx NY 10456 mubarakabass55@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mubarak abass

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:07:22 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection willian hernandez Yonkers NY 10701 smart4ever@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
willian hernandez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:07:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Caudy Antoine Yonkers NY 10705 caudyantoine3@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Caudy Antoine

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:07:49 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kenneth Rodriguez The Bronx NY 10455 kenrz928@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kenneth Rodriguez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:07:56 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kristen Ferrante Oceanside NY 11572 kutee385@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kristen Ferrante

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:07:59 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Sasha Augustine The Bronx NY 10468 skhyqueen@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Sasha Augustine

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:08:17 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jasmine Henderson Brooklyn NY 11236 ms.jhenderson111@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jasmine Henderson

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:08:18 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jacqueline Fortuna Astoria NY 11105 j.fortuna90@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jacqueline Fortuna

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:08:29 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Luis Rosario The Bronx NY 10473 elbori2nice@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Luis Rosario

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:08:53 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Paul Williams The Bronx NY 10456 retched@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Paul Williams

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:09:50 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mohammad hossain Brooklyn NY 11218 sekmal680@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mohammad hossain

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:09:52 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kevin Cuamatla Queens NY 11105 kcua0294@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kevin Cuamatla

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:09:53 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Eduardo Leyva Brooklyn NY 11235 mets2k00@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Eduardo Leyva

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:09:53 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Moustapha Diallo The Bronx NY 10467 dmoustapha246@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Moustapha Diallo

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:10:05 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jeanette Pena The Bronx NY 10465 gottaluvjp1@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jeanette Pena

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:10:19 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Nageri Ginn Brooklyn NY 11207 nageri1@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Nageri Ginn

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:11:42 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Martin Ruarte Queens NY 11369 chori0820@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Martin Ruarte

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:11:43 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection EUGENE SAVITSKI Queens NY 11435 gene.savitski@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
EUGENE SAVITSKI

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:13:07 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Cristian Ruggieri New York NY 10025 maximos305@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Cristian Ruggieri

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:13:24 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Shokhrukh Toshpulatov Brooklyn NY 11223 simpletony20@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Shokhrukh Toshpulatov

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:13:50 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection mike wrong Lynbrook NY 11563 mikewrong1ns@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
mike wrong

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:13:58 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kia green Mount Vernon NY 10550 kiagreen2424@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kia green

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:14:09 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Martha Leonardo Staten Island NY 10303 martha.leonardo44@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Martha Leonardo

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:14:21 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Joshua Pichardo Brooklyn NY 11212 joshuajeu12345@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Joshua Pichardo

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:14:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Marcos Lopez Brooklyn NY 11212 ml22524@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Marcos Lopez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:15:04 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Edda Maysonet New York NY 10002 nydiax3@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Edda Maysonet

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:15:07 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Nur Nabi Queens NY 11435 skmn09@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Nur Nabi

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:15:08 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Evelyn Rodriguez New York NY 10009 happy2601@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Evelyn Rodriguez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:15:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection David English New York NY 10026 davidenglish59@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
David English

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:15:24 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Matthew jimenez Brooklyn NY 11207 matthewjimenez167@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Matthew jimenez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:15:40 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Eliut oslan The Bronx NY 10457 eliutoslan@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Eliut oslan

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:16:42 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Maksudur Rahman Brooklyn NY 11208 maksudur855@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Maksudur Rahman

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:17:36 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mahmudu Hasan Brooklyn NY 11208 khansurjo714@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mahmudul Hasan

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:18:39 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Anibal Cartagena New York NY 10033 ace.promo911@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Anibal Cartagena

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:18:45 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Warren Tyson Brooklyn NY 11220 kristinakasik1@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Warren Tyson

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:19:40 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Tawanda Madondo Brooklyn NY 11221 tawamad99@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Tawanda Madondo

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:19:44 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Alfred Thomas Queens NY 11433 alfredthomas8371@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Alfred Thomas

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:19:44 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Parviz Fayziev Brooklyn NY 11235 parviz.sobitzod@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Parviz Fayziev

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:19:53 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kimberly Goris Queens NY 11691 kay.ga@outlook.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kimberly Goris

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:21:00 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Carlos Mizhquiri-Criollo Brooklyn NY 11204 carloscriollo98@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Carlos Mizhquiri-Criollo

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:22:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jonathan Gatlin Brooklyn NY 11237 jonnycouture@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jonathan Gatlin

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:22:48 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kenny Tolentino New York NY 10002 tolintinok93@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kenny Tolentino

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:23:09 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Sarkeal Vaughn Brooklyn NY 11216 jonesdontay69@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Sarkeal Vaughn

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:23:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Tiffany Youmans Brooklyn NY 11208 tiffanyyoumans95@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Tiffany Youmans

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:23:46 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Larry Wise New York NY 10035 larrywise57@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Larry Wise

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:24:01 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mama Thiam Queens NY 11355 mamadou123479@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mama Thiam

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:24:16 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Fabia Gomez Bogota NJ 07603 macedofabia17@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Fabia Gomez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:24:47 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Keneva Edwards Mount Vernon NY 10550 kenevae@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Keneva Edwards

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:24:55 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Samsu Uddin Brooklyn NY 11221 ahmedrijve1991@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Samsu Uddin

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:25:14 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Lascelles Lagares Queens NY 11434 lascelles1994@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Lascelles Lagares

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:25:31 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Liliana Torija Staten Island NY 10310 lilypadd54@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Liliana Torija

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:27:03 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Tyrik Singleton Brooklyn NY 11216 triumphtrumbone@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Tyrik Singleton

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:27:03 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Christopher Carter Brooklyn NY 11225 chris.carter.jr@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Christopher Carter

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:28:32 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mohammed Islam Queens NY 11433 aaqibislam@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mohammed Islam

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:29:09 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection MUHAMMAD SHARIF Queens NY 11355 adnansharif2023@yahoo.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
MUHAMMAD SHARIF

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:29:43 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Brandon Forde Brooklyn NY 11203 brann355@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Brandon Forde

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:29:47 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Luis Hernandez Brooklyn NY 11203 raul.hernandez39@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Luis Hernandez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:30:08 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kely Hernandez The Bronx NY 10456 kelygarciahernandez@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kely Hernandez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:31:04 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Naturallife Brown Brooklyn NY 11220 lifebrown77@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Naturallife Brown

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:31:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection kristie suarez Staten Island NY 10312 ksuarz1971@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
kristie suarez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:32:55 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection David Simon Brooklyn NY 11230 davidsimonism@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
David Simon

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:33:24 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mamadou Sow The Bronx NY 10451 sowalphaone@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mamadou Sow

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:33:55 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Angus Addai Brooklyn NY 11226 angusaddai@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Angus Addai

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:33:57 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Reynaldo Bueno Queens NY 11385 blassinoking0102034@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Reynaldo Bueno

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:34:45 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Neeraj Shrestha Brooklyn NY 11204 nyraj.s@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Neeraj Shrestha

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:35:45 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Aleksii Okhanashvili GA 11358 alex.okhana@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Aleksii Okhanashvili

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:36:42 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Syed Ahmad Queens NY 11375 sfa975@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Syed Ahmad

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:38:25 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Daniel Compaore The Bronx NY 10469 dcompaore73@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Daniel Compaore

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:38:34 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection David Deutsch Brooklyn NY 11229 eliazerd@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
David Deutsch

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:38:53 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Felicia wade Brooklyn NY 11233 wade.feliciak@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Felicia wade

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:39:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Austin Hartl Brooklyn NY 11231 austinjhartl@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Austin Hartl

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:40:50 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Arturo Flores New York NY 10002 artu.h.f@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Arturo Flores

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:41:54 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jason Principe The Bronx NY 10467 principe1016@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jason Principe

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:42:16 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Tariq Woodley Brooklyn NY 11207 tariq.w98@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Tariq Woodley

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:42:48 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Bogdan tiflinsky Queens NY 11355 bogdan.tiflinsky@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Bogdan tiflinsky

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:43:56 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jinghua Li Staten Island NY 10310 jinghuali911@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jinghua Li

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:44:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Sandra Lujan Brooklyn NY 11235 sandbelle33@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Sandra Lujan

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:45:02 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jaleesa Wright Brooklyn NY 11208 wrightjaleesa7@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jaleesa Wright

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:45:30 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Miguel Medina The Bronx NY 10467 mikeson1970@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Miguel Medina

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:47:07 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kevin Coyotecatl Queens NY 11101 coyotecatlhouse@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kevin Coyotecatl

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:47:25 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Joseph Rivera The Bronx NY 10456 josephrivera012@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Joseph Rivera

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:47:38 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Robert Williams Brooklyn NY 11203 rw906038@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Robert Williams

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:48:15 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection
Ridan santos New York NY 10002 ridan341@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ridan santos

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:48:39 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection
Alexis Joseph Queens NY 11420 alexisjosephjr@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Alexis Joseph

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:49:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection
Jean Villegas Queens NY 11106 jeanvil2000@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jean Villegas

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:50:28 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Richard Rojas Queens NY 11370 richrojas52@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Richard Rojas

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:51:20 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kenneth McCoy Queens NY 11691 mccoynkenneth@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kenneth McCoy

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:54:45 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jacob Ibarrondo Queens NY 11379 jacob99ibarr@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jacob Ibarrondo

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:55:09 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Louis Adrasse Brooklyn NY 11236 gerelad@optimum.net 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Louis Adrasse

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:55:36 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Alex Torres Queens NY 11420 alextorres.710@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Alex Torres

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:56:34 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Felipe Santos Brooklyn NY 11221 felipejuansantos@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Felipe Santos

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:57:16 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Daniel Kearney New York NY 10032 djkearney82@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Daniel Kearney

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 17:58:47 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jennifer Juneau New York NY 10014 jennijuneau@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jennifer Juneau

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:00:42 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Decosta Battle Brooklyn NY 11206 decostabattle@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Decosta Battle

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:00:48 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Aaliyah Whitehead The Bronx NY 10460 whiteheadaaliyah1@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Aaliyah Whitehead

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:02:56 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Dayanara Ambrosi Queens NY 11369 dayihidalgo@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Dayanara Ambrosi

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:04:05 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Matthew castro Brooklyn NY 11206 mcastro0502@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Matthew castro

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:04:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection B m Brooklyn NY 11217 kialov917@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
B m

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:05:16 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection ikbal sojib Brooklyn NY 11218 ikbalhossainsojib@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
ikbal sojib

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:06:12 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Joann Torres The Bronx NY 10458 joanntorres616@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Joann Torres

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:07:24 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection MD uddin Brooklyn NY 11218 mafugalam60@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
MD uddin

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:09:00 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Angel Penafiel Queens NY 11418 vega66383@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Angel Penafiel

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:09:28 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Darren Makiza The Bronx NY 10466 darrenboys@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Darren Makiza

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:10:54 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mohammad Rahman New York NY 10002 rahmanmohammad2019@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mohammad Rahman

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:12:33 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jeanmard Lahens Brooklyn NY 11229 jeanmard101@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jeanmard Lahens

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:12:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mohamed Taha Queens NY 11374 amin5200010@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mohamed Taha

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:13:27 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Darbo Camara The Bronx NY 10469 darbo1456@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Darbo Camara

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:13:32 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Roland Collins New York NY 10029 rolandcollins87@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Roland Collins

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:14:10 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Damion Keller Queens NY 11691 damanrep@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Damion Keller

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:14:42 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Elizabeth Hart Queens NY 11357 beth061670@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Elizabeth Hart

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:15:31 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Dashamir Shamku Staten Island NY 10312 dashi1977@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Dashamir Shamku

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:15:49 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Roselin Jean Queens NY 11411 roselinjean@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Roselin Jean

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:16:28 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Terry Bishop Brooklyn NY 11234 terry.bishop@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Terry Bishop

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:17:31 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Christopher Griffin Staten Island NY 10314 christophergriff93@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Christopher Griffin

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:17:58 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ryhene Grisson Brooklyn NY 11208 daraknapash144@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ryhene Grisson

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:19:53 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Travis aleman The Bronx NY 10473 taleman617@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Travis aleman

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:23:04 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ambiorix perello Brooklyn NY 11221 amperello@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ambiorix perello

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:25:20 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jennetta Bourne Brooklyn NY 11205 jennettab@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jennetta Bourne

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:26:24 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Shequan Wiggins Brooklyn NY 11233 quandwiggins@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Shequan Wiggins

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:26:59 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Francisco Fernandez New York NY 10009 papaduc31@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Francisco Fernandez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:27:56 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Lenworth Baptiste Brooklyn NY 11208 wab4040@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Lenworth Baptiste

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:28:07 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Md Miah Brooklyn NY 11218 mdeunus2020usa@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Md Miah

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:29:28 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection keith hatcher Brooklyn NY 11208 lyricallethal@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
keith hatcher

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:29:46 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Luz Rodriguez New York NY 10029 i.rod83@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Luz Rodriguez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:30:14 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Maoshou Lin New York NY 10002 maoshoulin1984@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Maoshou Lin

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:31:12 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Realino Wijaya Queens NY 11373 realinowijaya@yahoo.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Realino Wijaya

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:31:37 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Safiu Aliwu The Bronx NY 10468 safiualiwu@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Safiu Aliwu

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:33:32 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Keon TAPPIN Queens NY 11694 keytap24@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Keon TAPPIN

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:39:36 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection MD RAHMAN The Bronx NY 10462 mustafiz.m0484@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
MD RAHMAN

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:39:47 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Dmitry Kharitonov Brooklyn NY 11235 dkharitonov96@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Dmitry Kharitonov

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:39:57 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Steven Santiago New York NY 10032 santiagooswaldo@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Steven Santiago

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:40:05 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Gavarentz laine The Bronx NY 10473 kingsp421@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Gavarentz laine

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:42:35 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Fausto Quezada The Bronx NY 10458 smoove84@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Fausto Quezada

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:44:57 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Marcus Moore Brooklyn NY 11212 moorehomesteaders@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Marcus Moore

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:46:21 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Hanif Ansaar New York NY 10011 ansaar.hanif@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Hanif Ansaar

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:46:44 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Victor Soto Brooklyn NY 11206 sotovictor276@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Victor Soto

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:46:48 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jeanlouis Nicolas Brooklyn NY 11210 njeanlouis21@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jeanlouis Nicolas

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:50:10 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Joan Padilla Brooklyn NY 11236 chuckyjt@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Joan Padilla

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:51:45 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mithuja Jahan Queens NY 11432 mithuja.jahan@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mithuja Jahan

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:51:53 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Martin Cruz Queens NY 11418 bcjtcruz@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Martin Cruz

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:51:59 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Alexandra velasquez Brooklyn NY 11222 mylocorredor@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Alexandra velasquez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:54:17 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ryan Choice Brooklyn NY 11249 choceryan@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ryan Choice

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:54:35 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kerri-Ann Bailey Brooklyn NY 11234 baileyk2010@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kerri-Ann Bailey

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:56:01 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Dee Fernandez Queens NY 11385 davidfernandez898@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Dee Fernandez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 18:59:49 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Carlos garcia Queens NY 11368 carlosxavier2892@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Carlos garcia

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:03:12 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Joseph Fogle New York NY 10027 josephfogle550@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Joseph Fogle

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:04:46 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jonathan Geronimo The Bronx NY 10467 jonathan.geronimo5912@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jonathan Geronimo

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:09:37 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Alina Garcia New York NY 10032 alina.garcia@lc.cuny.edu 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Alina Garcia

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:10:04 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Dmitri Sinaiski Staten Island NY 10308 dmitri_2@msn.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Dmitri Sinaiski

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:10:20 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Elisamuel Ocasio New York NY 10025 elithegreat@nyc.rr.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Elisamuel Ocasio

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:12:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Buddha Lama Queens NY 11378 buddhalama1993@outlook.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Buddha Lama

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:13:19 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Tyqaun White East Orange NJ 07018 wtyqaun@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Tyqaun White

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:18:45 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jason Rigsby Brooklyn NY 11236 socatech@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jason Rigsby

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:23:08 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mitchell Enoch Brooklyn NY 11225 menoch319@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mitchell Enoch

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:25:08 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Francois Tiendrebeogo The Bronx NY 10456 tiendre105@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Francois Tiendrebeogo

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:27:24 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Shalaya Haynes Queens NY 11413 1layaway22@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Shalaya Haynes

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:33:58 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Maurice Rico Queens NY 11375 tcr03@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Maurice Rico

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:34:27 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Muktar Mizi The Bronx NY 10472 mizimuktar0@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Muktar Mizi

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:34:47 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Maksym Khalturin Brooklyn NY 11223 mkhalturin@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Maksym Khalturin

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:39:18 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Zenen Moran The Bronx NY 10472 nightzt@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Zenen Moran

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:39:57 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Darryl Williams Bronx NY 10466 darryllwilliams209@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Darryl Williams

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:42:33 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Shakira Stith New York NY 10009 stithshakira2@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Shakira Stith

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:43:26 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Dumnodei Ekwuanumkwu Bayonne NJ 07002 gregoryegwus@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Dumnodei Ekwuanumkwu

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:46:49 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Darryl Williams Bronx NY 10466 darryllwilliams209@g8mail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Darryl Williams

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:47:53 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Edwin Gomez Brooklyn NY 11239 gomezinc1@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Edwin Gomez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 19:49:18 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Yevhen Hetmanyuk Brooklyn NY 11204 zhetmanyuk@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Yevhen Hetmanyuk

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:00:06 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jerome Bradley Queens NY 11385 jcbradley12003@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jerome Bradley

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:04:12 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Miguel moscoso Queens NY 11377 miguelmoscoso.mm72@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Miguel moscoso

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:08:51 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Solomon Fleming Brooklyn NY 11226 solomonfleming92@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Solomon Fleming

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:09:59 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Zsuzsanna Esquerett Queens NY 11356 zsuzska0613@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Zsuzsanna Esquerett

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:13:22 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Gilbert Agner Brooklyn NY 11201 gillyvsjoker@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Gilbert Agner

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:26:00 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Catherine Fabre The Bronx NY 10461 fabre992@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Catherine Fabre

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:26:02 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jose feliciano Brooklyn NY 11212 daddynmommy71@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jose feliciano

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:32:33 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Dinesh chand Queens NY 11691 chand793@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Dinesh chand

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:33:24 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Roger Mckenzie Brooklyn NY 11236 rogermckenzie914@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Roger Mckenzie

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:33:48 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jose Pichardo Brooklyn NY 11212 josepichardo1520@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jose Pichardo

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:35:49 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ammaar algadi Brooklyn NY 11228 ammar433@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ammaar algadi

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:39:36 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Akiema Forbes New York NY 10036 aaforbes26@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Akiema Forbes

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:44:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ronald collins New York NY 10039 ronald_collins34@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ronald collins

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:46:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection KEON BASCOMB Brooklyn NY 11238 keon.bascomb@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
KEON BASCOMB

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:50:20 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Yesiffer Hernandez The Bronx NY 10467 yesifferf@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Yesiffer Hernandez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:50:37 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Michael Simpson Yonkers NY 10701 michaelssimpson1980888@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Michael Simpson

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:51:18 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Chamssou Ibrahim The Bronx NY 10460 ichamssou13@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Chamssou Ibrahim

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:53:28 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection MD HASAN The Bronx NY 10461 rifathasan536@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
MD HASAN

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:57:31 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Sarker Amit 11432 amitsarker78@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Sarker Amit

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 20:59:05 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection marisol ravelo Queens NY 11421 marisolravelo63@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
marisol ravelo

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 21:04:09 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Massiel Cabral The Bronx NY 10469 massieldize@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Massiel Cabral

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 21:08:22 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Robert Perez Brooklyn NY 11237 scorp1436@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Robert Perez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 21:11:33 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Victor Muniz Staten Island NY 10310 vmuniz317@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Victor Muniz

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 21:13:14 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jamel Caraballo The Bronx NY 10451 caraballo83@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jamel Caraballo

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 21:26:45 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ahmad Dinnawi

11229 ahmad_asma@live.com

1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ahmad Dinnawi

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 21:29:33 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Yinghey Ping Brooklyn NY

11208 yingheyping1023@icloud.com

1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Yinghey Ping

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 21:30:08 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Gurcharan singh Queens NY

11419 sonughotra26@gmail.com

1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Gurcharan singh

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 21:33:38 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Javier Fernandez New York NY 10033 jfdez623@hotmail.com

1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Javier Fernandez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 21:43:50 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Schnider Sejour Brooklyn NY 11236 schnidercjr27@gmail.com

1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Schnider Sejour

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 21:51:52 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Leroy Leslie Queens NY 11422 bobblack876@gmail.com

1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Leroy Leslie

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 22:08:18 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Fatoumata Bah Brooklyn NY 11236 bahfatoumata025@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Fatoumata Bah

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 22:18:47 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Zeb mirza West Hempstead NY 11552 zeb_mirza@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Zeb mirza

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 22:30:12 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ronald Gerald Queens NY 11434 rongeraldentertainment@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ronald Gerald

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 22:37:05 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Radip Shrestha New York NY 10027 sradip@gmail.com

1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Radip Shrestha

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 22:39:24 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Oluwatobi Alese Brooklyn NY 11213 tobillionaire95@gmail.com

1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Oluwatobi Alese

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 22:39:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ignatius Robertson Brooklyn NY 11221 alkalineuser@gmail.com

1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ignatius Robertson

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 22:40:36 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection MICHAEL THOMAS Queens NY 11434 mikeethomas89@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
MICHAEL THOMAS

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 22:41:12 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Melsone Gasby Brooklyn NY 11217 melgasby94@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Melsone Gasby

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 22:48:34 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Juan Molina The Bronx NY 10460 juanm.molina83@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Juan Molina

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 22:52:46 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Patrick JnBaptiste Queens NY 11412 jnpatrick57@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Patrick JnBaptiste

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 22:54:44 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Martin Miranda Queens NY 11358 martimiranda@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Martin Miranda

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 22:58:28 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Nicole Watson Queens NY 11411 nicolewatson0804@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Nicole Watson

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 22:59:05 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection L Renta New York NY 10034 newmonstercity@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
L Renta

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 23:06:53 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Armando Trinidad New York NY 10002 armandot0288@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Armando Trinidad

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 23:08:13 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Vicente Diaz Queens NY 11421 kingjaysta060384@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Vicente Diaz

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 23:10:35 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Oscar Martinez Brooklyn NY 11237 djluna980@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Oscar Martinez

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 23:14:35 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Guesseowinde ouedraogo The Bronx NY 10456 elprof47seur@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Guesseowinde ouedraogo

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 23:21:49 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Gilbert Rosa The Bronx NY 10462 grosa4902@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Gilbert Rosa

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 23:22:33 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Joshua Birnbaum Brooklyn NY 11235 josh91998@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Joshua Birnbaum

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 23:38:38 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Candice Kowalewski Keansburg NJ 07734 cakowalewski@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Candice Kowalewski

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 23:38:46 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Emily Omara New York NY 10025 emilymoton5@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Emily Omara

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 23:44:02 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Lamin Sonko New York NY 10032 sonko8111@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Lamin Sonko

2023-03-29 1.6E+08 23:48:48 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Lonnie Davis The Bronx NY 10455 lonniedavis88@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Lonnie Davis

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 00:00:33 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kerry morris Queens NY 11435 teamwork718@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kerry morris

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 00:06:57 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection FNU Menggulefu Queens NY 11360 mglf315@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
FNU Menggulefu

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 00:16:26 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Shahbaaz Karim Brooklyn NY 11234 shaabzyt@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Shahbaaz Karim

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 00:22:06 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Darien Picart Queens NY 11417 darienpicart@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Darien Picart

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 00:40:35 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection WEI GU Melville NY 11747 williamguwei@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
WEI GU

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 00:43:33 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection xinzhi zhen Staten Island NY 10304 191312745@qq.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
xinzhi zhen

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 00:57:01 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection fidel colon Queens NY 11377 fidc@live.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
fidel colon

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 00:58:27 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ahmed Allahabi Brooklyn NY 11216 a.allahabi90@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ahmed Allahabi

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 01:05:07 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mohammad roknuzzaman Queens NY 11691 mrokonusa@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mohammad roknuzzaman

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 01:06:59 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Lauren Solano Queens NY 11360 lauren_solano94@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Lauren Solano

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 01:21:47 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Bassirou Degtoumda The Bronx NY 10453 bassdegt@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Bassirou Degtoumda

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 01:22:18 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Agustin Galvez The Bronx NY 10451 galveza397@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Agustin Galvez

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 01:31:39 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Donna WILLIAMS The Bronx NY 10451 dmw-117@optonline.net 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Donna WILLIAMS

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 01:39:24 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Thomas Romero Queens NY 11421 thomasrom27@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Thomas Romero

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 02:07:02 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Md salauddin Queens NY 11373 mds.usa88@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Md salauddin

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 02:09:48 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Devon Harper New York NY 10027 devonharper7@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Devon Harper

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 02:11:09 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ayanna Benn Brooklyn NY 11224 empres1114@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ayanna Benn

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 02:11:18 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Hermen Yanez The Bronx NY 10456 madben2104@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Hermen Yanez

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 02:15:20 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jaime Guzman Queens NY 11377 jguzman899@me.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jaime Guzman

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 02:24:03 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jeffry Setiawan Brooklyn NY 11204 jeffry_set2001@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jeffry Setiawan

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 02:31:44 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Videl Dunker Brooklyn NY 11210 entrepreneurlife.myway123@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Videl Dunker

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 02:34:01 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Walid Ghanimeh Queens NY 11364 ghanimehla1@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Walid Ghanimeh

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 02:39:44 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Michael Simmons The Bronx NY 10466 fezz678@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Michael Simmons

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 02:40:42 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Niang Samba New York NY 11207 sambaniang749@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Niang Samba

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 03:29:52 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Zacharius watson The Bronx NY 10455 dutchboy256@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Zacharius watson

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 03:34:08 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Shenique Seale New York NY 11101 sheniques93@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Shenique Seale

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 03:48:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection James Hernandez Jersey City NJ 07305 james_hernandez43@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
James Hernandez

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 03:56:10 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Denice Watkins Queens NY 11365 murphy1953@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Denice Watkins

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 04:20:57 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Harry shepherd Brooklyn NY 11238 hshepherd327@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Harry shepherd

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 04:46:05 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Md Tanzim Queens NY 11369 fardintanzim1999@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Md Tanzim

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 04:46:59 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection MD Samdani Queens NY 11417 samdani.sabbir@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
MD Samdani

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 05:08:09 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Marcus Cruz New York NY 10029 gwrfr92@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Marcus Cruz

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 05:17:32 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Guillermo Aspiazu Queens NY 11375 guiaspiazu75@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Guillermo Aspiazu

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 05:18:12 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ramon Pichardo The Bronx NY 10472 ramonpichardo94@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ramon Pichardo

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 05:51:57 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Samsul islam Brooklyn NY 11207 samsulis1988@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Samsul islam

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 05:54:26 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Geraldo Cruz The Bronx NY 10461 gerardocruz183@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Geraldo Cruz

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 06:02:14 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kenneth Bishop Hempstead NY 11550 odjin200@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kenneth Bishop

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 06:12:10 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Philippe ndah New York NY 10032 philipndahauguste73@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Philippe ndah

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 06:23:51 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jonath martinez The Bronx NY 10456 newyorkcity1234@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jonath martinez

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 06:40:25 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Michaiah Winbush Brooklyn NY 11234 micw007@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Michaiah Winbush

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 06:50:34 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jaydel Richardson Elmont NY 11003 jaydelrich@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jaydel Richardson

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 06:57:01 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Sylvester Wilson Queens NY 11419 h2ocoat8@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Sylvester Wilson

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 07:05:52 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection keenen alphonso Brooklyn NY 11207 alphonsokeenen@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
keenen alphonso

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 07:08:10 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Lorenzo Ramirez New York NY 10003 lrez84@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Lorenzo Ramirez

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 07:18:07 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Nina Trice Brooklyn NY 11224 ntrice5@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Nina Trice

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 07:18:44 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Solangny Santiago New York NY 10026 solangny@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Solangny Santiago

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 07:20:29 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Willie Greene The Bronx NY 10453 actionthebest2010@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Willie Greene

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 07:53:56 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Craig Webster Brooklyn NY 11212 craigwebster738@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Craig Webster

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 08:00:22 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Tomas velasco 19128 777kamehouse@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Tomas velasco

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 08:01:42 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ahmed Fayad Brooklyn NY 11228 fayad.ahmed2015@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ahmed Fayad

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 08:04:03 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Franto Chery New York NY 10002 cheryfranto8@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Franto Chery

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 08:07:34 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Madany diallo New York NY 10029 madanyd25@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Madany diallo

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 08:20:06 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection James Monteverde Queens NY 11103 jmontev@aol.com

1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
James Monteverde

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 08:34:52 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Omar Checo New York NY 10033 omisinatra@gmail.com

1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Omar Checo

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 08:47:27 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection John Small New York NY 10010 johnsmall@mac.com

1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
John Small

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 08:50:15 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Alex Ofosu-Mensah The Bronx NY 10457 kwameofosu120@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Alex Ofosu-Mensah

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 08:53:20 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection benito gomez Queens NY 11102 benito1241@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
benito gomez

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 08:57:42 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection evelyn guerrero Valley Stream NY 11580 evelyndeleon1969@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
evelyn guerrero

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 09:18:16 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Armando Castillo Woodhaven NY 11421 acas8c@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Armando Castillo

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 09:25:05 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Anthony sanchez The Bronx NY 10463 anthohouse2320@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Anthony sanchez

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 09:34:08 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Gil Lima Long Branch NJ 07740 gillimajr@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Gil Lima

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 09:34:27 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection John Guadagno Brooklyn NY 11214 johnnyguadagno@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
John Guadagno

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 09:54:02 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Michael koto Queens NY 11379 michaelkoto015@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Michael koto

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 09:59:34 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Roodroth Alexis Queens NY 11429 alexisroodroth@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Roodroth Alexis

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 10:00:58 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Tatyana Karpman Queens NY 11370 tatyanakarpman@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Tatyana Karpman

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 10:02:55 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Victor Gallegos New York NY 10009 victorggos4@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Victor Gallegos

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 10:08:49 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Dasett Cambridge The Bronx NY 10468 dasettmc@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Dasett Cambridge

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 10:22:59 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection John Manzanojr New York NY 10025 supermanjj1964@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
John Manzanojr

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 11:00:17 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ashik Chand Queens NY 11385 nixonashik@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ashik Chand

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 11:40:50 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Habib Nouri Brooklyn NY 11211 habibnouri85@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Habib Nouri

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 11:44:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Chenyse Littles Brooklyn NY 11216 c.littles@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Chenyse Littles

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 11:59:44 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Anthony Balta New York NY 10033 tonystarks0877@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Anthony Balta

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 12:08:01 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Marsha Glenn Far Rockaway NY 11690 m marshathebeautician@yahoo.co 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Marsha Glenn

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 12:18:46 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Alfonso Goddard Brooklyn NY 11216 god.zo31@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Alfonso Goddard

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 12:32:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Oleg Novofastovsky Staten Island NY 10308 omigroupcorp@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Oleg Novofastovsky

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 12:38:16 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kelvin polanco The Bronx NY 10462 ronielpm16@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kelvin polanco

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 12:38:59 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Felipe Navarrete Brooklyn NY 11223 navarrete.bankcard@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Felipe Navarrete

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 12:52:58 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Hector Neri The Bronx NY 10454 hectorj.neri4@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Hector Neri

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 13:09:00 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Abdoul Sow The Bronx NY 10469 abdoulasow01@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Abdoul Sow

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 13:10:23 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Sebastian Gollings New York NY 10027 sebastian.gollings@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Sebastian Gollings

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 13:12:05 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection James Knowles Brooklyn NY 11226 jayknowles306@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
James Knowles

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 13:21:21 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Urgen Lama Queens NY 11373 ghisingurgenlama@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Urgen Lama

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 13:28:15 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection EQ Jones Brooklyn NY 11236 iedeology@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
EQ Jones

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 13:30:38 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kadeem Nicolas New York NY 10033 kadeemnicolas@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kadeem Nicolas

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 14:32:18 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection WENDY JULES The Bronx NY 10457 wendyj917@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
WENDY JULES

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 14:32:57 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection WOODY JULES Brooklyn NY 11239 mxlgod86@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
WOODY JULES

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 14:33:50 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection RICHARD BLACKSTOCK Brooklyn NY 11225 rblackstock1274@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
RICHARD BLACKSTOCK

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 14:34:30 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Stephanie Palache Queens NY 11428 m stephanie.buckham@hotmail.co 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Stephanie Palache

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 14:38:11 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection ROELIS CASTILLO The Bronx NY 10457 roeliscastillo@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
ROELIS CASTILLO

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 14:48:48 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Christopher Streeter Woodmere NY 11598 christmasday866@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Christopher Streeter

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 14:58:29 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Yousuf Islam Queens NY 11423 yousufislam100@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Yousuf Islam

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 15:40:34 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Hannah Chung New York NY 10033 nlnrdrs@gmx.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Hannah Chung

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 16:40:46 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Omar Sanchez The Bronx NY 10472 omi3058@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Omar Sanchez

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 17:26:41 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Andria Rodriguez Brooklyn NY 11208 andriamrodri@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Andria Rodriguez

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 18:36:57 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Tasha Adams Brooklyn NY 11216 tw1mocha114@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Tasha Adams

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 20:19:29 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ibrahim Algabyali New York NY 10128 ibrahaim2014@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ibrahim Algabyali

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 20:20:48 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Sammie Artis Queens NY 11368 sammieartis88@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Sammie Artis

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 21:35:13 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jorge vega Queens NY 11355 jorma_312@hotmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jorge vega

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 22:31:43 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Karrena Ramlochan Queens NY 11367 m karrena.ramlochan216@gmail.co 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Karrena Ramlochan

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 22:45:03 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Serena Rosa Staten Island NY 10305 serenarosa18@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Serena Rosa

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 22:54:33 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection MARYMAR DISLA Brooklyn NY 11208 mapink503@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
MARYMAR DISLA

2023-03-30 1.6E+08 22:56:40 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Assane Ndoye The Bronx NY 10457 andoye@netzero.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Assane Ndoye

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 00:29:30 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection David Serpas Queens NY 11103 dr.serpas182@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
David Serpas

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 01:15:11 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Merazul Islam Queens NY 11432 amimeraz2323@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Merazul Islam

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 01:37:39 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jared Moore Brooklyn NY 11233 jared.moore7@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jared Moore

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 02:21:50 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jackson Bravo New York NY 10032 jacksonbravo11@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jackson Bravo

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 02:42:40 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Atkia Bushra The Bronx NY 10461 atkiabushra3@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Atkia Bushra

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 02:47:53 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Santos diaz The Bronx NY 10458 santos2407d@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Santos diaz

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 04:57:18 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Sajjad Jabed Brooklyn NY 11226 hsakib20202@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Sajjad Jabed

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 05:47:03 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Dwayne Noel The Bronx NY 10456 dwaynenoep@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Dwayne Noel

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 05:47:15 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Roland KOUTON Queens NY 11433 viny16@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Roland KOUTON

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 07:41:54 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Daniel blanding New York NY 10039 danieldejohnblanding@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Daniel blanding

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 09:57:56 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Ruzilya Khusnutdinova Brooklyn NY 11228 businessllc28@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Ruzilya Khusnutdinova

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 10:31:55 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Mark Trembicki New York NY 10034 stocknyc362@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Mark Trembicki

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 10:33:59 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Tania Zuleta Queens NY 11102 happyfeet512@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Tania Zuleta

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 10:58:42 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Tracy Taylor Brooklyn NY 11225 taylortracy1700@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Tracy Taylor

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 16:13:44 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Nelly Cruz Brooklyn NY 11237 nellycruz67@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Nelly Cruz

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 20:43:56 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Anthony caba The Bronx NY 10465 carrok290@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Anthony caba

2023-03-31 1.6E+08 23:37:30 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Tsaddiyq-Nasah Makarios New York NY 10026 t-nm01@outlook.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Tsaddiyq-Nasah Makarios

2023-04-01 1.6E+08 13:53:54 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Rayshawn Bennett New York NY 10027 donaldberns00@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Rayshawn Bennett

2023-04-01 1.6E+08 20:32:02 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Robert Taylor Brooklyn NY 11205 robert94taylor@gmail.com 0 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Robert Taylor

2023-04-01 1.6E+08 22:51:31 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Michael Mohammed Brooklyn NY 11226 michaelmohammed718@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Michael Mohammed

2023-04-02 1.6E+08 14:23:35 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Andrew Tran The Bronx NY 10467 143beau@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Andrew Tran

2023-04-02 1.6E+08 21:07:17 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kevin beckford Brooklyn NY 11226 kdbeckford@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kevin beckford

2023-04-02 1.6E+08 23:11:34 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jeffrey Eason The Bronx NY 10467 jeffreyeason77@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jeffrey Eason

2023-04-03 1.6E+08 13:51:32 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Bryan Garces The Bronx NY 10468 bryan.garces90@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Bryan Garces

2023-04-03 1.6E+08 14:48:02 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Christina Vargas The Bronx NY 10467 c_vargas21@yahoo.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Christina Vargas

2023-04-03 1.6E+08 19:42:01 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Kalil Anderson New York NY 10039 andekali2025@icloud.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Kalil Anderson

2023-04-03 1.6E+08 20:15:32 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Walter Pozo Queens NY 11368 lokito148@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Walter Pozo

2023-04-05 1.6E+08 14:03:42 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Jencie Samora The Bronx NY 10472 youngyasha11@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Jencie Samora

2023-04-05 1.6E+08 15:37:10 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Librado Peralta Brooklyn NY 11207 m peraltarosarioliberaldo@hotmail.co 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Librado Peralta

2023-04-05 1.6E+08 17:52:56 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Will Costa The Bronx NY 10461 wilfredoap@aol.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Will Costa

2023-04-05 1.6E+08 20:30:05 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Karl s Brooklyn NY 11210 kindiama78@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Karl s

2023-04-06 1.6E+08 15:50:28 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Silverio Flores The Bronx NY 10452 silveriof83@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Silverio Flores

2023-04-07 1.6E+08 21:30:03 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection abdullah mamun Brooklyn NY 11208 abdullahalm855@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
abdullah mamun

2023-04-08 1.6E+08 08:57:46 Commissioners from Department of Worker & Consumer Protection Guyolette Jean Baldwin NY 11510 guyolettej@gmail.com 1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Guyolette Jean

2023-04-09 17:52:06 1.6E+08 Commission Department of Worker & Consumer Protection
Anthony Robinson New York NY 10030 stopcryin137st@gmail.com
1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Anthony Robinson

2023-04-11 04:35:49 1.6E+08 Commission Department of Worker & Consumer Protection
Franklyn Lema Staten Island NY 10305 f96lema@gmail.com
1 Please Protect My Flexibility

To The Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Please do not move forward with any new rules that would force apps to limit when and where I work.

The reason why I choose to work via food-delivery apps is because I enjoy the full flexibility to pick which days of the week, hours of the day, and parts of the city I work in. I don't want to compete with workers for the best time slots and I don't want to be locked out of apps.

Please listen to workers - don't force apps to take away my freedom & flexibility.

Regards,
Franklyn Lema

ID	Date	Legislator Title	Legislator First Name	Legislator Last Name	Advocate First Name	Advocate Last Name	Advocate Address 1	Advocate City	Advocate State	Advocate Zip	Advocate Email Address	Advocate Email Subscribed	Message Subject	Message Body
1.57E+08	2023-04-04 16:00:50	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Miguel	Estevez.		Queens	NY	11421	estevezmiguel574@gmail.com		Please Protect My Flexibility	To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection: Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor: Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo. La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps. Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad. Regards, Miguel Estevez.

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04 16:01:28
1.57E+08
Commissioners
Department of Consumer &
Worker
Protection
Claudia
Espinoza

lizz82_07@hotmail.com

Please Protect
1 My Flexibility

Regards,
Claudia Espinoza

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04
1.57E+08 16:01:49 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Christian joelbaez

The Bronx NY

joelbaez1229@10460 gmail.com

Please Protect 1 My Flexibility

Regards,
Christian joelbaez

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	16:03:31	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Johan Gomez	Queens	NY	jmaog911@gmail.com	11368	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Johan Gomez
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-------------	--------	----	--------------------	-------	-------------------------------	-------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	16:04:46	1.57E+08	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Santos	valladares	Smithtown	NY	castilloabraham2015@gmail.co	11787 m	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Santos valladares
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------	------------	-----------	----	------------------------------	---------	-------------------------------	----------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	16:05:50	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Nery	Breganza	Brooklyn	NY	nerybreganza191123389@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Nery Breganza
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	------	----------	----------	----	---------------------------------	-------------------------------	---------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	16:09:02	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	LUIS	GARCIA	Brooklyn	NY	lugadu@hotmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, LUIS GARCIA
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	------	--------	----------	----	--------------------	-------------------------------	-------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	16:09:37	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Francis	Cordero	New York	NY	franciscodero28@gmail.com	10034	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Francis Cordero
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	---------	---------	----------	----	---------------------------	-------	-------------------------------	-----------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	16:11:21	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Juan toribio	The Bronx	NY	juanpolanco03810468	5@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Juan toribio
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------------	-----------	----	---------------------	-------------	-------------------------------	-----------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	16:12:46	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Yahaira	Suriel	Queens	NY	yahairasuriel24@gmail.com	11421	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Yahaira Suriel
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	---------	--------	--------	----	---------------------------	-------	-------------------------------	----------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	16:17:30	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Raysa	Ozuna	The Bronx	NY	raysaozuna02@10458 gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Raysa Ozuna
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-------	-------	-----------	----	------------------------------	-------------------------------	----------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	16:18:16	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Celerino	Alberto	New York	NY	celerinoa31@gmail.com	10029	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Celerino Alberto
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	----------	---------	----------	----	-----------------------	-------	-------------------------------	---------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	16:19:20	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	William Contreras	Queens	NY	willcont210@gmail.com	11372	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, William Contreras
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-------------------	--------	----	-----------------------	-------	-------------------------------	-------------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	16:20:47	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Flavio	Mateo	The Bronx	NY	flavioernesto201046804@yahoo.es	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Flavio Mateo
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------	-------	-----------	----	---------------------------------	-------------------------------	-----------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04
1.57E+08 16:23:00 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Yanery Burgos

yanerygenao1990@icloud.com

Please Protect My Flexibility

Regards,
Yanery Burgos

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04 16:24:11
1.57E+08
Commissioners Department of Protection
Consumer & Worker
Angel toxqui

migelangel874@hotmail.com

Please Protect
1 My Flexibility

Regards,
Angel toxqui

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04
1.57E+08 16:44:26 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Angel toxqui

migelangel874@hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility

Regards,
Angel toxqui

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	16:26:06	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Luis ureña	The Bronx	NY	jesusalba838@10472 gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Luis ureña
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	------------	-----------	----	------------------------------	-------------------------------	---------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04 16:26:53 1.57E+08 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Luis ureña The Bronx NY jesusalba838@gmail.com Please Protect My Flexibility 1 Regards, Luis ureña

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	16:26:23	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Jhony gutierrez	New York	NY	sanchejhony59 11233 5@gmail.com	Please Protect 1 My Flexibility	Regards, Jhony gutierrez
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-----------------	----------	----	------------------------------------	------------------------------------	-----------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	16:26:51	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Inocencia Ramos	The Bronx	NY	inocencia16rs@10457 gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Inocencia Ramos
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-----------------	-----------	----	-------------------------------	-------------------------------	-----------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	16:30:45	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Ransuel	Fernández	The Bronx	NY	fernandezransu10467	el@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Ransuel Fernández
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	---------	-----------	-----------	----	---------------------	--------------	-------------------------------	----------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04
1.57E+08 16:33:04 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Leonardo Cabrera

The Bronx NY

cuentadejemp
10453 @icloud.com

Please Protect
1 My Flexibility

Regards,
Leonardo Cabrera

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	16:33:40	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Carlos Sanchez	Queens	NY	drcarlossanchez11692 7@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Carlos Sanchez
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	----------------	--------	----	----------------------------------	-------------------------------	-------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	16:34:38	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Hanser	duval	Brooklyn	NY	elranqueao20111226	6@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	1	Regards, Hanser duval
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------	-------	----------	----	--------------------	-------------	-------------------------------	---	--------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	16:35:23	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Jeffry Arcangel	The Bronx	NY	jeffryarc@hotmail.com	10466	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Jeffry Arcangel
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-----------------	-----------	----	-----------------------	-------	-------------------------------	--------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04 16:39:31 1.57E+08 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Juan martinez Brooklyn NY mite829@gmail.com 11207 .com Please Protect My Flexibility 1 Regards, Juan martinez

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	16:42:36	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Hector Gomez	Brooklyn	NY	hdiazjr34@gmail.com	11214	il.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	1	Regards, Hector Gomez
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------------	----------	----	---------------------	-------	--------	-------------------------------	---	-----------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04 16:46:28 1.57E+08 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Arianna salcedo The Bronx NY ariannag1140@gmail.com Please Protect My Flexibility 1 Regards, Arianna salcedo

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	16:47:02	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Miguel	Avila	New York	NY	boattours2018 10031@gmail.com	Please Protect 1 My Flexibility	Regards, Miguel Avila
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------	-------	----------	----	----------------------------------	------------------------------------	--------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	16:48:38	1.57E+08	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Rafael matias	The Bronx	NY	jeffreymatias6510468@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Rafael matias
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	---------------	-----------	----	--------------------------------	-------------------------------	------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	16:50:04	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Daniela palacio	Queens	NY	danipalacio_9508@hotmail.co	11356 m	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Daniela palacio
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-----------------	--------	----	-----------------------------	---------	-------------------------------	--------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	17:00:42	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Jackson	Mezones	Queens	NY	jackmezones@gmail.com	11417	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Jackson Mezones
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	---------	---------	--------	----	-----------------------	-------	-------------------------------	-----------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	17:02:11	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Marcos Parra	Brooklyn	NY	marcos_parradi az@hotmail.co	11208 m	Please Protect 1 My Flexibility	Regards, Marcos Parra
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------------	----------	----	---------------------------------	---------	------------------------------------	--------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-05	1.57E+08	05:47:21	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Marcos Parra	Brooklyn	NY	marcos_parradi az@hotmail.co	11208 m	Please Protect 1 My Flexibility	Regards, Marcos Parra
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------------	----------	----	---------------------------------	---------	------------------------------------	--------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	17:04:32	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	marlon collado	The Bronx	NY	marloncollado210452@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, marlon collado
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	----------------	-----------	----	-------------------------------	-------------------------------	-------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	17:06:27	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	santo valenzuela	Queens	NY	thejigo1538@gmail.com	11421	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, santo valenzuela
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	------------------	--------	----	-----------------------	-------	-------------------------------	---------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	17:08:04	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Alejandra saavedra	Brooklyn	NY	alejandrasn24@hotmail.com	11219	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Alejandra saavedra
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------------------	----------	----	---------------------------	-------	-------------------------------	-----------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	17:09:16	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Roberto	peña	Brooklyn	NY	11232	m	restituyoroberto50@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	1	Regards, Roberto Peña
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	---------	------	----------	----	-------	---	------------------------------	-------------------------------	---	--------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	17:09:58	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Jose Castillo	New York	NY	josealejandrof210032 08@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Jose Castillo
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	---------------	----------	----	-----------------------------------	-------------------------------	---------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	17:10:38	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Frankely	Colon	Queens	NY	frankelycolon@11369 hotmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Frankely Colon
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	----------	-------	--------	----	---------------------------------	-------------------------------	-------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	17:15:24	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Jazmin	Advincola	The Bronx	NY	advinconcola31 1709@gmail.co	10468 m	Please Protect 1 My Flexibility	Regards, Jazmin Advincola
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------	-----------	-----------	----	---------------------------------	---------	------------------------------------	------------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04
1.57E+08 17:23:57
Commissioners
Department of Consumer &
Worker
Protection
José
Batista

Batista

Brooklyn

NY

jbatistab70@icl
11208 oud.com

Please Protect
1 My Flexibility

Regards,
José Batista

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	17:25:09	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Benny Rodriguez	The Bronx	NY	benny373@gmail.com	10453	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Benny Rodriguez
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-----------------	-----------	----	--------------------	-------	-------------------------------	-----------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	17:39:26	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Jose abreu	New York	NY	josedolores21010033@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Jose abreu
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	------------	----------	----	-------------------------------	-------------------------------	---------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04
1.57E+08 17:44:31 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection estiven soto

The Bronx NY sotoestiven35@10468 gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility 1
Regards, estiven soto

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	17:44:36	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Iván	Altamirano	Queens	NY	ialtamirano50911419@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Iván Altamirano
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	------	------------	--------	----	-------------------------------	-------------------------------	--------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	17:50:15	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Juan barrera	The Bronx	NY	bjuan7115@gmail.com	10453	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Juan barrera
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------------	-----------	----	---------------------	-------	-------------------------------	-----------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	17:51:10	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Juan barrera	The Bronx	NY	bjuan7115@gmail.com	10453	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Juan barrera
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------------	-----------	----	---------------------	-------	-------------------------------	-----------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	17:58:33	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Juan	guerrero	The Bronx	NY	jcwd4447@gmail.com	10461	il.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	1	Regards, Juan guerrero
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	------	----------	-----------	----	--------------------	-------	--------	-------------------------------	---	---------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	18:01:06	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Edgar	sanchez	The Bronx	NY	sandysanchez010475	229@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	1	Regards, Edgar sanchez
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-------	---------	-----------	----	--------------------	---------------	-------------------------------	---	---------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04
1.57E+08 18:01:49 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Katheryne Garcia

Queens NY

kazuag_216@h
11692 otmail.es

Please Protect
1 My Flexibility

Regards,
Katheryne Garcia

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	18:05:35	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Jose	taveras	Brooklyn	NY	thentaveras195 11219 8@gmail.com	Please Protect 1 My Flexibility	Regards, Jose taveras
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	------	---------	----------	----	-------------------------------------	------------------------------------	--------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	18:09:51	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Javier Jimenez	The Bronx	NY	jjimenez12108010472@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Javier Jimenez
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	----------------	-----------	----	-------------------------------	-------------------------------	-------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	18:30:06	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Juan	Adames	The Bronx	NY	adamesj152@gmail.com	10456	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Juan Adames
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	------	--------	-----------	----	----------------------	-------	-------------------------------	-------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	18:39:22	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Luis Montiel	Queens	NY	lamowich99@icloud.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Luis Montiel
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------------	--------	----	-----------------------	-------------------------------	--------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	18:59:15	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Dargenis	Betances	Queens	NY	betancesdargenis024@gmail.com	11369 m	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Dargenis Betances
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	----------	----------	--------	----	-------------------------------	---------	-------------------------------	-------------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	19:26:14	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Ulises Larez	The Bronx	NY	10472	om	uliscarloslarezmarval@gmail.c	Please Protect My Flexibility	1	Regards, Ulises Larez
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------------	-----------	----	-------	----	-------------------------------	-------------------------------	---	-----------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	19:33:31	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Denis torres	Queens	NY	leon94566@gmail.com	11418	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Denis torres
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------------	--------	----	---------------------	-------	-------------------------------	-----------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	19:35:31	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Fran	arellano	Queens	NY	carrerofrannoe 11370 14@gmail.com	Please Protect 1 My Flexibility	Regards, Fran arellano
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	------	----------	--------	----	--------------------------------------	------------------------------------	---------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04 1.57E+08 21:14:21 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Flavio Ramos Brooklyn NY ramosfelipe@live.com 11206 Please Protect My Flexibility 1 Regards, Flavio Ramos

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04
1.57E+08 21:15:23 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Elvin gaton

The Bronx NY

elvingaton75@10457 gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility

Regards,
Elvin gaton

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	21:16:53	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Kiss	Matienzo	Brooklyn	NY	diannehernaiz211206@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Kiss Matienzo
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	------	----------	----------	----	-------------------------------	-------------------------------	------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04 1.57E+08 21:30:24 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Reginaldo terrero

The Bronx NY

regilperez66@10467 gmail.com

Please Protect 1 My Flexibility

Regards, Reginaldo terrero

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	22:05:16	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Jose Cruz	The Bronx	NY	josedly@outlook.com	10460	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Jose Cruz
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-----------	-----------	----	---------------------	-------	-------------------------------	-----------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	22:12:23	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Rafael	Leonardo	The Bronx	NY	rafaelf11@gmail.com	10466	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Rafael Leonardo
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------	----------	-----------	----	---------------------	-------	-------------------------------	--------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	22:15:31	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Jahaira	Guzman	Queens	NY	jahairaguzman111419	130@gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Jahaira Guzman
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	---------	--------	--------	----	---------------------	---------------	-------------------------------	-------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	22:20:32	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Gloria Banegas	The Bronx	NY	alexagigi1803@10456 gmail.com	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Gloria Banegas
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	----------------	-----------	----	-------------------------------	-------------------------------	-------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	22:42:58	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Jose conception	The Bronx	NY	starlinconcepcion056@icloud.com	10453 om	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Jose conception
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-----------------	-----------	----	---------------------------------	----------	-------------------------------	--------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	22:45:27	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Yudelka	Almonte	New York	NY	yudelkaalmonte 10035 @outlook.com	Please Protect 1 My Flexibility	Regards, Yudelka Almonte
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	---------	---------	----------	----	--------------------------------------	------------------------------------	-----------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04 1.57E+08 23:17:36 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Alfonso cariño Brooklyn NY carino_39@hotmail.com 11218 mail.com Please Protect My Flexibility 1 Regards, Alfonso cariño

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	23:31:26	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Delwin	garcia	The Bronx	NY	elpery25@gmail.com	10456	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Delwin garcia
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	--------	--------	-----------	----	--------------------	-------	-------------------------------	------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-04	1.57E+08	23:49:27	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Alan villalpando	Queens	NY	avillalpandomiranda@gmail.co	11368 m	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Alan villalpando
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	------------------	--------	----	------------------------------	---------	-------------------------------	---------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-05 1.57E+08 00:35:51 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Jorge de Jesus jorgelopez0491@gmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility

Regards,
Jorge de Jesus

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-05 1.57E+08 03:44:08 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Carlos rodriguez The Bronx NY carloshrv16@gmail.com 10468 Please Protect My Flexibility 1 Regards, Carlos rodriguez

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-05	1.57E+08	06:20:20	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Rubi Hernandez	Brooklyn	NY	elbubi1978@icloud.com	11208	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Rubi Hernandez
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	----------------	----------	----	-----------------------	-------	-------------------------------	----------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-05 07:40:24 1.57E+08 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Ynolkis santos Mount Vernon NY ynolkis@icloud.com 10550 com Please Protect My Flexibility 1 Regards, Ynolkis santos

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-05
1.57E+08 08:39:50 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Pascualina Peralta

The Bronx NY

pascualina79@10452 hotmail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility

Regards,
Pascualina Peralta

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-05	1.57E+08	10:25:09	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Camilo cubides	Queens	NY	camilony1983@11369 gmail.com	Please Protect 1 My Flexibility	Regards, Camilo cubides
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	----------------	--------	----	------------------------------	---------------------------------	-------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-05 10:39:45
1.57E+08
Commissioners
Department of Consumer &
Worker
Protection
Edwin patino

New York NY

edwin.7gmv@h
10033 otmail.com

Please Protect
1 My Flexibility

Regards,
Edwin patino

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-05
1.57E+08 11:13:06 Commissioners Department of Protection Julio

Consumer & Worker

Payano

Rockville Centre NY

jsolanoarte@g
11570 mail.com

Please Protect
1 My Flexibility

Regards,
Julio Payano

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-05	1.57E+08	12:02:08	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	JORGE	AGUILAR	Queens	NY	jorge_eduaguila 11374 r@hotmail.com	Please Protect 1 My Flexibility	Regards, JORGE AGUILAR
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-------	---------	--------	----	--	------------------------------------	---------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-05 16:47:36 1.57E+08 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Yaniris vasquez The Bronx NY yanirisvsqz28@10460 gmail.com Please Protect My Flexibility 1 Regards, Yaniris vasquez

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-05 18:51:37
1.57E+08
Commissioners
Department of Consumer &
Worker
Protection
Jonathan
Viejó

Queens NY

jonita.mera@g
11368 mail.com

Please Protect
1 My Flexibility

Regards,
Jonathan Viejó

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-06 1.57E+08 00:44:53 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Luis Rondon Queens NY luis81pilling@gmail.com Please Protect My Flexibility 1 Regards, Luis Rondon

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-06
1.57E+08 12:07:14 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Juan Lopez

The Bronx NY

pez_xander69
10468 @hotmail.com

Please Protect
1 My Flexibility

Regards,
Juan Lopez

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-06	1.57E+08	12:51:42	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Miguel tepizila	The Bronx	NY	atemiguel@gmail.com	10451	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Miguel tepizila
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-----------------	-----------	----	---------------------	-------	-------------------------------	--------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-06	1.57E+08	17:13:38	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Mauricio Ocegueda	Queens	NY	maurioramirez600@gmail.com	11369 m	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Mauricio Ocegueda
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-------------------	--------	----	----------------------------	---------	-------------------------------	-------------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-06	1.57E+08	17:14:12	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Mauricio Ocegueda	Queens	NY	maurioramirez600@gmail.com	11369 m	Please Protect My Flexibility	Regards, Mauricio Ocegueda
------------	----------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-------------------	--------	----	----------------------------	---------	-------------------------------	----------------------------

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-06
1.57E+08 17:29:45 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Kennides Ramirez

The Bronx NY

kennides21271
10462 3@icloud.com

Please Protect
1 My Flexibility

Regards,
Kennides Ramirez

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-06
1.57E+08 17:35:15 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Pablo xilotl

Queens NY

tepozpablo83@11368 gmail.com

Please Protect 1 My Flexibility

Regards, Pablo xilotl

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-07
1.57E+08 12:37:08 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Lionel rojas

Brooklyn NY

rojaxela50@g
10301 mail.com

Please Protect
1 My Flexibility

Regards,
Lionel rojas

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-07
1.57E+08 16:39:53 Commissioners Department of Consumer & Worker Protection Ricardo farias

New York NY

rifalo1961@gmail.com
10027 ail.com

Please Protect My Flexibility

Regards,
Ricardo farias

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-08 14:05:43
1.58E+08
Commissioners
Department of Consumer &
Worker
Protection
Miguel
Rodriguez
Brooklyn
NY

miguel.ro29199
11208 7@gmail.com

Please Protect
1 My Flexibility

Regards,
Miguel Rodriguez

To Department of Worker & Consumer Protection:

Al Departamento de Protección al trabajador y al consumidor:

Me dirijo a usted para instarle a que no promueva nuevas reglas que obliguen a las apps a limitar cuándo y dónde trabajo.

La razón por la que decido hacer entregas con la app de Uber es porque tengo toda la flexibilidad para elegir en qué días de la semana, a qué horas del día y en qué partes de la ciudad puedo hacerlo. No quiero competir con los demás repartidores por las mejores horas para hacer entregas y no quiero que se me excluya de las apps.

Le insto a que no fuerce a las apps a quitarme mi libertad y flexibilidad.

2023-04-09	15:52:33	Commissioners	Department of	Consumer & Worker Protection	Edith	Rodriguez	Queens	NY	edithjrodriguez 11106@gmail.com	Please Protect 1 My Flexibility	Regards, Edith Rodriguez
------------	----------	---------------	---------------	------------------------------	-------	-----------	--------	----	------------------------------------	------------------------------------	-----------------------------

ID	Date	Legislator Title	Legislator First Name	Legislator Last Name	Advocate First Name	Advocate Last Name	Advocate Address 1	Advocate City	Advocate State	Advocate Zip	Advocate Email Address	Advocate Email Subscribed	Message Subject	Message Body
1.57E+08	2023-03-29 12:16:21	Commissioners from	Department of	Consumer and Worker Protection	Marco	Del Peschio		Queens	NY	11375	tuscanhillsnyc@gmail.com		Please do not limit delivery service to my 1 restaurant	To the Department of Consumer & Worker Protection, I am asking you to unequivocally reject any proposed rules that would lead food delivery apps to “restrict delivery distances or limit service to the times and places where delivery can be provided affordably.” App-based food delivery services have been a lifeline for restaurants attempting to build back following the COVID-19 shutdown. Companies like Uber Eats, DoorDash, Grubhub and Relay give us an opportunity to expand our reach and gain customers we would not be able to serve on our own. Please do not limit our reach just as we’re getting back on our feet. There must be a way to pay delivery workers fairly without hurting our bottom line. Please take our concerns into consideration and do the right thing. Thank you, Marco Del Peschio

2023-03-29
1.57E+08 12:59:00

Commissioners
from

Department of

Consumer
and Worker
Protection

onur

safak

New York NY

10001 m

info@green blendnyc.co

Please do not limit delivery
service to my
1 restaurant

To the Department of Consumer & Worker Protection,

I am asking you to unequivocally reject any proposed rules that would lead food delivery apps to “restrict delivery distances or limit service to the times and places where delivery can be provided affordably.”

App-based food delivery services have been a lifeline for restaurants attempting to build back following the COVID-19 shutdown. Companies like Uber Eats, DoorDash, Grubhub and Relay give us an opportunity to expand our reach and gain customers we would not be able to serve on our own.

Please do not limit our reach just as we’re getting back on our feet. There must be a way to pay delivery workers fairly without hurting our bottom line.

Please take our concerns into consideration and do the right thing.

Thank you,
onur safak

2023-03-29
1.57E+08 13:23:41

Commissioners
from

Department of

Consumer
and Worker
Protection

ye

kenny

New York NY

10011 m

baodegany
@gmail.co

Please do not limit delivery
service to my
1 restaurant

To the Department of Consumer & Worker Protection,

I am asking you to unequivocally reject any proposed rules that would lead food delivery apps to “restrict delivery distances or limit service to the times and places where delivery can be provided affordably.”

App-based food delivery services have been a lifeline for restaurants attempting to build back following the COVID-19 shutdown. Companies like Uber Eats, DoorDash, Grubhub and Relay give us an opportunity to expand our reach and gain customers we would not be able to serve on our own.

Please do not limit our reach just as we’re getting back on our feet. There must be a way to pay delivery workers fairly without hurting our bottom line.

Please take our concerns into consideration and do the right thing.

Thank you,
ye kenny

2023-03-29
1.57E+08 13:42:04

Commissioners
from

Department of

Consumer
and Worker
Protection

daniel castro

Queens NY

danielcastro
1194@gmai
11427 l.com

Please do not limit delivery
service to my
1 restaurant

To the Department of Consumer & Worker Protection,

I am asking you to unequivocally reject any proposed rules that would lead food delivery apps to “restrict delivery distances or limit service to the times and places where delivery can be provided affordably.”

App-based food delivery services have been a lifeline for restaurants attempting to build back following the COVID-19 shutdown. Companies like Uber Eats, DoorDash, Grubhub and Relay give us an opportunity to expand our reach and gain customers we would not be able to serve on our own.

Please do not limit our reach just as we’re getting back on our feet. There must be a way to pay delivery workers fairly without hurting our bottom line.

Please take our concerns into consideration and do the right thing.

Thank you,
daniel castro

2023-03-29
1.57E+08 13:54:51

Commissioners
from

Department of

Consumer
and Worker
Protection

Tasty

Picks

The Bronx NY

10467 m

slahyehya@ hotmail.co

Please do not limit delivery
service to my
1 restaurant

To the Department of Consumer & Worker Protection,

I am asking you to unequivocally reject any proposed rules that would lead food delivery apps to “restrict delivery distances or limit service to the times and places where delivery can be provided affordably.”

App-based food delivery services have been a lifeline for restaurants attempting to build back following the COVID-19 shutdown. Companies like Uber Eats, DoorDash, Grubhub and Relay give us an opportunity to expand our reach and gain customers we would not be able to serve on our own.

Please do not limit our reach just as we’re getting back on our feet. There must be a way to pay delivery workers fairly without hurting our bottom line.

Please take our concerns into consideration and do the right thing.

Thank you,
Tasty Picks

2023-03-29
1.57E+08 14:45:12

Commissioners
from

Department of

Consumer
and Worker
Protection

Young

chang

Queens NY

jungledelu
@gmail.co
11356 m

Please do not limit delivery
service to my
1 restaurant

To the Department of Consumer & Worker Protection,

I am asking you to unequivocally reject any proposed rules that would lead food delivery apps to “restrict delivery distances or limit service to the times and places where delivery can be provided affordably.”

App-based food delivery services have been a lifeline for restaurants attempting to build back following the COVID-19 shutdown. Companies like Uber Eats, DoorDash, Grubhub and Relay give us an opportunity to expand our reach and gain customers we would not be able to serve on our own.

Please do not limit our reach just as we’re getting back on our feet. There must be a way to pay delivery workers fairly without hurting our bottom line.

Please take our concerns into consideration and do the right thing.

Thank you,
Young chang

2023-03-29
1.57E+08 16:10:28

Commissioners
from

Department of

Consumer
and Worker
Protection

alice lin

New York NY

10028 om

pingmeilin7
9@yahoo.c

Please do not limit delivery
service to my
1 restaurant

To the Department of Consumer & Worker Protection,

I am asking you to unequivocally reject any proposed rules that would lead food delivery apps to “restrict delivery distances or limit service to the times and places where delivery can be provided affordably.”

App-based food delivery services have been a lifeline for restaurants attempting to build back following the COVID-19 shutdown. Companies like Uber Eats, DoorDash, Grubhub and Relay give us an opportunity to expand our reach and gain customers we would not be able to serve on our own.

Please do not limit our reach just as we’re getting back on our feet. There must be a way to pay delivery workers fairly without hurting our bottom line.

Please take our concerns into consideration and do the right thing.

Thank you,
alice lin

2023-03-29 16:11:42
1.57E+08

Commissioners
from

Department of

Consumer
and Worker
Protection

alice lin

New York NY

pingmeilin7
8@yahoo.c
10028 om

Please do not limit delivery
service to my
1 restaurant

To the Department of Consumer & Worker Protection,

I am asking you to unequivocally reject any proposed rules that would lead food delivery apps to “restrict delivery distances or limit service to the times and places where delivery can be provided affordably.”

App-based food delivery services have been a lifeline for restaurants attempting to build back following the COVID-19 shutdown. Companies like Uber Eats, DoorDash, Grubhub and Relay give us an opportunity to expand our reach and gain customers we would not be able to serve on our own.

Please do not limit our reach just as we’re getting back on our feet. There must be a way to pay delivery workers fairly without hurting our bottom line.

Please take our concerns into consideration and do the right thing.

Thank you,
alice lin

2023-03-29
1.57E+08 16:51:05

Commissioners
from

Department of

Consumer
and Worker
Protection

Alicia

Wilkie

Brooklyn NY

11203 m

wilkiealicia
@gmail.co

Please do not limit delivery
service to my
1 restaurant

To the Department of Consumer & Worker Protection,

I am asking you to unequivocally reject any proposed rules that would lead food delivery apps to “restrict delivery distances or limit service to the times and places where delivery can be provided affordably.”

App-based food delivery services have been a lifeline for restaurants attempting to build back following the COVID-19 shutdown. Companies like Uber Eats, DoorDash, Grubhub and Relay give us an opportunity to expand our reach and gain customers we would not be able to serve on our own.

Please do not limit our reach just as we’re getting back on our feet. There must be a way to pay delivery workers fairly without hurting our bottom line.

Please take our concerns into consideration and do the right thing.

Thank you,
Alicia Wilkie

2023-03-29
1.57E+08 19:29:01

Commissioners
from

Department of

Consumer
and Worker
Protection

Eun

kim

Queens NY

j2global@n
11354 aver.com

Please do not limit delivery
service to my
1 restaurant

To the Department of Consumer & Worker Protection,

I am asking you to unequivocally reject any proposed rules that would lead food delivery apps to “restrict delivery distances or limit service to the times and places where delivery can be provided affordably.”

App-based food delivery services have been a lifeline for restaurants attempting to build back following the COVID-19 shutdown. Companies like Uber Eats, DoorDash, Grubhub and Relay give us an opportunity to expand our reach and gain customers we would not be able to serve on our own.

Please do not limit our reach just as we’re getting back on our feet. There must be a way to pay delivery workers fairly without hurting our bottom line.

Please take our concerns into consideration and do the right thing.

Thank you,
Eun kim

Time	Campaign ID	Campaign Name	Customer ID	Delivery Type	Customer Name	Status	Recipient ID	Recipient Type	Failure Reason	Recipient Full Name	Advocate ID	Recipient Email
2023-03-29T20:47:26	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers		980 email	Uber	success	665235	legislator		Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765267	Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:47:37	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers		980 email	Uber	success	665235	legislator		Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	60296707	Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:47:39	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers		980 email	Uber	success	665235	legislator		Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765269	Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:48:00	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers		980 email	Uber	success	665235	legislator		Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396498	Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:48:09	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers		980 email	Uber	success	665235	legislator		Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	60298935	Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:47:59	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers		980 email	Uber	success	665235	legislator		Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396500	Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:48:05	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers		980 email	Uber	success	665235	legislator		Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765867	Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:48:02	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers		980 email	Uber	success	665235	legislator		Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396502	Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:48:06	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers		980 email	Uber	success	665235	legislator		Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396504	Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:48:14	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers		980 email	Uber	success	665235	legislator		Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396506	Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T20:48:19	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396509 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:48:53	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396514 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:48:52	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396515 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:48:43	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396516 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:48:39	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764922 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:48:51	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764879 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:48:46	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396520 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:49:04	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396523 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:49:08	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396526 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:49:13	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	60380650 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T20:49:17	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396528 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:49:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58813945 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:49:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61389513 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:49:21	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396533 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:49:27	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396534 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:49:30	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396535 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:49:30	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396536 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:49:32	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396538 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:49:43	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396540 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:49:47	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396543 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T20:50:17	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396544 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:50:13	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765806 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:50:12	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396545 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:50:14	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396546 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:50:17	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396547 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:50:14	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396548 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:50:16	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765264 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:50:20	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396549 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:50:31	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396552 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:50:41	131924	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396555 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T20:50:41	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	59813614 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:51:36	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396559 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:51:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396563 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:51:26	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396570 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:51:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396572 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:51:56	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396574 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:52:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	60300644 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:52:25	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396581 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:53:29	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396591 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:53:21	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58774567 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T20:53:18	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764830 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:53:26	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396597 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:53:36	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766610 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:53:47	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396605 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:53:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396606 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:53:55	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396608 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:53:59	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396609 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:54:05	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396613 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:54:15	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396614 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:54:21	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396619 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T20:54:25	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396623 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:54:27	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764906 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:54:41	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396627 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:55:13	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396634 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:55:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396644 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:55:16	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764884 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:55:34	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396651 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:55:37	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396652 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:56:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396657 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:56:02	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396659 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T20:56:31	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396660 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:56:54	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396665 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:57:01	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764933 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:57:39	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396672 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:57:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765192 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:58:05	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396688 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:58:02	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396691 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:58:32	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765011 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:58:39	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396696 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:58:40	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396699 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T20:59:18	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396706 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:58:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396708 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:58:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765443 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:59:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765202 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:59:08	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396716 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:59:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396719 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:59:47	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396725 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:59:44	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396726 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T20:59:45	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764790 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:00:10	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396734 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T21:01:30	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396747 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:01:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396749 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:01:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396750 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:01:28	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765499 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:01:28	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58769008 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:02:53	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58792635 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:03:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396782 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:03:40	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396787 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:03:54	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58767072 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:04:54	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396801 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T21:05:02	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396807 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:05:28	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396809 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:05:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396812 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:05:47	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396816 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:05:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396819 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:06:29	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396823 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:07:26	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396826 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:06:51	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396827 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:07:05	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396829 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:07:23	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396835 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T21:07:31	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396838 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:07:37	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396840 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:08:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396844 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:08:17	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396846 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:08:15	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396848 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:08:37	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396856 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:08:35	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396857 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:09:07	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396861 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:09:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765520 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:10:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396879 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T21:10:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396880 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:10:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396881 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:10:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396882 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:10:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396883 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:10:33	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396886 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:11:59	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396903 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:12:37	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396904 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:13:29	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396920 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:13:53	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396924 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:14:25	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764873 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T21:14:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765386 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:14:41	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396936 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:14:44	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765441 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:15:02	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396943 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:15:22	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396944 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:15:37	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396946 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:15:33	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396947 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:15:41	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396954 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:15:35	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396955 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:16:06	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396958 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T21:16:49	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396970 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:17:59	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61396987 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:18:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397002 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:19:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397005 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:20:00	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765206 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:19:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397014 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:19:58	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764869 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:20:06	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397015 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:21:34	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764777 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:22:46	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766047 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T21:23:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766723 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:23:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397052 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:23:53	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397060 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:24:21	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58768953 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:24:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397064 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:24:47	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397068 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:24:59	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397072 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:25:12	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397073 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:25:43	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397078 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:26:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397085 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T21:27:54	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765044 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:27:45	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397101 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:29:01	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397115 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:29:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397120 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:30:03	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397127 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:30:06	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397128 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:30:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397139 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:31:49	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397150 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:31:52	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397154 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:33:12	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58774317 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T21:33:46	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764990 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:34:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397194 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:34:19	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397195 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:35:02	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397204 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:36:18	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397216 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:36:53	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397226 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:38:47	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765827 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:39:02	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397254 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:39:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397256 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:40:13	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397266 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T21:41:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397280 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:42:31	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	59643086 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:42:46	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397297 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:43:06	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397305 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:44:15	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397320 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:45:01	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58769101 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:45:28	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58794722 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:45:44	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765395 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:47:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766065 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:47:38	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397354 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T21:47:50	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765737 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:48:52	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397369 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:49:10	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397376 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:50:25	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764857 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:50:45	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397388 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:51:58	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397395 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:55:10	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397438 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:55:40	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58769002 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:56:05	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397451 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:56:56	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397458 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T21:57:28	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397463 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T21:59:07	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397480 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:01:37	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397512 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:01:34	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397516 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:03:38	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765200 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:04:36	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397558 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:04:58	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397563 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:05:51	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397571 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:06:23	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397582 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:07:40	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58767838 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T22:09:17	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	60389319 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:09:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397614 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:11:46	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397627 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:12:40	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397647 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:13:15	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	46348471 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:13:58	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397656 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:13:56	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397658 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:14:35	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397667 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:14:48	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397673 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:15:45	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397679 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T22:15:56	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397682 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:16:49	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764800 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:17:56	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58767039 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:18:16	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397704 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:20:47	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397725 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:23:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397761 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:25:34	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397786 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:26:39	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397796 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:27:31	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397800 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:28:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397809 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T22:28:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397812 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:29:43	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397824 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:30:04	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58771960 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:30:25	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397840 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:31:27	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397850 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:31:59	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397853 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:33:44	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397875 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:40:03	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397926 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:40:08	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397929 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:40:13	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397931 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T22:40:34	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61397933 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:42:58	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58774221 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:45:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765171 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:46:35	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398001 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:47:03	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398007 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:47:02	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398008 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:50:25	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398038 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:52:08	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398057 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:52:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398058 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:52:23	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398060 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T22:54:46	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	56855592 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:54:49	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398090 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T22:56:21	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398105 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:00:02	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398138 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:03:25	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398175 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:05:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766905 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:10:15	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398229 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:11:04	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765967 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:11:07	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766525 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:12:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398282 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T23:13:29	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398293 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:18:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398331 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:23:16	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398369 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:25:29	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	60390759 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:27:37	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398402 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:34:23	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398471 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:34:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398476 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:35:17	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398481 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:39:47	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398522 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:40:32	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398525 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-29T23:42:56	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398543 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:43:54	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766025 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:46:59	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398583 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:48:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765101 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-29T23:49:40	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58771278 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:00:47	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398737 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:04:45	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58769023 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:09:16	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398831 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:10:23	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398839 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:13:30	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61398877 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T00:26:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399002 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:26:15	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764875 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:32:49	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399068 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:33:45	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58815763 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:34:07	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399081 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:36:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399100 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:40:00	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399142 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:44:56	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399191 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:46:35	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399207 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:50:45	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399269 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T00:50:59	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399273 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:52:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765473 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:54:01	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399299 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:58:06	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399342 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T00:59:32	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399354 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T01:04:28	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399411 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T01:08:37	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399465 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T01:11:50	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764809 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T01:13:41	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399515 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T01:27:30	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399655 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T01:30:28	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399676 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T01:30:31	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765890 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T01:33:50	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399708 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T01:44:33	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61399810 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T01:52:02	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58772048 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T02:08:30	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400036 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T02:19:10	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765524 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T02:30:21	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400214 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T02:37:27	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766633 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T02:39:39	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400283 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T02:40:13	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764954 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T02:41:23	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400291 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T02:41:42	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400297 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T02:49:08	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765514 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T02:53:05	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400395 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T02:55:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400411 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T02:58:53	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765685 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T03:00:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58771282 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T03:07:43	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400501 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T03:09:05	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58793283 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T03:11:00	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58773089 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T03:14:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400547 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T03:22:41	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400599 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T03:22:55	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765564 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T03:39:00	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400699 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T03:39:16	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400701 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T03:44:18	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400730 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T03:49:36	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400758 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T04:01:17	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400818 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T04:07:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400853 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T04:16:36	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400897 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T04:22:34	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61400926 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T04:41:03	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401051 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T04:43:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766122 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T04:57:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58772035 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T04:58:55	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401127 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T05:05:34	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765586 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T05:07:47	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401162 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T05:22:16	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401238 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T05:22:34	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401240 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T05:32:08	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401272 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T05:39:54	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401299 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T06:07:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58773194 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T06:10:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401403 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T06:11:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401409 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T06:11:36	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401410 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T06:16:19	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401426 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T06:24:28	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	56628586 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T06:32:27	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401474 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T06:34:26	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401486 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T06:39:53	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401503 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T06:41:06	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401507 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T07:30:40	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401622 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T07:41:19	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	56703355 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T07:48:53	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766671 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T07:56:49	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401670 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T08:24:18	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61401720 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T08:46:59	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61402382 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T08:48:43	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61402410 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T09:08:22	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61403732 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T09:18:25	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61403806 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T09:19:01	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61403811 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T09:52:16	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61403902 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T09:55:08	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764797 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T10:02:39	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61403931 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T10:13:04	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61403961 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T10:25:46	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61404014 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T11:43:19	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61404082 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T10:50:54	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61404124 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T10:57:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58768977 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T11:06:56	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	60154846 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T11:08:26	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764818 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T11:18:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61404272 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T11:19:44	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58768709 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T11:20:54	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58792788 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T11:54:51	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61404446 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T12:01:11	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61404489 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T12:02:19	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61404493 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T12:04:50	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61404508 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T12:08:10	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61404529 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T12:20:21	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766255 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T12:35:06	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766841 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T12:47:42	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764855 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T12:52:05	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765538 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T12:53:43	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58768415 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T13:01:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61405205 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T13:19:05	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766015 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T13:25:23	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	46337044 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T13:35:54	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58767132 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T13:34:41	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58771916 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T13:55:07	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61406492 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T14:00:32	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765988 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T14:02:01	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	57133761 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T14:03:17	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766591 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T14:09:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61406803 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T14:23:41	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61407097 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T15:09:37	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765764 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T15:41:04	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61408625 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T15:44:50	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61408678 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T16:00:15	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764903 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T16:08:53	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764976 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T16:18:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61409332 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T16:32:56	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61409575 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T16:38:34	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61409685 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T16:39:30	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61409697 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T16:54:37	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61409909 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T17:09:22	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61411061 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T17:12:08	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58792537 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T17:21:41	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61411260 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T17:21:52	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61411620 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T17:45:59	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765777 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T17:30:53	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61412026 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T18:33:13	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58774827 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T18:33:17	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58774945 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T18:34:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58774864 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T18:34:42	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61414108 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T18:40:00	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58764962 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T18:49:00	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61414436 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T18:58:51	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61414723 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T19:40:47	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58768252 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-30T20:41:27	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61417319 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T21:27:37	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58800528 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-30T22:37:21	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61419546 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T00:19:56	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61421205 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T00:21:09	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61421225 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T01:35:40	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61422177 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T02:31:55	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61422829 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T02:45:36	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61422964 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T02:54:56	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61423050 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T02:56:54	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61423068 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-31T04:29:49	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61423855 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T05:15:25	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58785564 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T05:38:05	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	56977324 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T06:22:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61424456 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T06:43:04	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61424530 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T06:48:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61424546 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T08:57:29	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61426240 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T09:47:22	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61428354 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T09:47:44	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61428366 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T11:42:37	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - Couriers	131924	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61430277 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-03-31T13:58:24	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61431468 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T14:32:08	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58766210 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T14:34:41	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61431853 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T14:58:58	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61432134 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-03-31T20:14:00	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61437308 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-01T00:44:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61439353 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-01T03:37:45	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61440308 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-03T01:07:45	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61452653 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-03T03:11:58	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61453284 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-03T17:51:47	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58804160 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-04-03T23:42:20	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61465244 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-04T00:15:47	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61465509 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-01T17:54:10	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61444487 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-02T00:32:34	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61446620 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-02T02:51:59	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58808799 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-03T18:48:21	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61461744 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-02T18:23:49	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61450648 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-09T21:52:14	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61584816 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-11T08:36:04	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58801738 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-05T18:05:15	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61545797 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov

2023-04-05T19:37:34	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61546945 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-05T21:53:12	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	58765792 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-08T15:32:57	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61571595 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-08T16:01:11	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61575239 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-06T00:30:17	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61549400 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov
2023-04-06T22:53:38	[NYC] Earnings Standard 2 - 131924 Couriers	980 email	Uber	success	665235 legislator	Department of Worker & Consumer Protection	61557870 Rulecomments@dcwp.nyc.gov